

Philip Morris' Position on Accommodation

- We recognize that second-hand smoke can be annoying or uncomfortable to non-smokers and that there are differing views on the science.
- We support voluntary restrictions by business owners and reasonable regulations by elected government officials designed to minimize involuntary exposure to secondhand smoke.
- We believe restrictive smoking bans result in negative economic and social impact to business owners and their customers.
- We support business owners' right to choose the smoking policy that best suits their needs.
- We believe there are reasonable options, such as enhanced ventilation and technical improvements in ventilation systems, to help create a comfortable environment for everyone -- non-smokers and smokers alike.
- We are committed to assisting business owners, decision makers, non-smokers and smokers in finding reasonable alternatives to smoking bans.
