March 7 | 4:30-6:00 | CHAT

“Chinese Surplus: Biopolitical Aesthetics and the Medically Commodified Body”

Ari Heinrich

In this public seminar, Ari Heinrich discusses the politics of the medically commodified body in contemporary Chinese and transnational literature, media, art, visual culture, and popular science. Incorporating both political economy and aesthetics, this examination opens up new ways to thinking about the interrelationship of science, medicine, commodity, and the arts in modern and contemporary environments.

March 9 | 12:00-3:00 | Granoff Music Center, Room 75

Sound Matters: Sound / Sound Studies / Sound Art

Keynote: Nina Eidsheim, "Considering Sound, Music, and Listening as Vibrational Practices Across Fields"

This interdisciplinary campus-wide symposium on Sound Studies explores how we think about sound, music, and listening in the sciences, arts, and humanities. Bringing faculty and staff together from across AS&E who work on, or with, or through sound from various disciplinary perspectives in science and engineering, the arts and humanities, and the social sciences, we will be building on the wide range of current research on sound, including sound as an object of study, as a diagnostic tool, as a means for social control, as a marker of identity, as a central factor in our embodied experience of the world, as a problem to be solved in factories, labs, and clinics, as a creative resource, as a weapon, as therapeutic tool, etc. Cosponsored by CHAT, The University Gallery, and the Office of the Dean of Arts & Sciences

March 14 | 1:00-4:00 | Interfaith Center, 58 Winthrop Street
