IDC Holds Nominations

by Susan Roth

The Inter-Dormitory Council held its first meeting of the 1981-82 year on Tuesday. The meeting was an introduction to the group for new members, and nominations for the six officers on the executive council (chairman, finance chairperson, administration chairperson, judiciary chairperson, treasurer and secretary son, treasurer and secretary) were held. It was run by Steve Atlas, who is not on the IDC at present, but was representing the student activities office.

The financial committee is in charge of all allocations of funds for campus-wide social functions, activities at the cultural houses, homecoming weekend events, and anything else sponsored by dorms or campus houses. This year it has between five and six thousand dollars to distribute.

The administration committee is the political end of the council. It works with the adminstration and other student organizations on such issues as security, and overcrowding in dining halls and maintenance.

The judiciary committee deals with disciplinary problems in the dorms. It works under the constitution of the IDC which it rewrites each year.

Atlas explained that the IDC is really a "unique body" because it is run fairly informally, and there is a lot of flexibility in what it can or cannot do."

The group tries to use common sense to keep things efficient, Atlas said.

Although the nominations were held on Tuesday, any member of the IDC can decide to run for an office during this week. Elections will be held at the next meeting, on Tuesday, September 22.

Stars, Depth, Experience: Men's X-Country Team

by John LeBlanc

By all standards, this should be a great season for the men's cross-country team. Senior stars, Paul Murray and captain Mark Hardie, both coming off injuries, are healthy and ready to run.

"As long as I can avoid getting hurt," says Hardie, "I'm going to have a great year."

Murray, who qualified for the nationals last year in the 1500 meter run, didn't go because of injury. Hardie who was at the nationals two years ago,was injured most of last year. Both runners are looking towards the nationals this season.

this year's team has stars, but equally important, it has depth and experience. In a sport where a varsity team has seven members, Tufts has seven returning lettermen. In addition to Hardie and Murray, they are senior Pete Kelly and juniors Jim Sears, Ed Ellison, John LeBlanc and John Hanover. Six ou of the seven were lettermen the year before also. Experience is the key factor in winning and is something this year's team has.

In addition to the older runners, this year's team has an abundance of young eager runners who could easily move up to varsity, Some notable prospects are Dave Cramer, Terry Cryan and Louie Patriaca. Due to the large turnout, Tufts will have a full team for the first time in years.

Last year, the team didn't do as well as they expected.

Dean Colcord (above) and President Mayer believe that construction on the campus center could begin as early as the end of this academic year.

Plans For Campus Center Well Underway

by Fred Wagner

Work on the proposed campus center project continued in earnest during the summer and according to the dean of faculty of arts and sciences Frank Colcord, several significant gifts have been received in addition the original $1.25 million matching grant.

President Jean Mayer said yesterday that he is very confident we will break ground (begin construction) in the academic year."

"If we raise as much as we already have," Colcord said Tuesday, "and if a couple of big gifts are in the offing, maybe by the spring" construction could start.

While he did not reveal exact figures or names, Colcord said totals for the latest gifts are in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. "It takes a long time from when we first hear about a donation to the actual announcement -- there is always the danger of being premature," he commented. Colcord also mentioned several "major prospects" are being discussed and pursued actively.

The campus center committee will also be reinstated within two or three weeks, Colcord said. This board of approximately twelve students, faculty and administrators will commence work on the architectural design of the building. This year's committee will be much smaller than last year's, when any student interested was allowed to participate.

Instead, Colcord has asked the TCU Senate to provide four members as representatives of the student body. Colcord affirmed that when concrete design plans are available, meetings will be held open to the entire campus.

The construction of the campus center is scheduled to take place in two phases. The first phase requires a budget of $3.2 million, the second approximately $2 million.

News Briefs

No Stones for Boston

Bad news for Rolling Stones fans in New England, especially those who camped out in front of the Orpheum Theater. Paul Wasserman, the band's national publicist, says from Los Angeles "There will be no Rolling Stones concert in the foreseeable future (in Boston).

WBCN said yesterday afternoon it talked to Wasserman and also to Bill Graham, the Stones' national tour director. The station said Graham also confirmed that the band would not accept the proposed free, outdoor concert this Sunday at Boston's City Hall Plaza.

Filibuster Choked

Senate conservatives mustered enough votes to choke off a filibuster on school busing. The filibuster had blocked off preliminary approval of a proposal that would bar federal courts from ordering busing to acheive intergration.

Sorry, Jimmy

The senate has voted to end a complex program that hsa limited the number of people who grow peanuts. It did that by agreeing to end limits on the number of acres that can be used to grow peanuts--while retaining some production quotas. Yhe peanut measure will be added to the senate Farm Bill.

FCC Goes to Congress

The Federal Communications Commission may soon ask congress to abolish The Fairness Doctrine and Equal - Time Laws.

The commission is to vote tomorrow on whether to make that recomendation -- as proposed by Chairman Mark Fowler.

Watch Where You Walk

At least 574 trespassing arrests have been made in connection with the anti-nuclear demonstration at the Diablo Canyon atomic power plant in San Luis Obispo, California. Protestors have been outside the plant for two days.

Military Spending Increased

The House okayed a nearly seven billion dollar appropiation for military construction for next year. That's 30% larger than this year's construction spending. But the money would go to build more housing for military personnel.

MEN'S X COUNTRY CON'T

This year they are our for revenge. Hardie and Ellison talk of humiliating Bowdoin, Everyone wants M.I.T. The first meet is September 26 against Colby and Central Conn. The team is hungry ans talented. Look for them to do well this year.

New York-based "Harry" heads fall dance program

by Franceska Orros

The Tufts Dance Program and The Tufts Dance Collective have managed to assemble an outstanding array of performances for the fall semester. Since the department has no funds to hire visiting dance companies, all of the events have been arranged by the initiative of the dance faculty and Tufts dance enthusiasts.

Launching the events on Saturday, September 26 in the Arena Theatre, will be three improvisational groups ; Clearing River, and a trio feauring faculty member Alice Trexler. This selection should be inviting to many different people because improvisation is such an unique art form. According to to Ms. Trexler, "improvisation bridges the gap between theatre and dance."

As well as providing entertainment, this performance is especially intended for the benefit of the Massachusetts Contemporary Dance Assosiation. Trexler stresses that the dancers involved will be donating their time. The money collected from ticket sales will go directly to the MDCA.

Next, on Friday, October 2 in Cohen Auditorium, the Tufts Dance Collective will be presenting an up and coming New York based company called Harry. Senta Driver, the company's director has received excellent reviews for her work in New York. Then on October 15 and 16, a performance prepared by faculty member, Susan Sachs will take place in Gallery 11. JoiningMs. Sachs will be guest artist, Jim Becker. Later on October 23 and 24, a dance concert using "Eastern themes and music" will be held at Cohen. Featured in this selection are Alice Trexler and the drama department's artist in residence, Julie Portman. Ms. Portman will be premiering her dance-drama, "Cassandra. This should be the most unique dance event in the area," commented Ms. Trexler. Instead of Tuft's usual faculty concert, Ms. Trexler and MS. Sachs have designed a show exhibiting their own creations plus the work of MS. Becker and a student Amy Cohen. This will take place in the dance studio onNovember 20 and 21.

Closing the season on December 4and 5 will be performances by one of Boston's finest modern dance troupes, the Zellsworth Dancers. Tufts is very lucky to have Zellsworth at Cohen since the company is working only for the money that is collected through ticket sales. This will be their major performance in the area.

Enough with the jokes!

O.K., we've told you how if you deliver the TUFTS DAILY, everyone will like you. You'll feel better about yourself. Your sex life will improve. But what you may not know is that you'll make over $30 a week, maybe more, plus expenses. That's alot of pizza in Dewick. You won't be delivering door to door like a paper route, just to the front of the major dorms, dining halls, and university buildings. Call the DAILY at x6131 or come down to the office. Don't forget, your teeth will be whiter and your grades will improve.

Women's X-country Invitational set for Stonehill

by Gina Sanders

The Tufts' women's cross-country team will be hard to beat this Saturday, when the squad opens its season at the Stonehill Invitational. Many of the teams Tufts will face later in the season also will be there, including Wesleyan, MIT, Fitchburg, and Smith. Leading the Jumbos are senior co-captains Barb Nicol and Ellen Petrick, joined by veterans Madeline Kass, Margie Golden and Teri Coleman. Adding strength and depth to the team are promising newcomers Ruth Sacks, Gina Sanders, Pam Smoot, Sandra Torgenson and Jody Meier.

Coach Nancy Gavor is quite optimistic about the team's future, and hopes to see the squad qualify for the NCAA National Championships. Should the Women's cross country team in fact, make it to the Nationals, it would not be surprising; for although young, this squad is tough, and its enthusiasm is running at a fleet-footed pace.

Chorale getting better, not older, conductor says

by Ona Dike

"I have tried to make the chorale more visible" said Kente Werth, conductor of the Tufts University Chorale, adding that "there is a great deal of good spirit within the chorale."

Already this fall up to a hundred students have turned up for auditions and quite a lot of the enthusiastic and able musicians are freshmen.

The chorale, according to Werth is improving each year and the only problem right now is that more male singers are needed.

Werth also wanted to stress that he "would be delighted if more faculty and staff sang in the chorale." Bobby Knable and her husband have set an example and so has Profesor Dan Dennett (philosophy department) and Dean Colcord who will be performing again this year. Werth added with warm humor that if he could, he would also get Jean Mayer to sing.

Last year the chorale performed Rennaissance and Baroque music and will do so this year. The full agenda will also include the German Magnifica by Schutz and Leonard Bernstein's "Chichester Psalms."

This spring the chorale will also perform with the orchestra conducted by Professor Abbot. Added to this busy schedule, the chorale will be holding a joint performance with Colby College.

Werth, a member of the music department, came to Tufts last year after working as a singer for the Los Angeles Master Chorale for three years. He received his P.H.D in music history at Berkely.

Werth enthusiastically added that the first concert will be on December 6, and that he hopes to see more males auditioning for the chorale.

If you are interested in auditioning, you can go to one of the rehearsals which take place three times a week: Tuesday 5-6, Wednesday 7-9 and on Thursday 5-6. They will be auditioning in Goddard Chapel.

mended changes for Eaton Lounge to make it more of an interim campus center, and Mayer said that he agreed with their plans.

"We're going to do some renovation to Eaton and improve it," Mayer explained, but added that a problem arises because the renovation money comes from the campus center fund.

Commenting on the Senate plan, which calls for a snack bar, game room, stage, and expanding the loft, Mayer said "I liked everything about it except for the structural changes" to the lounge. Any changes must be temporary in nature, so that a large sum of money does not have to be spent to give Eaton Lounge a new use once the campus center is built.

The lounge's use at that time may possibly be a "recreational library" with magazines and light novels patterned after one at Yale, Mayer said.

While recognizing the need for some kind of immediate campus center in Eaton Lounge, Mayer said "the campus center is absolutely the highest priority as far as the university is concerned."
