100026	Policy and Strategy in the Origins, Conduct, and Termination of War
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P241
2016 SPRG	Primary	Richard Shultz	richard.shultz@tufts.edu
This course employs case studies to assess enduring principles of war and their role in defending a nation's interests and objectives. The works of three military strategists and four political theorists are examined to develop an analytical framework for assessing the origins, conduct, and termination of war. This framework is employed to analyze six major historical conflicts: the Peloponnesian War; the Wars of Revolutionary and Napoleonic France; the American Civil War; World War I; World War II; the French-Indo-China War/U.S. war in Vietnam.

100059	Proliferation-Counterproliferation and Homeland Security Issues
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P242
The 21st-century proliferation setting; alternative approaches to threat reduction; international negotiations and agreements including the Non-Proliferation Treaty; the International Atomic Energy Agency, the Missile Technology Control Regime, the Chemical Weapons Convention, the Open Skies Treaty, the Biological Weapons Convention, and the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty; approaches to nonproliferation and counterproliferation; issues of homeland security; coping with the effects of weapons of mass destruction; cyber war; technology transfer; the nuclear fuel cycle; the fissile material problem; cooperative security; compliance, verification, and on-site inspection; missile defense; negotiating strategies, styles, objectives, asymmetries, and techniques.

100113	Internal Conflicts and War
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P243
2015 FALL	Primary	Richard Shultz	richard.shultz@tufts.edu
Instability, conflict, and irregular warfare within states due to burgeoning challenges posed by armed groups have proliferated in number and importance since the Cold War ended. With the spread of globalization, the technological shrinking of the world and interdependence of states and regions, these internal/transnational conflicts have taken new dimensions with far-reaching consequences. This seminar examines their patterns and evolution. Topics include examination of: the global strategic environment which armed groups exploit; the causes of internal/transnational conflict; types of armed groups, their operational patterns and strategies; and six case studies.

100152	Modern Terrorism and Counterterrorism
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P244
2017 SPRG	Primary	James Forest	James.Forest@tufts.edu
This course examines the nature of terrorism; the spectrum of terrorist motivations, strategies, and operations; the socio-political, economic and other factors that can enable terrorist group activities; the unique threat of WMD terrorism; and the internal vulnerabilities of terrorist organizations. Students will examine current and classic research on terrorism, and explore many of the puzzles that remain unanswered. Finally, the course will analyze these critical issues within the context of policies and strategies for responding to the threat of terrorism with increasing sophistication and success.

100228	Crisis Management and Complex Emergencies
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P245
2016 FALL	Primary	Robert Pfaltzgraff	robert.pfaltzgraff@tufts.edu
Consideration of crisis management in theory and practice, drawing from recent and earlier crises; theories of crisis prevention, deterrence; escalation, de-escalation, termination, and post crisis management; decision making; bargaining and negotiation; the role of third-parties; the National Security Act of 1947 and decisional approaches in successive U.S. administrations. Emphasis on theoretical literature, as well as the perspective of actual participants in recent crises and utilization of case studies, including cyber crises. The seminar also includes a major weekend crisis simulation exercise, SIMULEX, with outside participants from the official policy community.

100342	Civil-Military Relations
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P247
2016 FALL	Primary	Antonia Chayes	Antonia.Chayes@tufts.edu
Although recent conflict environments entered a grey area that is neither war nor peace, the complexity of civil-military relations is not new. In the last two decades, kinetic activity, wider peacekeeping, peace building and state building have been pursued simultaneously. Cyber attacks and targeted killing outside war zones add to the "grey area." This seminar will analyze how international interveners, both civil and military, deal with such complex environments. Approaches will include themes, such as lack of coordination and planning; negotiation at HQ and in the field among civilian agencies, NGOs, and the military. We will examine cases and themes, as well as theory. Prior to taking this course, students should have taken a course in security studies, negotiation, or international law.

100526	Environmental Problem Solving
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P250
2016 FALL	Primary	Avery Cohn	Avery.Cohn@tufts.edu
The foundation of this course is exposure to a portfolio of (primarily) quantitative analytical techniques for assessing environmental dimensions of economic activities, policies, and technologies. The goal is for students to become informed, capable environmental analysts and discerning consumers of environmental research and analysis. The course focuses on four applied environmental problems. Each case introduces an analytic skill and situates it in its political, regulatory and/or economic context. P250 requires completion or co-enrollment in either B205: Data Analysis and Statistical Methods or E213: Econometrics.

100674	Sustainable Development Diplomacy
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P253
2016 FALL	Primary	Mihaela Papa		Mihaela.Papa@tufts.edu
2016 FALL	Primary	Patrick Verkooijen		Patrick.Verkooijen@tufts.edu
Sustainable development diplomacy course examines how to integrate economic, environmental and social equity goals in foreign policy-making. It discusses the emergence of sustainable development as a concept and international institutions and negotiation processes that facilitate its implementation. Focusing on climate, water and forest diplomacy, we address a range of themes including UN climate negotiations, climate finance, environmental refugees, public-private cooperation, and water governance. The course also analyzes China and BRICS-led approaches to sustainable development and their new banks. It offers insights from practice, trainings in mutual gains negotiations and complex UN multiparty negotiations. Students develop expertise in policy analysis and planning, strategic thinking and feedback management.

100762	Climate Change and Clean Energy Policy
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P254
2016 FALL	Primary	Kelly Gallagher		Kelly.Gallagher@tufts.edu
This course examines how governments respond to the challenges posed by the complex problem of global climate change and how clean energy policies can help countries achieve multiple goals. The latest science, technological developments, economic assessments of costs and opportunities, the role of the media, domestic and international politics, and innovation are all discussed. Policy instruments for climate mitigation, adaptation, and a clean energy economy are introduced and thoroughly analyzed in a comparative way across most of the major-energy consuming countries. In-class exercises including an international negotiation simulation illuminate course themes. The course introduces and strengthens multidisciplinary policy analysis skills.

100836	International Energy Policy
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P255
2016 SPRG	Primary	Kelly Gallagher		Kelly.Gallagher@tufts.edu
Energy affects every dimension of human society and it is crucial for economic prosperity. Energy is at the heart of economic development strategies, national security challenges, and intractable environmental problems. This review course maps how challenges and opportunities differ among countries, exploring basic differences between industrialized and developing countries. The policies of major energy producers and consumers are compared. The focus is on oil and gas, but renewable energy sources are also considered. Topics include: energy and the world economy, the geopolitics of oil and gas, energy markets, energy policy and economic development, climate change, technological change and the future of energy.

Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P256
2017 SPRG	Primary	Kelly Gallagher			Kelly.Gallagher@tufts.edu
Innovation is the main source of economic growth and improvements in productivity, is a key lever for catalyzing development, reducing environmental harm, improving human health and well-being, and enhances national security. This seminar explores the nature of technology, theories and “stylized facts” about innovation processes, and how to think about innovation systems. A major focus is policy for innovation. Topics include national innovation systems, management of risks, global change, actors and institutions, social innovation, private vs. public, education, cross-country comparisons, competitiveness, technology transfer and diffusion, learning and “catch-up”, IPR’s, and leapfrogging. Case studies are used to understand each topic.

Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P260
2016 FALL	Primary	Ayesha Jalal			ayesha.jalal@tufts.edu
Going beyond the simplistic notion of a great civilization divide, this course puts the categories ‘Islam’ and ‘the West’ under the spotlight of historical and comparative analysis. After providing some essential background, the course concentrates on the colonial and postcolonial encounter between Muslim and Western societies and politics with special, but not exclusive reference to the South Asian subcontinent. Organized along historical and thematic lines, the course focuses on the overlapping domains of culture and politics, thought and practice, to elucidate aspects of dialogue, tension, and confrontation between the worlds of Islam and the West.

Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
DHP	P273
2017 SPRG	Primary	Tsunetoshi Yoshihara	Tsunetoshi.Yoshihara@tufts.edu
This course is built around two key questions surrounding China's rise: How will China rise? Where will this rise take China? To address these two deceptively simple questions, this course relies on the concept of strategy. In the broadest sense, strategy is the relationship between ends and means. For the purposes of this course, strategy is understood as the nexus between a nation's long-term goals and the various implements of national power—diplomatic, economic, military, and cultural tools—to achieve those objectives. To sharpen the analytical focus, this course focuses primarily on the “hard” dimensions of China's national power, which encompasses such material factors as geography, resources, economic size, and military power.

2017 SPRG	Primary	Daniel Maxwell	Daniel.Maxwell@tufts.edu
This course will offer a practical and in-depth analysis of the complex issues and skills needed to engage in humanitarian work in field settings. Through presentations offered by the faculty of the Humanitarian Studies Initiative and guest speakers who are experts in their topic areas, students will gain familiarity with the primary frameworks in the humanitarian field (human rights, livelihoods, Sphere standards, international humanitarian law) and will focus on practical issues that arise in the field, such as rapid assessments, application of minimum standards for humanitarian response, and operational approaches to relations with the military in humanitarian settings. Each student will be part of a team representing an international humanitarian non-governmental organization. Topics covered: Humanitarian response community and history; International Humanitarian Law and Human Rights Law; Sphere standards and sectoral applications (shelter, water and sanitation, food security, health); Civil-military relations, media skills, logistics, and budgeting; Monitoring and evaluation, accountability, and livelihoods; Personal security, mental health, stress, and teamwork; and Humanitarian technology. IMPORTANT TO NOTE: These topics will provide the foundational knowledge and skills needed to perform successfully during a three-day intensive field simulation of a humanitarian crisis that usually takes place at the end of April/early May. There is a $300 fee to cover camping gear hire, food, and other equipment costs. This course is cross-listed with The Fletcher School (D213) and enrollment is limited to 15 Friedman students and to 15 Fletcher students. Priority enrollment for Friedman is given to: 1) FPAN students pursuing the Humanitarian Assistance Specialization, 2) MAHA students 3) Graduating and Second-Year students, 4) First-Year students. Mediation is one of many international intervention approaches to prevent, resolve, or recover from political violence. It is practiced by individuals, international and transnational organizations, small and large states, and in bilateral or multilateral contexts. This seminar focuses on the ways in which mediators in the international arena carry out their third-party roles. Topics to be covered include: gaining entry; developing a strategy; gaining and using leverage; and managing complexity. The seminar relies on detailed, extensive case study analysis to understand how international mediators operate in real-time, complex environments. Open to students who have completed D220 or equivalent.

2016 FALL	Primary	Nadim Rouhana	Nadim.Rouhana@tufts.edu
2017 SPRG	Primary	Eileen Babbitt	eileen.babbitt@tufts.edu
This course offers an overview of theories of conflict and approaches to conflict resolution. It surveys theories of conflict that originate in various disciplines including sociology, political science, international relations, social psychology, and law. It presents multiple levels of analysis to explain both inter-state and intra-state conflicts. It also reviews approaches that seek to settle and to transform the relationships of disputing parties. This course will provide an in-depth and a critical look at leading theories of conflict and conflict resolution and will explore some of the major theoretical debates in the field.

103798	Conflict Resolution Practice
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
DHP	D225
This seminar focuses on three crucial aspects of conflict resolution practice: conducting a conflict assessment; facilitating discussions and consensus building processes in the context of intergroup conflict; and designing and conducting effective dialogues between contending identity groups. The seminar will emphasize the applied aspects of these processes and will use demonstrations, films, exercises, and guest lecturers. It will culminate with organizing and conducting a problem-solving workshop under the leadership of the instructor. Open to students who have completed D223.

This course examines situations of armed conflict, civilian experiences of these crises, and the international and national humanitarian and military responses to these situations from a gender perspective and highlights the policy and program implications that this perspective presents. Topics include gender analyses of current trends in armed conflict and terrorism; links among war economies, globalization and armed conflict; the manipulation of gender roles to fuel war and violence; gender and livelihoods in crises; masculinities in conflict; sexual and gender-based violence; women's rights in international humanitarian and human rights law; and peacebuilding. Case studies are drawn from recent and current armed conflicts worldwide. This course is cross-listed with the Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy.

104163	Introduction to Research Methods
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
DHP	D235
2017 SPRG	Primary	Karen Jacobsen	karen.jacobsen@tufts.edu
This course is intended for students who are new to research, and is an introduction to designing, conducting and writing up a research project. We begin with identifying your main research question—how it is drawn from and relates to the broader field of scholarship and theory. Then we explore the design of research protocols, how the choice of methods relates to the research question, and the art of data collection and field work. Course objectives are to increase your: (1) understanding of methodologically sound and theoretically relevant field research; (2) skills in conducting field work; (3) critical awareness of the ethical and practical problems of field research; (4) ability to evaluate the scientific merits of published materials; and (5) understanding of how research relates to policy and the work of practitioners.

Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
DHP	D237
2017 SPRG	Primary	Erin Boyd	Erin.Boyd@tufts.edu
The course will introduce students to the concept of Public Nutrition and examine its central role in complex emergencies. The implications of the Public Nutrition approach for assessment and analysis, policy development, program design and implementation will be examined. This will provide an understanding of; the causes and nutritional outcomes of humanitarian crises and complex emergencies (malnutrition, morbidity and mortality). The course has a field oriented focus based on a wide range of recent and past food and nutrition crises ranging. The course reviews international response strategies, nutrition programmes and relevant policies; and incorporates relevant applied research. The course provides the opportunity for active class participation drawing upon the actual work experience of the students and applying a range of up-to-date case-study materials based on current humanitarian crises. This course is cross-listed with the Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy.

We begin with an analysis of the root causes of migration, then review the international legal framework, and analyze asylum and refugee policies in different national contexts. The course will explore a range of critical issues including current controversies about climate change and migration, urbanization, trafficking, and new approaches to humanitarian assistance and protection. The course focuses on refugee and IDP movements, but adopts a wider perspective so as to address all kinds of global movements.

104530	Southwest Asia: History, Culture, and Politics
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: D260
This course is a survey of Southwest Asian institutional history from the middle of the 18th century to modern times. The course is designed for professional students. It examines the complexity of the region, with special emphasis on the impact of the Industrial Revolution. Topics include Great Power competition in the region; the influence of Turko-Muslim culture on contemporary events, Colonialism, the regional context for the formation of nation states, post WWII Globalization, the regional impact of explosive change in the Digital era, Fundamentalism, and chaotic conditions at the turn of the 21st century.

104726	Geopolitics of Energy in Eurasia
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: D264
2016 FALL	Primary	Andrew Hess	andrew.hess@tufts.edu
This course deals with security issues related to the production, distribution and consumption of oil and gas in the post-Soviet Union period. The political instability of Eurasia following the collapse of Soviet Union has threatened the supply of oil and gas for the developing economies of the nations of Eurasia. To understand the importance of this issue, this course will examine how the distribution of energy has intensified the competition between nations in this region. One example of this is the Russian annexation of the eastern Ukraine. It is also particularly important to understand the impact of accelerating technological changes taking place both in Eurasia and the rest of the world. The range of the subject matter continues in the second portion of the course where the discovery of oil in Arctic region and the production of liquefied natural gas (LNG) in Australia change the global market for oil and gas. Course concludes with a study of the geopolitical struggles over the energy resources of the South China Sea.

Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
DHP	D265
2017 SPRG	Primary	Andrew Hess	andrew.hess@tufts.edu
This course explores the consequences of accelerated technological change in the geopolitically important region of Southwest Asia that includes the modern states and societies of Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan and India. Each of these states protests their current position. For Iran the dispute with the outside world is it does not occupy a position commensurate with its power. With Afghanistan the difficulty with modernity is that external interference has not enabled it to consolidate power in the face of internal and external forces. In the case of Pakistan the sudden establishment of the state in 1947 in a world dominated by Western powers has left the country in a competition with an external power, India, under condition of great inequality. Special efforts will be made to understand this region's problems with terrorism especially in the case of Afghanistan and Pakistan. For India, the major subject of analysis will be how the state is going to deal with being surrounded by hostile powers both on land and sea. Specific topics studied are the future of Iran outside its national border that includes Syria and Yemen. This course will provide in-depth knowledge of ethnic and sectarian violence, modern educational change, social and cultural reaction to radical urbanization, creation of a modern legal system, transfer of modern technology, and foreign policies of major state and non-state powers.

104814	The Globalization of Central Asia and the Caucasus
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
DHP	D267
2017 SPRG	Primary	Andrew Hess	andrew.hess@tufts.edu
The course establishes a basis for understanding modern political and cultural changes in Central Asia and the Caucasus from a global point of view. There are three major reasons for taking on this task. The first deals with the political instability that took place in Eurasia after the collapse of the Soviet Union. That event brought on a period of political weakness that is not over by 2015. This increased the threats to the production of oil and gas from a region of the world that contained about seventy percent of the world's supply of oil and gas. The third development generating Eurasian insecurity is a consequence of the near joint decision by India and China to engage in rapid economic development during the last decade of the twentieth century. This placed the two countries containing near a third of humanity in need of major imports of oil and gas. In turn this erected a major security problem in Eurasia because two very large states had to secure their sources of fuel rapidly under conditions where the nearby sources of supply were located in high-risk areas of the Middle East and Central Eurasia. Then there is a high possibility of major state competition over energy resources. We will examine how diplomacy might forestall conflict based upon the idea that all parties to the economic livelihood of Eurasia have an interest in preserving the global economy. Here we will devote particular attention to the multi-lateral efforts to provide protection to the Indian/Pacific ocean maritime lines of supply. Other topics studied are: economic development; impact of modern petroleum technology and its environmental impact; ethnic politics; terrorism in Central Eurasia; and the new 'Great Game' in Central Asia.

Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: D283M	2017 SPRG	Primary	Klaus Scharioth	Klaus.Scharioth@tufts.edu
The seminar examines U.S.-European relations since a peaceful revolution brought down the Berlin Wall in November 1989. The seminar looks at various common challenges in the period thereafter and how they were dealt with, both from the U.S. and the European perspective: the unification of Germany, Bosnia and Kosovo, the enlargement of NATO, NATO/Russia, 9/11 and the threat of violent extremism, Afghanistan, Iraq, Iran and nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament, among others. The emphasis is on practical skills rather than theory. Students will practice to write short memos for political leaders and to give very short oral presentations. One-half credit.

A study of world history over the past 500 years from a salt-water perspective. The course will examine the ocean as avenue, arena, source, and cultural metaphor, analyzing major themes such as the impact of changing technologies and modes of warfare, evolving patterns of trade, and differing cultural perceptions. The format will be lecture, with some discussion.

105489	Classics of International Relations
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
DHP	H204
2016 FALL	Primary	Daniel Drezner	Daniel.Drezner@tufts.edu
Most graduate courses in international relations focus on “cutting edge” research. Without a working knowledge of Thucydides, Kant, or Schelling, citizens and policymakers are unable to place new theoretical propositions into a historical context. This course surveys the history of international relations theory through a close reading of 10-15 classic works in the field. Among the questions that will be addressed: how far has IR theory developed since Thucydides? How closely do theories of international relations mirror the era in which they were written? In what ways are these widely cited works simplified or misstated in the current era?

2016 FALL	Primary	Leila Fawaz	leila.fawaz@tufts.edu
A century ago, World War I and its settlement shaped the modern Middle East. The end of the Ottoman Empire and the emergence of successor states in search of internal ideology and regional influence have characterized the region today. This course addresses the broader topic of struggle and survival during cataclysmic events, such as a world war, with reference to the history of the student’s region of interest. It is a research-based class in which students will learn how to better research conflict and how to develop an approach to the study of conflict given the many perspectives of those affected by it. The course will also discuss the ways in which conflict can transform a region. This course is cross-listed with the School of Arts and Sciences - Department of History (open to seniors).

2017 SPRG	Primary	Carolyn Friedman	Carolyn.Gideon@tufts.edu
Introduction to the basic tools of policy analysis and decision making, providing students with analytic skills to make policy decisions in many types of organizations. The course includes an introduction to public policy objectives, decision making, and the role of analysis. Students then learn powerful analytic decision-making techniques, including decision trees, Bayes theorem, utility theory, prospect theory, game theory, benefit-cost analysis, and tipping models. Case studies are used to learn the policy analysis tools while applying them to real world policy problems. Cases come from developed and developing countries, and cover many different policy fields. No background in economics or statistics is required.

106193	National Security Decision Making: Theory and Practice
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
DHP	P205
2016 FALL	Primary	Michele Malvesti	Michele.Malvesti@tufts.edu
This course examines national security decision-making from both a theoretical perspective and from its execution in practice. The seminar focuses on how national security decisions are made rather than on the theories of international relations or the substantive content of national security policies. It is divided into three sections. The first part of the seminar—drawn, in part, from the instructor's nearly six years on the National Security Council (NSC) staff—introduces the student to the current structures, processes, and primary actors involved in national security decisions. The second section then delves into analytic and theoretical models of decision-making, cognitive biases, and how decision-makers use intelligence and lessons from history in their decisions. Finally, the seminar concludes with discussions on practical application and execution, has students participate in a crisis simulation, and explores possible reforms. Emphasis throughout the seminar is placed on the national security decision-making system of the United States (and particularly on the Executive Branch), but seminar participants also are encouraged to examine and discuss the systems and actors of other states as well.

This course covers the basics of research design and methods in political science. The first part of the course is devoted to developing a research question, constructing testable theories, understanding the advantages of quantitative and qualitative methods, and concept formation. The second part of the course focuses on specific research methods (historical analysis, statistical methods, field research, archival research, and experiments) and their relative strengths and weaknesses. The final section of the course addresses the ways in which scholars combine different methods to study political phenomena. Open to PhD students only or with permission of instructor.

107131	The Evolution of Grand Strategy
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P214
As shifts in the global order continue to cascade upon each other, policymakers need to be asking: How do we formulate a grand strategy for managing a world that shows signs of increasing disorder? What principles should govern foreign policy? What choices should societies make? How do we create some order out of the emerging disorder? To better understand these questions, this course explores the problem of strategy. To help scholars and policymakers define more carefully and precisely what they mean by strategy, the course examines the existing scholarly and policy literature on strategy, focusing on the more critical theorists and strategists who have contributed to decisions about problems confronting the state. It encourages the student to think analytically about strategy and to understand how scholars and policymakers tackle the problem of formulating strategies to guide the policies of the state.

It is much more common for the experts to cite geographic constraints, insufficient resources, bad policies, or weak institutions. But by avoiding values and culture, they ignore an important part of the explanation why some societies or ethno-religious groups do better than others with respect to democratic governance, social justice, and prosperity. They also ignore the possibility that progress can be accelerated by (1) analyzing cultural strengths and weaknesses, and (2) addressing cultural change as a purposive policy to apply through families, schools, churches, media, leadership, and/or the law.

Students explore different theories and examples of how different types of communication content and technology interact with sovereignty, politics, security, international relations, culture, and development. The course provides the foundations of this field with a structural approach. Topics covered include freedom of speech, global media and international journalism, public diplomacy, propaganda, media in democracies and totalitarian states, media influence on foreign policy, digital divide, intellectual property, privacy, convergence, security, media and political conflict and economic development.

108470	Communication Policy Analysis and Modeling
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P232
Students will learn the important political and economic characteristics of communication policy and markets, and will practice using basic analytic tools through case studies and examples from different countries to enhance their understanding of communication policy issues. Students will study the general background and trends in communication policy in different parts of the world. This is followed by in-depth exploration of several issues of telecommunications policy, media policy, and policy issues of the Internet and newer technologies. Open to students who have completed either E201 or E211 or the equivalent.

108828	The Role of Force in International Politics
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P240	2016 FALL	Primary	Richard Shultz
				richard.shultz@tufts.edu
This core International Security Studies course presents an examination of the role of force as an instrument of statecraft. Topics covered include: 1) military power and the role of force in contemporary world politics; 2) the causes of war and the moral/ethical constraints on armed violence; 3) instruments and purposes of coercion force: military power and strategic non-violent action; 4) national security policy formation and process; 5) the modes and strategies of military power (nuclear, conventional, internal conflict); 6) the structure of the post-Cold War and post-9/11 international security environment.

109551	Petroleum in the Global Economy
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B284
2016 FALL	Primary	Bruce Everett		Bruce.Everett@tufts.edu
This course covers the structure of the international petroleum industry and its role in the international economy. The first half will address the technical, commercial, legal, economic and political basis of the industry, and the business models for key segments, including exploration and production, refining, marketing and natural gas. Drawing on this knowledge base, the second half will consider key issues of the petroleum industry, including the resource base, pricing, environmental impacts, alternative energy sources, and geopolitics. Open to students who have basic Excel skills and have completed either E201, B200 or equivalent. Enrollment limited to 60 students.

109665	Introduction to Economic Theory
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E201
2015 FALL	Primary	Carsten Kowalczyk		carsten.kowalczyk@tufts.edu
2016 FALL	Primary	Ricardo Lopez		Ricardo.Lopez@tufts.edu
2017 SPRG	Primary	Lawrence Krohn		Lawrence.Krohn@tufts.edu
This course provides the foundation of modern economics with an emphasis on its applications. Topics include demand and supply analysis, consumer theory, theory of the firm, welfare economics, monopoly and antitrust, public goods, externalities and their regulation, unemployment, inflation and economic growth, national income determination, monetary and fiscal policy. This is an introductory course for non-specialists. Enrollment limited in fall semester to 60 students.

109833	Quantitative Methods
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E210M
2016 FALL	Primary	Michael Klein		michael.klein@tufts.edu
This module presents the mathematical methods that are used widely in economics, including logarithms, exponential functions, differentiation, optimization, constrained optimization, and an introduction to dynamic analysis. The mathematical material is presented in the context of economic applications and examples that illustrate the bridge between mathematics and economics. One-half credit.

109892	Microeconomics
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:

EIB	E211
	2016 FALL	Primary	Shinsuke Tanaka		Shinsuke.Tanaka@tufts.edu
The goal of this course is to equip students with the major analytical tools and concepts of microeconomics necessary in subsequent economics courses, in everyday life, and in the professional world. To this end, I put special emphasis on applications of economic theories to the fields of public policy, business cases, and pricing strategies. The topics include consumer theory, welfare economics, pricing, and game theory. Students are required to be concurrently enrolled in E210m, unless they have passed the Quantitative Reasoning equivalency exam.

109932	Macroeconomics
	Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
	EIB	E212
	2017 SPRG	Primary	Lawrence Krohn		Lawrence.Krohn@tufts.edu
Intermediate level course in macroeconomic theory and practice oriented toward industrial economy issues, with explicit, frequent reference to the global economic and financial turbulence of the last five years. Begins with rigorous coverage of national income accounting and definitions of the most important macroeconomic variables. Covers short-run Keynesian underemployment equilibria, money and financial assets, labor markets, inflation, economic growth and technological change, monetary and fiscal policy, the origins of the financial crisis of 2007-08. Includes interpretation of the most important macroeconomic indicators. Prerequisite: Comfort with basic economic principles at level of E201 or equivalent.

109948	Econometrics
	Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
	EIB	E213
	2017 SPRG	Primary	Julie Schaffner		Julie.Schaffner@tufts.edu
This course introduces students to the primary tools of quantitative data analysis employed in the study of economic and social relationships. It equips students for independent econometric research and for critical reading of empirical research papers. The course covers ordinary least squares, probit, fixed effects, two-stage least squares and weighted least squares regression methods, and the problems of omitted variables, measurement error, multicollinearity, heteroskedasticity, and autocorrelation. Prerequisites include familiarity with (1) basic probability and statistics (B205), and (2) basic concepts of functions and derivatives (E210m or an introductory calculus course).

110013	International Economic Policy Analysis
	Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
	EIB	E214
	2016 FALL	Primary	Michael Klein		michael.klein@tufts.edu
This seminar teaches skills that enable students to bridge the gap between coursework in economics and the types of economic analysis used in both government and private sector settings. These skills and tools build on material taught in Econometrics. The topics addressed in the seminar include a range of timely and policy-relevant issues in international economics and macroeconomics. The seminar will also focus on the use of empirical analysis for writing concise, effective policy memorandums. Open to students who have

110089	Managerial Economics
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E217M
2016 FALL	Primary	Daniel Richards	dan.richards@tufts.edu
This course is a brief introduction to management issues presented from the perspective of economics. The focus is on the strategic responses a firm can make regarding both its internal organization and its external interaction with both consumers and other firms. Students will learn the role of economic analysis in determining organizational design and developing competitive strategies whether the organization is a for-profit firm or a non-profit enterprise. One-half credit.

110102	International Trade and Investment
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E220
2016 SPRG	Primary	Carsten Kowalczyk	carsten.kowalczyk@tufts.edu
2017 SPRG	Primary	Ricardo Lopez	Ricardo.Lopez@tufts.edu
This course investigates why nations trade, what they trade, and the distribution of the gains from trade. Topics include trade and economic growth, technology, the product cycle, multinationals, international labor integration, tariffs, regional economic integration, dumping and international competitiveness of firms and nations. Special attention is given to analyzing the effects of various policy instruments. Open to students who have completed E211.

110118	Advanced International Trade and Investment
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E221
2015 FALL	Primary	Carsten Kowalczyk	carsten.kowalczyk@tufts.edu
Mediation is located within the broader family of international intervention approaches, as practiced by individuals, international and transnational organizations, small and large states, and in bilateral or multilateral contexts. This seminar focuses on the ways in which mediators in the international arena carry out their third-party roles. Topics to be covered include: gaining entry; developing a strategy; gaining and using leverage; and challenges of multi-party mediation. The seminar relies on detailed, extensive case study analysis to understand how international mediators operate in real-time, complex environments. Open to students who have completed D220 or equivalent.

110224	International Finance

that trade goods and services, as well as assets, with the rest of the world. Theory is developed and employed to study current events, as well as historical experience. Issues studied include exchange rate determination, monetary and exchange rate policy, the causes and consequences of external imbalances, international policy coordination, financial crises, and the global capital market. Open to students who have completed E201 or equivalent. E210m is suggested, and may be taken concurrently, but is not required.

110337	Finance, Growth and Business Cycles
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E233M
2017 SPRG	Primary	Michael Klein	michael.klein@tufts.edu
In this module we consider the potential role played by financial markets and the role of financial intermediation. We also study the actual structure and performance of banks, stock markets, and bond markets across a range of countries, and the extent of worldwide financial integration. There will be a focus on the worldwide financial and economic crisis that began in 2008. This module should appeal to students with interests in economic policy, financial and portfolio management, and international business. One-half credit.

110485	Development Economics: Macroeconomic Perspectives
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E240
2017 SPRG	Primary	Steven Block	steven.block@tufts.edu
This course provides an introduction to several central themes in development economics. The organizing framework is pro-poor economic growth. By combining economic models and case studies, one can draw lessons regarding what approaches have worked to alleviate poverty. The course also pays particular attention to situations that have led to economic crises, and develops models of macroeconomic management and structural adjustment. Lectures and assignments presume a background in economics at the introductory level. Open to students who have completed E201 or equivalent.

110546	Development Economics: Policy Analysis
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E241
2016 FALL	Primary	Julie Schaffner	Julie.Schaffner@tufts.edu
This course equips students for rigorous economic analysis of development problems and policies. The first half of the course develops tools for studying the decisions, markets and institutions that shape development outcomes. The second half develops an approach to policy analysis that draws on those tools. Students apply the approach in the study of policy questions related to cash and food transfers, agricultural pricing, infrastructure, education, agricultural technology, microfinance, and health. Emphasis is on rigorous reasoning, careful synthesis of empirical evidence, and effective communication of policy analysis results. Open to students who have completed E201 or the equivalent.

110561	Development Economics: Micro Perspectives
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E242	2017 SPRG	Primary	Jenny Aker Jenny.Aker@tufts.edu
This course teaches students how to use microeconomic theory and econometric skills to analyze issues in low-income countries, develop policy interventions to address those issues, and measure the impact of such interventions in a rigorous empirical manner. It then addresses the issues that constrain and support development, particularly in sub-Saharan Africa: health and education, labor, agriculture, financial services, and institutions. Open to students who have completed E211 or an intermediate microeconomic theory course. E213 is strongly recommended.
110617	Agriculture and Rural Development in Developing Countries
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E243
This seminar examines a range of issues relating to agriculture and food policy in developing countries. Within a broad analytical framework that emphasizes the interactions between the production, consumption, and marketing of food in developing countries, central topics will include: famine, the role of agriculture in poverty alleviation, global food crises, technology, political economy perspectives, food price policy analysis, and agriculture's contribution to economic growth. Open to students who have completed E201 or its equivalent.
110665	The Political Economy of Reform, Growth, and Equity
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E244
This seminar explores the insights and critiques of rational political economy in explaining the determinants of reform, growth, and equity in developing countries. This approach applies tools of economic analysis to understanding political processes. In particular, the seminar will apply theories of "public choice" and collective action in explaining development policy outcomes in relevant areas including: rational delay of reform, history and institutions, the macroeconomic effects of elections, the interaction of equity, democracy, and growth, and the political economy of failed states. Students are encouraged to have completed E240. One-half credit.
110723	Environmental Economics
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E246	2016 SPRG	Primary	Shinsuke Tanaka Shinsuke.Tanaka@tufts.edu
This course is designed for students interested in learning theoretical approaches and empirical tools economists use to analyze environmental problems and policies. Topics include 1) Modeling environmental problems from an economic perspective, using market theory, a public goods model, and externality theory; 2) Analyzing regulatory policies and pollution-control instruments based on command-and-control approach and the market-based approach; and 3) Assessing the costs and benefits of environmental goods and policies using contingent valuation and hedonic pricing methods. Open to students who have completed E201.

110762	Econometric Impact Evaluation for Development
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
EIB	E247
2017 SPRG	Primary	Jenny Aker		Jenny.Aker@tufts.edu
The course will cover econometric impact evaluation theory and empirical methods for measuring the impact of development programs (including randomization, difference-in-differences, regression discontinuity, and propensity score matching). The curriculum will combine theory and practice. The primary objectives of the course are to provide participants with the skills to understand the value and practice of impact evaluation within development economics, design and implement impact evaluations and act as critical consumers of impact evaluations. Econometrics (at the level of E213) is a strict prerequisite and may not be taken concurrently. Enrollment limited to 40 students.

110848	Economic Problems of Latin America
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
EIB	E250
2017 SPRG	Primary	Lawrence Krohn		Lawrence.Krohn@tufts.edu
Examines the diverse reasons for which many middle-income nations have failed to realize their potential in terms of economic growth and stability over the past quarter century. Emphasis placed on macroeconomic policies and their responsibility for middle-income nations' many crises. Perspective decidedly economic, but the course never loses sight of the role played by political institutions in shaping economic policy, thus national well-being. Each problem illustrated with cases drawn from recent Latin history. Emphasis on Argentina, Brazil, and Mexico within 18-nation universe. Prior mastery of basic macroeconomic theory essential; familiarity with the Latin region helpful, but not required.

110949	The Economics of Global Health in Developing Countries
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
EIB	E262
This course examines economic aspects of public health issues in developing countries. As such, the course is structured into three parts. Part I illustrates an overview of current status of global health and examines the returns of health to economic development. Part II investigates constraints in demand for health that lead to suboptimal investments into health, including externalities, credit/liquidity constraint, pricing, education, and gender bias and intra-household resource allocation. Part III covers issues related to supply of health: health care delivery, quality of health care, and roles of political economy. Whereas applications to modern health issues include HIV/AIDS, malaria, air pollution, water pollution, worms, anemia, and early childhood health, this course emphasizes statistical tools and research designs used in empirical development economics. Open to students who have completed E201. E213 is strongly recommended.

117347	Data Analysis and Statistical Methods
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B205	2016 FALL	Primary	Robert Nakosteen Robert.Nakosteen@tufts.edu
This course provides an overview of classical statistical analysis and inference. The language and methods of statistics are used throughout the Fletcher curriculum, both in the classroom and in assigned readings. In addition, the language and methods of statistical analysis have permeated much of academic and professional writing, as well as media reporting. The goal is to present a broad introduction to statistical thinking, concepts, methods, and vocabulary.

117468	Data Analysis and Statistical Methods for Business
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B206	2017 SPRG	Primary	Robert Nakosteen Robert.Nakosteen@tufts.edu
This course provides an overview of classical statistical analysis and inference. The goal is to provide you with an introduction to statistical thinking, concepts, methods, and vocabulary. This will give you some tools for dealing with statistical methods you may encounter in your coursework or research while at The Fletcher School, especially "regression analysis," which is covered at the end of the course. In addition, this section of the course has a particular emphasis on business applications. Students who plan to or have completed B205 are not permitted to take this course.

117529	Financial Statement Management
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B207	2016 FALL	Primary	Lawrence Weiss Larry.Weiss@tufts.edu
Accounting is an economic information system, and can be thought of as the language of business. Accounting information provides individuals with a starting point to understand and evaluate the key drivers of the firm, its financial position and performance. This can then be used to enhance decisions, as well as help predict a firm's future cash flows. The present (or current) value of those cash flows provides an estimate for the value of the firm. This course will cover the basic vocabulary, concepts, procedures and mechanics of financial and managerial accounting and the role of accounting information in society.

117583	Financial Statement Analysis
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B208	2017 SPRG	Primary	Lawrence Weiss Larry.Weiss@tufts.edu
This course will provide participants with an understanding of the techniques used to alter and evaluate the key competitive value drivers of a firm and assess the nature and likelihood of future cash flows. We begin by reviewing the basics and remembering the limits of accounting information. Next we deepen our examination of ratio analysis and extend our analysis to build pro-forma (as if, or future) financial statements. Then, we look at certain accounting choices and their impact on financial statements and analysis. Finally, we will study the nature of bankruptcy and how creditors assess this possible end game.

117664	Managerial Accounting
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B209
Management accounting goes beyond the traditional accounting model to integrate dispersed information into a form that is relevant to many of the decision-making, planning, and control activities of the organization. This course has two major objectives: (1) to develop an understanding of the traditional methods of collating and preparing this information; and (2) to develop an understanding of its usefulness in facilitating the decision-making process within organizations. We will cover the basic vocabulary, concepts, procedures and mechanics of managerial accounting, the design of management accounting systems for different operations, and the role of management accounting information in firm operations. One-half credit.

117679	Public Sector Accounting
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B210
2016 FALL	Primary	Lawrence Weiss	Larry.Weiss@tufts.edu
This course is designed to demystify accounting and its processes for those with no prior experience in accounting or finance. Accounting information provides individuals with a starting point to understand and evaluate the key drivers of an organization, its financial position and performance. We will examine the nature of accounting information and how it is used for external reporting, managerial decision making, and to control and align the actions of the members of an organization. By the end of the course, participants will have the ability to interpret accounting information effectively in the government and not for profit sector.

117748	Starting New Ventures
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B212
2015 FALL	Primary	Amarnath Bhide	Amar.Bhide@tufts.edu
The course seeks to prepare students to start businesses in which they have a significant equity interest. It focuses on the necessary knowledge, skills, and attitudes in two areas: how to analyze opportunities quickly and cheaply; and how to secure resources (money, customers, and people) in the early stages of an enterprise. The primarily cased based course also has several guest experts and (in lieu of in-class lectures) extensive pre-class readings.

117764	Leading Transformational Growth

strategies. Although the cases deal mainly with young firms (and thus naturally complement the Starting New Ventures Course) the readings and class discussions cover issues of leadership, organizational development and design, incentives, culture etc. that arise in many settings, including the non-profit sector. Similarly, the course and case discussions also seek to cultivate a holistic pragmatism that characterizes the effective leadership of mature as well as emerging organizations. The final paper can be turned into a capstone project.

117839	Global Financial Services
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B220
2017 SPRG	Primary	Laurent Jacque		laurent.jacque@tufts.edu
The focus is on the determinants of competitive performance of financial institutions including commercial banks, insurance companies, hedge funds, investment banks, and private equity firms. Review of bank management principles emphasizes asset liabilities management, interest rate risk management and Value at Risk (V@R). Discussion of international commercial banking will focus on international trade financing, syndicate lending, project finance, and international securitization. Open to students who have completed B200 or B221 or equivalent.

117859	International Financial Management
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B221
2017 SPRG	Primary	Laurent Jacque		laurent.jacque@tufts.edu
This course develops a conceptual framework within which the key financial decisions faced by multinational corporations can be analyzed. The traditional themes of corporate finance, including working capital management, capital budgeting, mergers and acquisitions, and funding strategies, are revisited in the context of volatile exchange rates, different regulatory environments and segmented capital markets. Focus on foreign exchange risk management including the appropriate use of new hedging instruments such as currency options, swaps, and derivatives. Case studies emphasize how international financial management should be integrated with corporate strategy and operating decisions. Open to students who have completed B200 or equivalent.

118022	Corporate Finance and Banking: A Comparative Asian Perspective
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B225
This course explores major themes in corporate finance and banking in Asia drawing on the diverse experiences of regional actors. Systemic issues dominate the first third of the course, specifically the legacy of bank-centric finance, trends in financial deregulation and internationalization, and crisis. The balance of the course will examine decisions at the firm-level on issues such as corporate ownership, performance, and governance, and capital structure management, across both public and private debt and equity and balance sheet management through the use of derivatives and asset-backed securities. Open to students who have completed B200. One-half credit. analytic frameworks that managers can use to assess the global environment and the options available to MNEs for competing globally. In particular, the course considers the internationalization process, tensions between global integration and local responsiveness, and their implications for organizational design and business strategy. A subset of the course considers the relevance of these concepts and tools to other multinational actors such as international NGOs. The course also provides an opportunity to consider the roles of political risk, the regulatory environment, and civil unrest as factors in strategic decision-making. The pedagogy is primarily case-based, drawing on examples of MNEs based both in the global North and in emerging markets.

118499	Practical Knowledge
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B233
2016 FALL	Primary	Amarnath Bhide	Amar.Bhide@tufts.edu
The course examines how we select, adapt and extend our stock of useful knowledge and practices. The knowledge ranges from individual tasks such as giving effective presentations, to organizational practices for recruiting, managing crises, process re-engineering and human centered design, and even to (drawing on Gene Sharp's handbook) overthrowing dictatorships. Meta-techniques cover topics such as developing checklists (based on Atul Gawande's work) and sharing organizational knowledge and codifying practices. Practical "hands-on" exercises complement the readings and discussions of specific and meta-techniques. The final paper, on a specific practice of the student's choice can be turned into a capstone project.

118528	Strategic Management in Privatizing and Deregulating Industries
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B234
This seminar surveys the literature related to privatization, considering both theoretical perspectives and practice. It also explores current issues shaping debates about how to structure the boundary between public and private sector activity in a comparative and interdisciplinary manner. The seminar examines key concepts and policy issues related to privatization and deregulation, looks at different national experiences, and explores the impact of privatization from an industry perspective. Students should come away from the seminar with a deep appreciation of the challenges confronting executives and policymakers dealing with changes to public sector-private sector boundaries in a variety of different settings.

118577	Leading the Global Corporation
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B235
2016 FALL	Primary	Gordon Thoman	Richard.Thoman@tufts.edu
The course will analyse the major elements required to direct the global corporation from an overall management perspective. Hence, while the course will touch the key issues in finance, human resources, marketing, manufacturing, and other areas, the emphasis will be on integrated, cross functional management decisions and issues, rather than on the detailed technical aspects of each separate area. The course will also focus on the management of change and its related issues. It will draw on readings, cases, and the experience of the Professor.

Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B236	2017 SPRG	Primary	Bhaskar Chakravorti
				Bhaskar.Chakravorti@tufts.edu
This course will prepare students with conceptual frameworks and practical tools for addressing several questions: How does innovation create, sustain or disrupt competitive advantage for international pure- profit and social enterprises, including those targeted at the bottom-of-the-pyramid? How does the international context create distinct situations where innovation influences competitive advantage? How does the rise of emerging markets change the opportunities for innovation and the strategic choice set? What are the challenges facing innovators and entrepreneurial enterprises? The course progresses in four phases. The first phase lays the foundations of innovation as a key strategic lever for disruptive entrants and for incumbents, as well as for those creating a new industry altogether. Subsequent phases build on it by considering the global context, how innovation expands the strategic choice space, and how emerging markets expand it even further.

118760	Field Studies in Global Consulting
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B237	2017 SPRG	Primary	Christopher Tunnard
				Christopher.Tunnard@tufts.edu
The goal of this course is to provide an introduction to consulting as it is practiced worldwide and across sectors. Students will achieve this goal by undertaking a consulting engagement for a real-world client. The first part of the course will include an introduction to and practice in the essential skills that form the core of professional development for consultants at top level firms. Students will then put these skills to the test by completing a team consulting project for a sponsoring company. Open to students who have completed B225 or B230 and/or B200 or with permission of the instructor. Class size will be limited by the number of projects confirmed by external sponsors with a maximum of eight projects, or forty students, being accepted. Input for the project grade will come primarily from the client; team self-evaluations will be reflected in individual final grades. Note: Students are limited to only one "field study" type of course during their career at The Fletcher School. This also includes courses taken outside of Fletcher that are considered field study courses.

118902	Corporate Governance in International Business and Finance
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B239
This module explores business, financial and legal issues affecting corporate governance and management of risk, both in industrialized and developing countries. Students will examine the nature of the corporation, management roles and board responsibility, the role of regulatory authorities, as well as corporate culture, corporate social responsibility, and capital market development. The course will focus on policy implications, including widespread efforts to produce corporate governance reforms and set standards in the wake of corporate scandals and systemic risk. Also listed as L239m. One-half credit.

119021	Financial Inclusion - A Method for Development
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B241
2016 SPRG	Primary	Kimberley Wilson	Kimberley.Wilson@tufts.edu
This course explores financial solutions to eradicate poverty. It sheds light on how financial services to the poor began with microcredit and slowly evolved into an industry that includes mainstream financial institutions, global payment and transfer systems, as well as NGOs and microfinance institutions. The course examines a changing industry from commercial, anthropological, humanitarian, and social service perspectives. The course has no prerequisites

119309	International Marketing
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B260
This course introduces students to the fundamentals of marketing in a global environment. It addresses the problems encountered by all organizations—small and large, for profit and non-profit—as they operate in an international environment. The full range of marketing activities is covered: marketing research, product policy, branding, pricing, distribution, advertising and promotion, customer service, planning, organization, and control. While internationally oriented in nature, the aim of the course is also to build a significant understanding of classic marketing management principles. Non-traditional aspects of international marketing (e.g., nation branding) will also be considered for a variety of constituencies. opinion research to social media analytics, a wide range of contexts, problem areas, and methods are covered that are relevant across disciplines and fields of study. Students will be exposed to the various stages of the research process from recognizing the need for research and defining the problem to analyzing data and interpreting results. Proper design of research methods, fieldwork, questionnaires, and surveys (e.g., online surveys) is covered. Both qualitative (e.g., focus groups, projective techniques) and quantitative approaches (e.g., cluster, discriminant, and factor analysis) are presented. Various analytical techniques are introduced “hands on” via a series of computer exercises and cases (using SPSS and Excel).

119375	Marketing Management
	Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
	EIB	B263M
	2017 SPRG	Primary	Bernard Simonin	bernard.simonin@tufts.edu
The course addresses the managerial, organizational, ethical, societal, environmental, and global dimensions of marketing decision making. The main objectives of the course are to sharpen your skills in marketing decision-making, problem diagnosis, and management skills; to understand and apply some fundamental marketing concepts; to improve your familiarity and understanding with institutional marketing knowledge, terminology, and practice; and to provide you with a forum for formulating, presenting, and defending your own marketing ideas and recommendations. Note: Students having completed or planning to take B260 are not eligible to enroll in this course. One-half credit.

119407	Strategic Marketing for Non-Profit Organizations
	Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
	EIB	B264
This course offers a comprehensive coverage of the fundamental issues in marketing and branding in nonprofits. The aim of this course is to arm students with the analytical skills and knowledge necessary to make, evaluate, and critique marketing and branding strategy decisions facing nonprofit organizations in an increasingly global arena. The course addresses how to craft a nonprofit marketing strategy; implement a coherent marketing plan and optimize the use of marketing resources, develop brand identity and positioning statements; leverage brand alliances and partnerships; and perform financial brand valuations.

119472	Business Groups in Asia
	Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
	EIB	B270
While Asian economies are increasingly important to the world, a full understanding of how such economies are organized is difficult to achieve without some consideration of business groups. This seminar looks at business groups in a number of economies, including Japan, the Republic of Korea (South Korea), the Republic of China (Taiwan), Hong Kong, Singapore, and the People’s Republic of China (PRC). The goal of the seminar is to put Asian business groups in their historical, political, and economic context, and then to examine current conditions in an effort to give some insight into future trends. may also cover selected issues in arms control, international environmental law, and international economic law. We will also explore how these subfields relate to domestic law, focusing on the U.S. legal system as the primary example. Open to students who have completed L200 or equivalent.

123819	International Treaty Behavior: A Perspective on Globalization
Subject: ILO	Catalog Nbr: L209
2017 SPRG	Primary	Antonia Chayes	Antonia.Chayes@tufts.edu
This seminar examines treaty behavior over a broad spectrum of subject areas—including security, environment, trade, and human rights. Approaches to international agreements affect economic, security, and foreign policy in this interdependent world. The seminar examines IL and IR theories of compliance. It explores exceptionalism in treaty behavior—American and other nations. A simulation will familiarize students with the process of treaty negotiation and drafting. The seminar offers students the opportunity to do research in depth on one or more treaties, or the behavior of a given nation or group of nations under several treaties. Prior law courses helpful but not required.

123947	International Human Rights Law
Subject: ILO	Catalog Nbr: L210
2016 FALL	Primary	Hurst Hannum	hurst.hannum@tufts.edu
An introductory survey of international human rights law and procedures, including detailed examination of global, regional, and national institutions to protect human rights. The course traces the development of contemporary concepts of human rights, including issues of universality, whether or not certain categories of rights have priority over others, and the means of creating and enforcing human rights law. The role of non-governmental organizations in fact-finding and publicizing human rights violations is also addressed.

2016 FALL	Primary	Hurst Hannum	hurst.hannum@tufts.edu
This seminar explores the evolution of the concepts of self-determination and minority rights from the nineteenth century to the present. The focus is on changing legal norms, including interpretation of the principle of self-determination by the League of Nations and United Nations; protection of the rights of ethnic, religious, and linguistic minorities; and the articulation of the rights of indigenous peoples. The seminar requires a substantial research paper that analyzes a contemporary situation in which these issues are significant. Open to students who have completed L200, L210 or equivalent.

124114	International Criminal Justice
Subject: ILO	Catalog Nbr: L213	2017 SPRG	Primary
	John Cerone	John.Cerone@tufts.edu
Demands for accountability for mass atrocities have triggered the development of international criminal justice, which has become a significant phenomenon in international relations. This course reviews mandates and operations of contemporary international and hybrid courts, including the International Criminal Court, the UN tribunals for Rwanda and the former Yugoslavia, and the special courts, such as the ones in Cambodia or Lebanon. It considers how they confront impunity for war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide, by trying individual leaders, including heads of state. It analyzes the tension between state sovereignty and international criminal justice, and how the latter is challenged for being selective. It is recommended that students have completed L216.

124164	Transitional Justice
Subject: ILO	Catalog Nbr: L214	2016 FALL	Primary

This seminar considers the range of processes and mechanisms available to ensure accountability for large-scale human rights violations and achieve reconciliation, including criminal justice, truth and reconciliation commissions, and mechanisms, which incorporate local custom, such as gacaca in Rwanda. It reviews some of the philosophical, moral and political considerations pertaining to the challenge of reconciliation in these contexts. This course is taught remotely by the professor. One-half credit.

124286	International Humanitarian Law
Subject: ILO	Catalog Nbr: L216	2016 FALL	Primary
	John Cerone	John.Cerone@tufts.edu
This seminar offers an introduction to international humanitarian law, the body of law regulating armed conflicts. It retraces its evolution, focusing on efforts to mitigate human suffering in war and on the protection of civilians. It considers the challenges posed to the application of IHL by the changing nature of armed conflicts. The topics discussed include: the principles underpinning IHL, the definition and types of armed conflicts, the distinction between combatants and civilians, the regulation of private military and security companies, humanitarian action during armed conflict, the use of child-soldiers, rape as a 'weapon of war,' and other war crimes.

2016 FALL	Primary	Ian Johnstone	ian.johnstone@tufts.edu
Using the case method, this course explores the key court decisions that have helped establish the legal principles that empower and regulate international organizations. Analysis of these cases illuminates the relationship and tension between international law and politics in this area, as well as shows how courts help and hinder the development of international organizations, sometimes in the same case. Additional case studies will focus on contemporary problems facing a variety of international organizations. The debates and assessment exercises will strengthen students' critical reasoning skills, in addition to fostering a sophisticated understanding of the law created for and by international organizations.

124524	Actors in Global Governance
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
ILO	L221
2016 SPRG	Primary	Ian Johnstone	ian.johnstone@tufts.edu
This seminar is designed to explore in a comparative mode various actors in global governance: global organizations, regional organizations, groupings of states, non-governmental organizations, private sector actors, and networks. The first part of the seminar is devoted to theoretical, institutional, and legal issues. Each student then develops and presents to the class an outline for a "Reform Report" on an institution of their choice, taking stock of its performance and offering a vision for the future. Based on feedback from the class, constituted as the 'senior management group' of the institution, the report is finalized and submitted as the major assignment for the course.

124593	International Environmental Law
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:

124948	International Intellectual and Property Law and Policy
Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
ILO	L234
This course will provide an introduction to basic principles of intellectual property law concepts, specifically patents, trademarks, and copyrights. We will examine examples of how intellectual property is infringed and various defenses available to an accused infringer. We will also consider how licensing plays a role in intellectual property business development and disputes. From there, the course will examine the impact of various international conventions and treaties on intellectual property rights. Particular attention will be paid to the protection of intellectual property rights in selected legal regimes; and to the competing interests of intellectual property owners in global commercial transactions. The rapid development and widespread adoption of Digital Technology and the Internet pose serious challenges to long accepted doctrines of copyright and trademark law, and these will also be addressed.

125429	Comparative Legal Systems
Subject: ILO	Catalog Nbr: L251

Course Bulletin

This course covers the two principal legal traditions in the world—the common law and the civil law traditions with exposure to the Islamic tradition and European Union law as well. It is intended for diplomats, international civil servants, business executives, and lawyers. Students will study the historical evolution of the traditions in comparative perspective with emphasis on France and Germany in the civil law and on the United States and the United Kingdom in the common law. The methodology entails study of the underlying legal philosophies of these traditions through analysis of the sources of law, judicial process and judicial review, and through learning constitutional law, contracts, and criminal and civil procedure.

125449	Rule of Law in Post Conflict Societies
Subject: ILO	Catalog Nbr: L252
2015 FALL	Primary	Louis Aucoin		louis.aucoin@tufts.edu
This course studies methodologies used by international actors in promoting the rule of law post conflict. It focuses on eight aspects: constitutional development, code reform, legal drafting, judicial reform, accountability for past abuses, fighting corruption, democratic policing, and local custom. These are strategies for building the basic institutional framework strictly necessary for the maintenance of peace and security in the immediate aftermath of conflict. The course will therefore deal with the restoration/reestablishment of the justice sector and only minimally with economic issues. It includes case studies of East Timor, Kosovo, South Africa, Cambodia, Rwanda, Iraq, and Afghanistan.

GMA	D210
2016 FALL	Primary	Bernard Simonin	bernard.simonin@tufts.edu
This module explores the global strategic and managerial challenges that decision-makers increasingly face in both public and private sectors. It attempts to reconcile their evolving role and competency requirements with the new global business imperative. In particular, the module aims at benchmarking best practices from the disciplines of strategy, management, and marketing, and transposing them to the field of action of the “new diplomat”. This reengineering of skills constitutes an invitation to challenge established organizational wisdom and to adopt new strategic and managerial orientation with respect to a variety of issues (e.g., planning, strategy formulation, internationalization, decision-making, human resource management, customer and stakeholder satisfaction, innovation, image persuasion, and knowledge management).

2016 FALL	Primary	Diana Chigas	diana.chigas@tufts.edu
This course explores the processes, rather than specific substantive issues, of international negotiation. Using exercises and simulations, it examines the nature of conflict in the international arena; the special characteristics of negotiation in the international setting; pre-negotiation and the problems of inducing parties to negotiate; negotiation dynamics; the roles of culture and power; and the strategy and tactics of international negotiation. International mediation, arbitration, special problems of multilateral negotiation, and the follow-up and implementation of negotiated agreements are also examined.

Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
GMA	L220
2016 SPRG	Primary	John Cerone		John.Cerone@tufts.edu
The theory and practice of international organizations (IOs) is a dynamic and increasingly important dimension of world politics. This course provides an introduction to the field, focusing on the interaction between international law and politics in international organizations. It begins by briefly exploring the role of international institutions from the perspective of international relations and international legal theory. We then proceed to an overview of the international legal order as embodied in the United Nations and regional organizations, with a special focus on the function of international organizations as makers and interpreters of the law. The bulk of the course is devoted to the substantive work of the UN and other organizations in three principal areas: peace and security, human rights and humanitarian affairs, and sustainable development. We conclude by stepping back to look at questions about the legitimacy of international organizations: who wields power within the organizations, how is that power wielded, to whom are those wielding power accountable and on what basis.

Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
GMA	L240
2016 SUMR	Primary	Joel Trachtman		joel.trachtman@tufts.edu
This course provides an introduction to the legal context of international commerce. It examines the international legal system, and focuses on international trade law as a major component of the international legal system, with great relevance for international commerce. It examines selected issues within the international trade law system, including tariffs, discrimination, protectionism, health and environmental protection. It also examines selected issues of the regulation of international business, including the scope of jurisdiction, taxation and bribery. It examines contractual forms and legal constraints in private international commercial relations, including the formation of contracts, letters of credit, and international loan agreements. Finally, the course concludes with an examination of the application of some of these concepts to international internet-based commerce.

2016 FALL	Primary	Annamaria Seleny		Anna.Seleny@tufts.edu
International Politics considers contemporary political and economic developments at both the levels of the international system and the nation-state in the context of their historical antecedents. The course also weighs contradictory interpretations of these events; it focuses on "big picture" visions of current events and developments, attempts to extract any essential truths these may contain, and tries to apprehend the historical, political, economic, and cultural factors that militate against them. Part I introduces each topic and is intended to raise questions and provoke discussion during the residency period. Part II delves into each

Global environment and resource policy has in the past 25 years joined human rights and humanitarian and development issues at the forefront of international policy. Developing sound agreements requires an ability on the part of the diplomat, political leader, or corporate decision-maker to understand the scientific basis of the problem, the economic costs of addressing or not addressing it, and the technological and political possibilities for proposed solutions. Increasingly, environment and resource issues are at the core of sustainable development programs. In this course we will examine three issues: ocean fisheries; global climate change and chemicals management as they affect economic development; and trade and human health. We will explore how such issues arise and become part of the international agenda, how treaties are negotiated, and how implementation takes place in industrial and developing countries.

One of the most consequential national security and economic challenges confronting policymakers today is cyber space and the threats that emanate from it. As a domain and instrument of competition and conflict, cyber space enables a range of global actors—including dissidents, terrorist organizations, and states with varying levels of offensive and defensive cyber capabilities—to assert influence, project power, and conduct activities in the increasingly ambiguous gray areas between war and peace. Designed as an introductory course for the national security generalist, this seminar will explore the role of power and conflict in cyber space; examine the various activities that occur in cyber space, including espionage, subversion, sabotage, and the potential for cyber warfare; explore the vulnerability of critical infrastructure and the role of the private sector; and discuss the policies, strategies, and governance structures of key actors that operate within the cyber domain. Underscoring topics throughout the course will be discussions on the role of risk and how policymakers assess threats and adapt to risk in the cyber domain. Prerequisite: Students are required to have completed P240.

Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P272
2017 SPRG	Primary	Sulmaan Khan	Sulmaan.Khan@tufts.edu
This seminar examines the significance of China's frontiers for Chinese foreign policy, Asian security, and international relations. The course will move geographically, taking students from Vietnam to the South China Sea, by way of the Tibetan plateau, Central Asia, the Mongolian steppe, and the Diaoyu (or Senkaku) islands, to name a few. Students will consider the different forces that come into play in a frontier region, such as ethnicity, trade, boundary disputes, and geography. The course is multidisciplinary: students are encouraged to take advantage of perspectives from history, anthropology, political science, economics, and journalism. Students are expected to produce a 15-30 page research paper. The assignments of an annotated bibliography, a précis, and a rough draft are meant to facilitate the writing process.

This course takes a systematic approach to the question of technology based on three questions. What is the economic-historical context of particular technologies? Why do people invest in new technologies given the risks and uncertainties involved? How does a new technology influence the economy and the political environment? We will use the tools of microeconomics to see the common, recurring trajectories that new technologies follow. The goal of the course is to develop a systematic framework based on these what, why, and how questions. By mastering this framework, we can then evaluate a technology in context and avoid some of the confusion stemming from its inherent newness. Students must have a course in microeconomics, either at Fletcher or elsewhere, in order to take this class.

This course uses gender as a key analytical tool to examine states and societies transitioning from large-scale social and political upheaval. It explores key gender dimensions of such transitions and their implications for states, societies and citizens, including those that have moved toward more democratic forms of governance and those that transitioned (or appear to be transitioning) into more authoritarian or fundamentalist regimes. The course balances a population-focused approach (examining the evolving roles, expectations, and norms for men, women, boys and girls) with an analysis of the health, humanitarian, development, security, justice/legal, and governance sectors.

139473Doing Business in India

Subject: Catalog Nbr:
DHP P265

This course will help students understand key issues in doing business in India, with its markets segmented by income levels, geographical distances, and consumer preferences. This course will prioritize amongst these factors by focusing on how to address these differences and understand the evolutions of the policy environment in India. The discussion will include perspectives of different stakeholders from the government and business sectors in India and abroad; examine the industries/activities considered attractive as potential business options; the requirements or permissions needed for doing business in India; and how the Indian Government is trying to simplify/improve its domestic conditions for doing business. This will help us identify the emerging policy and business environment in India, taking account of the likely constraints in terms of power supply, infrastructure, environment, raw materials and cultural factors. The discussion will focus on the Indian situation while situating it in the global context, because the emerging business situation will depend significantly on the likely trends in the patterns of trade and investment, and new international trade regulations being negotiated bilateral and plurilateral trade negotiations.

This course provides a comprehensive examination of the role of private equity in global finance. It is intended to equip students with an analytical framework for assessing the industry and its key participants and to develop practical skills to support possible investment careers. The course is experiential by design and will be structured around two team-based projects that will engaged students directly in critical dimensions of the private equity finance process: fund development, investment analysis and decision-making. The course will cover the full spectrum of issues relevant to a globally oriented private equity firm from the structure of partnership agreements, through capital acquisition, deal sourcing, investment analysis, deal structuring, and exit. The course approach is intended to unite disciplinary rigor in financial and investment analysis with globally applied practices.

Over the course of human history, most political regimes have been authoritarian. In this seminar, we will begin with the classic reading on authoritarianism (including totalitarian and military regimes) but quickly shift our focus to contemporary regimes that have been variously described as “hybrid,” “competitive authoritarian,” or “partially democratic.” Specific topics include authoritarian institutions, elections in non-democracies, political violence, and the political economy of authoritarian states. Finally, since it is impossible to study authoritarianism in isolation from the vast literature on democratization, we will also consider several prominent theories in this tradition. Prior coursework in democratization is helpful, but it is not a prerequisite for this course.

This course provides a critical overview of the development of global health law and the institutions that manage it, within the context of contemporary international law, as well as the structures and features of global governance. The course will focus on the main issues leading the development of international law and governance in the field of health, such as the role of WHO and other international institutions; the complex interactions of public health concerns with international regimes such as those regulating international trade and investments, human rights, international security, and environmental protection; and what the prospects are for further future developments. One-half credit.

	Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
	DHP	P286
	2015 FALL	Primary	Robert Legvold	Robert.Legvold@tufts.edu
This seminar will cover the large challenges facing the U.S. and Russia in the two major strategic arenas where both have vital roles to play: the historic Euro-Atlantic region and the rising Asia-Pacific region. Uniquely, it will be taught simultaneously and in real-time to Fletcher students and graduate students at the Moscow State Institute of International Relations (MGIMO), Russia's oldest and largest professional training program in international affairs. In a period when relations between Russia and the West have deteriorated to their lowest point since the days of the Cold War, the seminar provides students in the two countries an opportunity to interact and collaborate directly with one another in assessing the current state of affairs in U.S.-Russian relations, then moving to a consideration of the key issues that both countries face in these two critical regions, how their policy in one region will or should affect policy in the other region, and what the impact is likely to be on the interests and behavior of the other country. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

140024	Migration and Governance in the Global South
	Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
	DHP	D236
Nowhere are the impacts of human mobility more visible than in the global 'south,' where movements of people in search of profit, protection, and passage continue to shape political, economic, and social configurations. In an era of globalization and urbanization, such mobility can be simultaneously destabilizing and empowering; challenging socio-economic and political structures in ways resulting in both marginalization and opportunities. This course is designed as an ongoing conversation covering migration dynamics and how we understand how and who controls spaces and the people occupying or moving through them.

This course is designed to introduce the students to the study of the relationship between religion and politics. Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P284	2015 FALL	Primary	Konstantinos Lavdas
				No Email on file.
The EU claims to possess capabilities for international engagement in a number of missions and operations: peacekeeping missions, joint disarmament operations, humanitarian and rescue tasks, military assistance, conflict prevention, peace-keeping, and post-conflict stabilization. This course provides an exploration of the EU's capabilities, potential, and limitations as an international actor. An aim of the course is to introduce students to the factors and the conditions associated with the relatively limited role of the EU in international missions and operations and its potential as a 'normative power.'

Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: D224	2016 SPRG	Primary	Nadim Rouhana
				Nadim.Rouhana@tufts.edu
This course integrates negotiation and conflict resolution theory, international negotiation and mediation practice, and area studies within the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Students will serve as active participants in their own learning by examining their ideas with people who have participated in negotiations or mediation in various rounds of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict or senior scholars who have studied this conflict. The first half of the course will explore the Israeli and Palestinian narratives and will review the conflict's historical developments since 1948. It will also review briefly main concepts and theories of negotiation, mediation, and conflict resolution. The second half relies heavily on high-ranking guest speakers from the U.S., Israel, and the Palestinian territories in an effort to give students formal and informal opportunities to interact with professionals who have had first-hand experience negotiating or mediating in this conflict.

140028	Europeanization and the Domestic Impact of European Integration
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P283	2016 SPRG	Primary	Konstantinos Lavdas
				No Email on file.
Addressing the EU's strengths, as well as its weaknesses and limitations, this course focuses on the domestic impact of EU membership on selected EU member states. The effect of the EU on domestic institutions, processes, political culture, and policies, is examined first at a conceptual level and then through case studies of member states. The dramatic crisis of the Eurozone after 2008 provides a critical case study of the limits of Europeanization. It also encourages us to consider possible scenarios for the future.

Through case studies, this course aims to give students the historical powers they need as they go out into the world: empathy, detachment, and relentless skepticism. The course examines the origins of World War I and the analogies the war provoked and provokes, as well as the two paradigms that come up when debating whether or not to go to war: the trouble that flowed from appeasing Nazi Germany and Japan in the run up to World War II, and the disastrous Sicilian expedition embarked on by ancient Athens. The tension between these paradigms is explored through studies of war in Korea, Vietnam, and Iraq. The course will also examine how different readings of history can lead to dramatically different policies; the U.S., Russia, and China tell Cold War history differently and those differences do much to explain their different world views. Armed with knowledge of the many endings of the Cold War, the course will also compare the revolutions in Europe in 1989, Ukraine's Orange Revolution, and the Arab Spring.

How do countries build democratic regimes? What is democratization? What is democracy? These are the core questions explored in this course. Using literatures drawn from international relations and comparative politics, the course focuses on democratization in the Middle East, using intensive case studies of Egypt, Israel, Palestine, Syria, and Turkey, in order to illustrate broader regional patterns. History and geopolitics are emphasized as prominent causal factors and constraints in the region's pathways of democratization. A short review of democracy and democratization literatures introduces the definitional differences (democratic, authoritarian, hybrid) and defining features in regime types, before we move to consider the importance of leadership and institutional factors in sustainable democratization. Invited guest speakers on select cases provide students with access to experts with on-the-ground experience and real-time data.

Western firms with activities in developing countries are increasingly held responsible for a range of issues such as climate change, labor rights and human rights that have previously been seen as outside a firm's sphere of influence. The course explores the drivers of this development as well as social implications for corporations and society. The course examines the following broad questions: What is Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR)? What are some of the main drivers of this new CSR agenda? How can CSR activities best be regulated at home and abroad and by whom? What are new CSR issues and challenges?

This course enables students to develop a nuanced understanding of the central issues and debates in human security, and also develop a deeper understanding of various aspects of the predicament facing the people of a crisis-affected, conflict or post-conflict country, and international organizations mandated to help address their problems. Human security privileges the security and well being of humans rather than the state. A field of study in international affairs and international relations, human security focuses on issues at the heart of human rights, humanitarian affairs, conflict studies and mediation, economic development, health and wellbeing. Human security approaches are inter-disciplinary and problem-focused, and seek to understand a problem from the perspective of the people most affected, which requires an anthropological sensibility and an appreciation of different social-cultural framings of problems. Thus, the course itself is problem-focused. It takes five central fields, which human security has drawn from and influenced – human rights, humanitarian studies, feminist and gender studies, mediation and conflict resolution, and development – and uses foundational theories and applications in those fields to bring a human security lens to better understand and address current problems in Latin America. The course is also inter-disciplinary and involves readings in anthropology, political science, law, international relations, security studies, humanitarian studies, public health and trauma, conflict resolution, feminist/gender studies, economics, environmental studies, and history.

2017 SPRG	Primary	Bernard Simonin	bernard.simonin@tufts.edu
2017 SPRG	Primary	Jette Knudsen	Jette.Knudsen@tufts.edu
This seminar offers an in-depth overview of cross-sector partnerships. The starting point is that finding solutions to today's complex social problems must incorporate the resources and expertise of governments, civil society and business. The seminar addresses collaborations between the public, non-profit and private sectors and highlights different forms of cross-sector partnerships such as multi-stakeholder initiatives, public private partnerships, cross-sector social initiatives, cause-related marketing, and event-sponsorship. The seminar analyses conditions for successful cross-sector partnerships as well as some limitations of such programs. The course also addresses how "multi-nationalization" of business can drive the emergence and configurations of cross-sector partnerships. Finally, the seminar emphasizes the growing importance of social impact assessment for cross-sector partnerships. The aim of this course is to arm students with the analytical skills and knowledge necessary to form, evaluate, and critique cross-sector partnerships and decisions about how to engage in such programs for governments, NGOs and corporations.

This course is designed for students who are interested in learning advanced econometric techniques to answer a broad array of academic empirical research questions. To this end, this course provides a set of theoretical and practical econometric techniques for conducting high-quality empirical research. The curriculum is oriented toward applied practitioners by focusing on research design and methods for causal inference. The course covers several of the most commonly used estimation techniques (i.e., matching, fixed effects, difference-in-differences, instrumental variables, and regression discontinuity). Econometrics (at the level of E213) is a strict prerequisite and may not be taken concurrently.

Informing and influencing the course of public affairs requires an ability to write clearly, explain accurately and be convincing. It also requires an understanding of your audience, including its cultural values and how to reach it through social media. Whether you choose to go into government, the non-profit sector, business or the news media itself, you will have to master these skills for success in the public arena, be it to lead or to affect policies. In this course, we will study how to write analysis, which generally attempts to address questions of why or how or to explain something, and opinion, which focuses more what should be done. Opinion can include value judgments, but you must back both analysis and opinion with facts. You also must provide context and be complete, weighing contradictory but relevant information. You will be asked in the first class to submit a theme, region or country on which throughout the course you will write disciplined, well-written essays of 800 to 1,200 words. Your pieces must have some relevance to public policy today, but can focus on economic, legal, historical, military, business or political matters.

140384	Migration and Human Rights: Movement, Community and Mobilization
	Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
	DHP	D233
This course explores the complex relationships among nationality, citizenship, migration, and human rights. The questions animating this course are the degree to which rights are inherent in human identity and the primary factors that define, promote, protect, or violate the rights of people who move. In considering these concerns, the course explores the nature of social and political community, ethics, and political rationality. The teaching begins with an historical review of the emergence of ideas of universal rights and the universalisation of the nation-state. It then discusses international and regional mechanisms outlining the rights of international migrants and questions the presumed importance of law, documentation and nationality in claiming practical rights and protections. The course concludes with an exploration of human rights practice in cities and towns in the United States, Africa, and elsewhere. The final section looks at strategies for claiming, enforcing, or restricting rights and their implications for a broader understanding of rights.

This course primarily consists of experiential learning through applied group research projects for clients. Students will spend the bulk of the semester conducting two projects for leading development organizations in teams of two to five. In 2015, the clients were the Overseas Development Institute, the World Bank, and the Dutch Ministry of Economic Affairs. At the beginning of the term, lectures will be conducted on the process conducting rigorous-yet applied research. We will discuss the development of testable hypotheses, the acquisition of appropriate data for hypothesis testing, the art of policy analysis, techniques for effective team research, and writing policy memos that are both technically sound and persuasive. Open to students who have completed at least one of the following courses: DHP P250; EIB B284; DHP P257; DHP P254 ; DHP P255; EIB E243; EIB E247; EIB E213 and/or EIB E246. aftermath and the emergence of a series of conventions and covenants establishing human rights as a set of international laws, institutions, and norms. We trace the expansion of, and challenges to, the regime of human rights and international law by focusing on case studies that allow us to analyze war crimes tribunals, truth commissions, the burgeoning field of transitional justice, and local level forms of assessing guilt and administering justice. Our case studies this year include Rwanda, South Africa, Colombia, Guatemala, and Peru.

Agriculture is an essential, politically charged source of economic growth, the primary livelihood for billions of the world's poor, a disproportionate target for government spending, and an irreplaceable source of food and nutrition. It has come to occupy more than ¼ of the earth's surface, wholly transforming the very natural systems on which it relies including biodiversity, hydrologic cycles, nutrient flows, and climatic conditions. Meanwhile, demand for food is projected to double by 2050, posing substantial challenges and opportunities at the intersection of agriculture and the environment. The course is designed to enable students to become informed consumers of cutting edge research, policies and business practices for balancing agricultural production with environmental protection. Specific topics explored will include climate change impacts, adaptation, and mitigation, deforestation, changing demand for agricultural products, determinants of agricultural productivity, and political and economic dimensions of agricultural development. The course will entail lecture, discussion, student-led discussion, problem sets, and a group policy memo. Prerequisites are E211 and E213 or equivalent with consent of the instructor.

Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
EIB	B273
2017 SPRG	Primary	Kingsley Moghalu	Kingsley.moghalu@tufts.edu
This course aims to expose students to African economies in the larger context of the global economy and the continent's quest for prosperity and an interrogation of the "Africa Rising" narrative. The course will examine the impact of globalization on Africa's economies and whether African countries can turn globalization into an opportunity or whether there are alternative paths to economic transformation. Emerging Africa in the World Economy will examine the role of capitalism, entrepreneurship and the private sector in African countries, and the nexus at which business intersects with public policy as a framework for economic growth and development. In this context, the course examines the roles and importance of finance and financial markets, foreign investment, and innovation, using examples from the different parts of the continent.

140892	Leadership: Building Teams, Organizations, & Shaping Your Path
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: B291
2016 FALL	Primary	Alnoor Ebrahim	Alnoor.Ebrahim@tufts.edu
This course explores the fundamental aspects of managing and leading people including: managing one-on-one relationships; influencing team behavior; and motivating and aligning people behind a common vision. It also examines the challenges and tradeoffs in creating a meaningful personal leadership path, especially in the early stages of your career. The course pedagogy is case-method discussion, drawing primarily on cases from the private sector, supplemented with comparative material from the public sector and civil society. This course will provide you with a number of critical concepts and competencies that will be useful in both the short term and long term. It will help you to make the transition from an individual contributor to a manager and, over time, build a career of increasing responsibility as a leader.

140893	Negotiating International Leadership
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: D209
2016 SPRG	Primary	Jeswald Salacuse	jeswald.salacuse@tufts.edu
This module explores the nature of leadership in the international context. Drawing upon academic literature and case studies of influential leaders, the class introduces the various models of leadership and the diverse functions of a leader across a range of international environments and organizations. The basic goals of the course are three fold: 1) to enable students to understand the nature of leadership across different sectors in different international settings; 2) to give students the tools to analyze various leadership situations and problems; and 3) to help students develop leadership skills in light of their own leadership ideas and ambitions. A key premise of this class is that leadership is an exercise in negotiation, a task of influencing other persons to act in desired ways for the benefit of an organization or group. The act of leadership on the global stage – in multilateral organizations, multinational corporations, international non-profits, and diplomatic posts – is particularly complex, and it requires an appreciation of different concepts and cultures of leadership. A key aim of this module, then, is to understand how leaders exercise influence inside and outside their organizations, particularly within the international environment. The course has no required pre-requisites, although a basic knowledge of the negotiation theory and practice is recommended. Cross-listed as EIB B295m.

Subject:	Catalog Nbr:
DHP	D205
2017 SPRG	Primary	Gerald Weitz	Rockford.Weitz@tufts.edu
Over 90% of international trade is carried by sea – the lifeblood of globalization. The world's oceans also present a myriad of opportunities and challenges in international affairs, such as territorial disputes, opening Arctic sea routes, piracy, terrorism, strained fisheries, mineral and energy extraction, marine disasters, whaling, maritime security and technological advances in maritime domain awareness. The course will explore these issues and other maritime topics based on individual student interests. Course format is lecture and discussion. Writing and speaking skills receive considerable attention. No prerequisites other than a lively curiosity.

141018	Science Diplomacy: Environmental Security in the Arctic Ocean
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P259	2017 SPRG	Primary	Paul Berkman Paul.Berkman@tufts.edu
This course will address “science diplomacy” as an emerging interdisciplinary field with global relevance to promote cooperation and prevent conflict among nations. The first formal dialogue between NATO and Russia about security issues in the Arctic Ocean will be used as a case study, team-taught by the two co-directors of the NATO Advanced Research Workshop on Environmental Security in the Arctic Ocean at the University of Cambridge in 2010. The resulting book, which has over 40,000 downloads, will serve as the key text to address the elements of science diplomacy that apply across our civilization: (1) understanding of changes over time and space; (2) instruments for Earth system monitoring and assessment; (3) early warning systems; (4) catalysts of public-policy agendas; (5) features of international legal institutions; (6) sources of invention and commercial enterprise; (7) continuity across generations; (8) and global tool of diplomacy. Overall objective of this course is to consider the contributions of science diplomacy for building common interests among nations so that we can balance economic prosperity, environmental protection and societal well-being – in view of today’s urgencies and the needs of future generations – across our world. This course is designed as a seminar for two hours on Thursday mornings and will be co-taught via videoconference by Professor Paul Berkman at The Fletcher School in Boston and by Professor Alexander Vylegzhanin at MGIMO University in Moscow, involving fifteen students on each side. United States and Russian students will learn together in the shared classroom environment and collaborate on projects throughout the semester, leading to a Mock Arctic Council Ministerial Meeting and shared production of a mock ministerial declaration. This course necessitates early enrollment so that Fletcher and MGIMO students may be integrated into the necessary course systems at both institutions prior to the start of the spring semester.

141019	Eurasia: Geopolitics, Religion, and Security
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P280	2017 SPRG	Primary	Elizabeth Prodromou Elizabeth.Prodromou@tufts.edu
This course explores the intersection of geography, religion, and security in the transregional, transcontinental space of Eurasia, a playing field where Western (mainly defined in terms of NATO and the EU) and Eastern (primarily understood in terms of Russia and its near abroad) are perceived to collide in a zero-sum game. We begin with an introduction to the rediscovery of the tradition of geopolitics as field in IR theory, and we explore the centrality of Eurasia to geopolitical arguments about global hegemony. The course considers the importance of key states and alliances especially, the Transatlantic Alliance, Russia, Turkey, Iran, and Saudi Arabia for control over Eurasia; the importance of technological change for mechanisms of control over land and maritime chokepoints; and the importance of material versus ideational factors in geopolitical contestation in Eurasia. We consider the salience of religion in shaping ideas about Europe versus Asia, as well as in historical and contemporary notions of security threats in Eurasia. The course uses critical case studies (religious, radical, and black market networks; Syria as a fragile state; and Ukraine as a border conflict), as well as guest speakers with expertise on geopolitics, religion, and security in Eurasia.

141083	Gender Theory and Praxis
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P214
2016 FALL	Primary	Kimberly Theidon	Kimberly.Theidon@tufts.edu
This course provides a foundation in key theories and frameworks for understanding gender issues across disciplines. Drawing on key texts from the fields of anthropology, philosophy, post-colonial theory, women's and gender studies, feminist theory, international relations, development economics, environmental studies and beyond, students will explore the role of gender and gender relations across the spheres of social, cultural, political, economic and religious life. The course syllabus seeks to capture the diversity of identities and viewpoints that are reflected in theoretical conversations about gender. While many of these debates are commonly discussed with reference to international studies, this course will also wade into the realm of the domestic, exploring how gender theories manifest in reproduction, labor, and peacetime relationships. Discussions will draw out intersectional themes and invite students to reflect on how to apply these theories and approaches to issues of race, social class, and other dimensions of identity and privilege.

Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P251
2017 SPRG	Primary	Barbara Kates-Garnick	Barbara.Kates_Garnick@tufts.edu
Driven by environmental factors, technology and market conditions, opportunities abound in areas related to conventional and new energy, which is represented by renewables and new technologies. This course examines the role that entrepreneurship, policy and financing taken together play in driving change that impacts traditional energy sources and results new energy opportunities. Energy entrepreneurship and financing together will support and create new infrastructure and require new energy paradigms on both the supply and demand side. The class will meld policy, strategy, finance and entrepreneurship in order to build a coherent framework for integrating conventional and new energy with a focus on both business and the environment. DHP P254 is recommended but not required.

This course focuses on the impact of the contemporary information and communications technologies (ICT) on the interaction between individuals, public authorities, businesses and the non-profit sector. How is technology affecting political, social, and economic relationships? How is it affecting development activities such as agriculture, financial services, education, health services, the security of citizens and their ability to participate in democratic institutions? How can the transformative power of technology be maximised to contribute effectively to inclusive socio-economic growth and equality? The course will build on academic literature, technical papers, blogs, and the expertise of policymakers, intellectuals, and practitioners from both hemispheres to discuss the meaning of doing business, doing good, and being citizens in the digital world, as well as issues related to the governance of the digital society. It will further expand students' understanding of the transformative power of technology, the dynamic interactions between the parties mentioned above, the rights, obligation, expectations of each, and will equip them to assess challenges and opportunities to use technology to foster social and economic development.

	2016 FALL	Primary	George Alogoskoufis	George.Alogoskoufis@tufts.edu
This course examines the Economics of the European Union and the Euro Area. It analyzes the current state of the European Union, its institutional set up, its main policies and problem areas, and its role in the global economy. It also traces the development of the European Union from its origins as the European Economic Community through today's European Union of 28 members, and the development of the Euro Area from the European Monetary System to the creation of the Euro and the crisis in the Euro Area. The course examines both the microeconomics and the macroeconomics of European integration and its impact on the rest of the world, including the USA. No prerequisites, although basic knowledge of microeconomics, macroeconomics and quantitative methods would be useful. specific emphasis on the role of women in peace, war, intelligence, and governance. After grounding gender analysis in international relations theory, the seminar proceeds with three sections. The first section focuses on women in governance. In this section, we focus on women leaders, including those who have served as heads of state (including during times of war), as well as in parliaments around the world. What are some of the stereotypes of women leaders and the challenges they confront in rising to the top? Do women differ from men in such leadership positions? Would state interactions be more peaceful and our lives more secure if women ran the world? The seminar then moves from women in governance to the second broad section: women in warfare. In this section, two characterizations rise to the forefront: women as victims during conflict, including from displacement, sexual violence, and the disruption of everyday life, and then women as combatants during conflict, including in the armed forces, resistance movements, and terrorist organizations. The final section of the seminar examines a range of select topics related to Women and National Security. We explore women as builders of peace through peace accords and post-conflict reconstruction; the experiences of women serving in the Intelligence Services; the day-to-day practical realities confronting women with careers in global affairs; and how men can serve as agents of change for equality.

141623	The Economics of Public Policy
Subject: EIB	Catalog Nbr: E215
2017 SPRG	Primary	George Alogoskoufis	George.Alogoskoufis@tufts.edu
This course examines the economic role of the state and the potential and limits of public policy. It analyzes the rationale for public goods and publicly provided private goods, the role and economic impact of taxation and the scope for public policies and regulation in the presence of economic inequality, externalities, asymmetric information, imperfect competition and other market failures. The course analyzes public policy in areas such as defense, law and order, taxation, education, health, the environment, the labor market, financial markets and oligopolistic markets. It also analyzes the role of monetary and fiscal policy in stabilizing the economy.

141624	Varieties of Corruption
Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: P248M
2016 FALL	Primary	Nancy Hite	nancy.hite-rubin@tufts.edu
The goal of this course is to introduce students to the study of corruption in the global political economy. Corruption is a political phenomenon that affects both the quality of governing institutions and the functioning of economic markets. For this reason, scholars and policy practitioners place considerable attention on, first, conceptualizing and identifying the phenomenon and, then, explaining its causes and consequences. Ultimately this research is aimed at formulating practical methods for reducing corruption's prevalence and harm. The course is organized into three main sections. The first part of the course introduces the topic of corruption and its relevance to international affairs, economic development and comparative politics. The second part of the course explores corruption through the lenses of four distinct theoretical frameworks: economic, rational-legal, institutional and cultural. Here students will be introduced briefly to the methodological toolkits of these varying approaches and critically assess their relative merits. The final component of the course consists of special issue areas in corruption.

2016 FALL	Primary	Nahid Bhadelia		Nahid.Bhadelia@tufts.edu
With increasing globalization of trade, travel and terrorism, public and individual human health have become topics of global concern, involving sovereign nations, international organizations and the scientific community. Threats from emerging infectious diseases outbreaks exemplify this trend. In contrast to the traditional idea of national security, the field of human security focuses on the individual, rather than state, as the nexus of analysis and takes a multidisciplinary approach through which to analyze the challenges related to community, national and global response to emerging infectious diseases epidemics. This course will start by examining human security literature and practice as it applies to infectious diseases threats. It will examine factors leading to increasing frequency of outbreaks due to novel pathogens, such as climate change and environmental degradation, and the concept of One Health. It will then look at the intersection between scientific research and related ethical issues, disease surveillance and global biosecurity issues. Further, the course will examine the historical basis for International Health Regulations and other frameworks for modern global health governance as they apply to outbreaks. Lastly, the class will utilize case studies to examine how outbreak preparedness and response have been managed during recent epidemics such as SARS, H1N1, MERS, Ebola and Zika. This course is meant to foster interdisciplinary perspectives by bringing together practitioners from international law, human development, public health and clinical care.

2016 FALL	Primary	Mihir Mankad		Mihir.Mankad@tufts.edu
Today's leaders must have the ability not only to analyze thoughtfully but also to communicate clearly and persuasively. This course is intended to turn you into a more persuasive and effective public speaker—someone who speaks with the ease, confidence, clarity, and modes of persuasion that are critical in today's corporate, nonprofit, policy, and diplomacy worlds. We will cover a range of speaking scenarios, from podium speeches on values to simulations of a press conference or media interview on camera. The course is intended to help you develop your own personal style by deepening your understanding of the persuasive tools, recommendations, refutations, modes of analysis, and variations in audiences that motivate listeners to turn business, policy and diplomacy ideas into action. Approximately one-half of the course will be devoted to classes that introduce students to strategies of spoken communication and to models of public presentation, including utilizing new media. The other half will consist of speech delivery sessions in which students will hone their skills in public speaking. Enrollment limited to 30 students.

John Burgess	John.Burgess@tufts.edu
This module is an exploration of current issues implicating the Law of the Sea (and in particular the Geneva Convention on Territorial Seas and United Nations Convention on Law of the Sea) with a focus on the South China Sea and Arctic Ocean. It explores the interaction of an international legal regime with the challenges posed by geography, climate change, history, military rivalry, trade and politics, and in turn how an international legal regime can itself influence the course of national conduct, whether through negotiation, adjudication or "lawfare". We will also discuss how the ambivalent attitudes of leading military and commercial powers affect the rule of law in the oceanic context.

The seminar offers an in-depth analysis of selected nuclear issues that today top the U.S. nuclear agenda. The course seeks to explain the genesis and the evolution of these issues and to examine and debate the appropriateness of current policies. The course offers both theoretical and policy perspectives on these issues so as to encourage students to experiment with different theoretical lenses and to familiarize themselves with the constraints and limits of policy formulation in the face of complex and pressing dilemmas.

141743	Non-Proliferation Law and Institutions
Subject: ILO	Catalog Nbr: L264	2017 SPRG	Primary	Ian Johnstone	ian.johnstone@tufts.edu
Existing non-proliferation regimes center around three important multilateral treaties and the verification mechanisms associated with them: the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, the Chemical Weapons Convention, and the Biological Weapons Convention. Recent developments, including concerns about weapons of mass destruction falling into the hands of non-state actors, have raised questions about the viability of existing regimes. The objective of this seminar is to explore these developments from a legal and institutional perspective. Situated in the broader context of the politics and policies of non-proliferation, we will look at the past, present and future of each regime, drawing on current cases to illustrate their strengths and weaknesses. We will look at the key legal instruments, the institutional arrangements for monitoring compliance, and the enforcement mechanisms. Special attention will be devoted to new initiatives that seek to complement existing regimes. More generally, we will consider what – if any - is the impact of international law and institutions in a field that goes to the core of national and international security.

Subject: DHP	Catalog Nbr: D203	2017 SPRG	Primary	John Shattuck	John.Shattuck@tufts.edu
The course is designed to immerse students in the substance and dynamics of US foreign policy decision-making. The class will examine factors contributing to specific international crises, and will debate the real-time choices that faced US government officials who had to address them. Students will develop an understanding of the dynamics of the crises studied; acquire knowledge of the options considered by US decision-makers in framing their policy responses; be exposed to the domestic and international political environment and pressures under which US policymakers made their decisions; and study the interaction between politics and law in US foreign policy making. Enrollment limited to 28 students. everyone's surprise. Since then the former Communist states have evolved into vastly different polities. Some have joined NATO and the European Union, others still oscillate between semi-authoritarian and semi-democratic governance, and a few have reverted to full-blown repression. In this course, we will explore the unprecedented "triple transition" in national identities, political institutions and economic systems that resulted from this systemic breakdown. While due attention will be paid to the main historical developments, the focus of this course will be on theoretical attempts to explain the different developmental trajectories upon which the postcommunist states have embarked. We will cover such topics as state socialism and its collapse, nation-building and ethnic conflict, political parties and electoral politics, civil society, economic reforms, "colored revolutions" and popular protest, and the role of international actors and the EU.

Maritime security is a constant fixture in security headlines. Ranging from territorial disputes in the South China Sea to piracy near strategic chokepoints, maritime security challenges are varied and complex. This course seeks to unravel these challenges by examining the basic foundations of maritime security. These include the key technologies and technological trends which affect maritime security, the role of Great Powers, the importance of chokepoints, and future of non-state actors. Students taking this course will emerge with a nuanced understanding of security challenges in the maritime domain and knowledge of maritime terminology used by practitioners in the field.

It reviews the economics of banking, international financial markets and exchange rate determination, and the financial implications of current account imbalances. It also examines the implications of leverage for the solvency of households, firms, governments and banks. The second half of the seminar focuses on the three major post-1970s financial crises, i.e. the Latin American crisis of the 1980s, the Asian Crisis of the 1990s and the Eurozone crisis of the 2010s. The systemic as well as the country specific causes and consequences of the three crises are also examined in detail.
