By WENDY O'DONNELL

Plans for a student funded campus center were reviewed by a Trustee committee last week and forwarded to administrators for further study, Dean of Faculty Bernard Harleston reported this week.

TCU Senate Chairman Tom Alperin and IDC Chairman Dan Winslow presented the plan to the Trustee Grounds and Buildings Committee Thursday. Sources said that response to the plan was "enthusiastic."

After the presentation, the

Partial divestment supported; TCSAD nixes office occupation

The Trustee Finance Committee (FinCom) recommended last week a partial divestment of Tufts' $46.4 million in investments in 26 companies doing business in South Africa.

The nine-member committee released a nine page statement Friday, just before members of the Tufts Committee for South African Divestment (TCSAD) had planned to take over President Jean Mayer's office in Ballou Hall.

The statement read, "In essence we do not advocate wholesale divestiture, but will sell certain securities under certain circumstances outlined in the statement." No exact estimate were released about what percentage of Tufts' portfolio would be affected if the policy is approved by the full Board of Trustees.

TCSAD spokesperson Barbara Yuill said that 20 of the committee's 60 members were ready to occupy Mayer's office in protest of what she called repeated delays in the the university's response to their demands for divestment. She said that a decision about divestment had been promised by the administration since May 4, however Mayer denied that any such commitment was made.

Yuill added that TCSAD was disatisfied with the Finance Committee's recommendation. "The committee has disregarded the findings of their own advisory committee, as well as the majority of students who favor divestment," Yuill commented.

In its report, the committee noted, "We do not believe that corporate withdrawal is necessarily the most effective action against apartheid."

The full Board is expected to hear the motion on May 19. Mayer, as well as Dean of Faculty of Arts and Sciences Bernard Harleston, Tufts' only black administrator, have both publicly supported partial divestment.

A plan for partial divestment was submitted by Economics Professor Peter Fortune, who

Fundraisers quit

By NEAL SHAPIRO

Three high ranking fundraisers resigned recently, the Observer has learned. Submitting their resignations were Eva Gergora, director of the medical school campaign, Art Lee, director of corporate resources and Joan Polinsky, director of fundraising for the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.

Polinsky said she resigned because her husband had found a new job on the West Coast, however Gergora and Lee both quit because of their dissatisfaction with the new Vice President for University Development Thomas Murnane, sources said.

"I don't feel I can be productive because of my inability to work with the new administration," Gergora said. "I've had 11 good years at Tufts but it's time to make a change," she added. Lee, who is vacationing in Europe, was unavailable for comment.

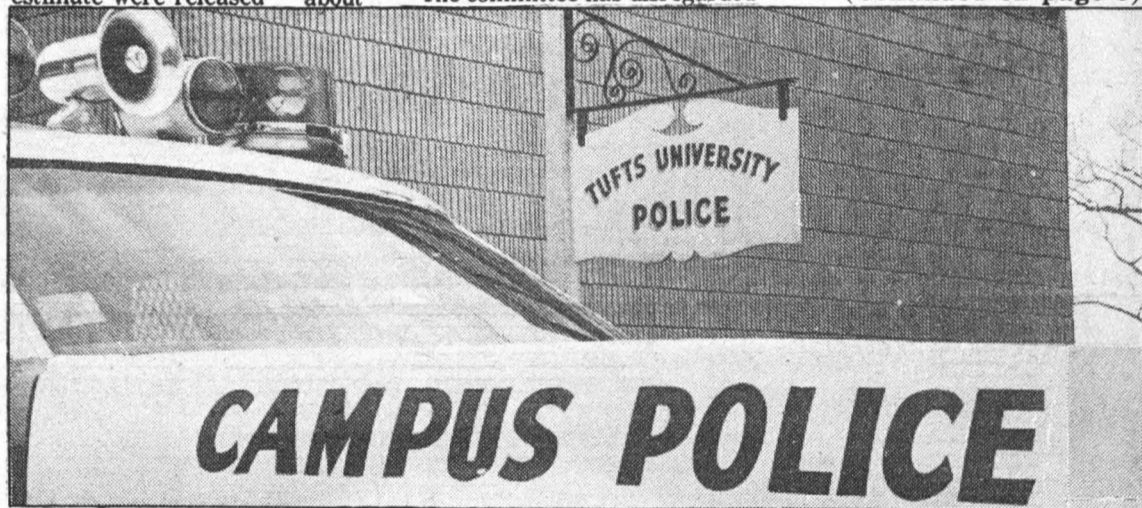

Associate Vice President of Resources Ken Barclay said that the resignations are "bound to have a definite impact on the resources department. How big an impact will depend on who is chosen to succeed them." No replacements have yet been named.

Since Murnane's appointment last January, several administrators have resigned in protest, including Barclay and director of foundations Dick Landau. Barclay said that he expected to leave Tufts by the end of the month.

During her stay at Tufts, Gergora served as director of annual funds and alumni relations for the medical and dental schools, then as director for all annual funds and finally as director of the medical school campaign. During that time, the medical school's annual fund has nearly doubled in contributions, the Brown Daily Herald reported.

The percentage of participation in that fund has been the highest in the nation while the dollar support has been the second highest.

Lee, whose resignation is effective May 31, received his undergraduate degree from Williams College in 1942 and one year later received a degree in Industrial Management. Before coming to Tufts in March 1977, Lee held a number of jobs including vice president at Lesley College and Vice President at the firm of McKessin and Roberts.

Proposals advanced by the Tripartite Committee include an increase in the number policemen and centralization of the key system.

Tripartite tenders recommendations

Security plans forwarded

By NEAL SHAPIRO

Recommendations to improve campus security were forwarded to Dean of Faculty Bernard Harleston and President Jean Mayer by the Tripartite-Committee, the Observer learned this week.

The Committee, composed of students, faculty and administrators, submitted thirteen recommendations, many of which were originally cited in reports submitted by the Burns Security Agency three weeks ago.

Included in the Tripartite report are changes in personnel, budgeting and organization.

Establishment of a security police annex at some uphill location, is recommended. The annex would be open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and be staffed by police officers as well as paid student help.

The report also urges the centralization of the key system. According to the Tripartite recommendation, students who were locked out of their rooms would go the annex and pick up a duplicate key to their room. Students would leave their ID as a deposit and a $10 lockout fine would be imposed.

Resident directors and resident assistants would have increased security responsibilities, according to the Tripartite recommendations. Some of these recommendations would include responsibility for security orientation, according to the report.

According to a policy statement, dorms would be required to be responsible for their own security from 7 a.m. to 1 a.m. Some responsibilities for the Dean of Students are also being considered.

Installation of the Johnson Control JC-80, a computer monitoring system, is also recommended by the committee. In a cover letter to Harleston, Burns agents wrote that fire safety and security "is dependent upon completion of the Johnson JC-80 and although we were told that it would be completed by September 1979, we are not completely comfortable with that statement."

Dean of Students resigns

By JONATHAN POLLARD

Tim Winant resigned his post as Dean of Students on April 27, ending an often controversial five year term.

Winant, who resigned one week after receiving a 26-0 vote of "no confidence" from the TCU Senate, will attend the Harvard Graduate School of Education to pursue a Certificate of Advanced Standing in Administration.

Citing both "institutional pressures and personal interests" as the factors in his decision, Winant said that he was not resigning because of student pressure. His resignation will take effect at the end of August and a national search will soon be conducted to select the new dean.

Winant predicted that his successor will face "serious problems," including "housing, divestment, overcrowding of classrooms and raising tuition costs."

In a letter to Dean of Faculty Bernard Harleston, Winant said that "major happenings" would be needed to "rekindle the spirit of community and restore the confidence which was once so nobly a part of the Tufts' scene."

He told the Observer that his initial experience at Tufts was "pleasurable and enlightening," but added that the atmosphere has changed. "Administrators are exhausted because of the lack of clarity in relationships and

"CONGRATULATIONS. GIVE GENEROUSLY TO THE ALUMNI FUND. CONGRATULATIONS. GIVE GENEROUSLY TO THE ALUMNI FUND. CONGRATULATIONS..."

ONCE MORE WITH FEELING ... It just wouldn't be right if the Observer didn't have the last word, so we decided to do this special Senior Week issue. This week's Etcetera is dedicated and devoted to the class of 1979. No matter where you end up in the future, Etcetera doesn't want you to forget that it's a mad, mad, mad, mad world.

BUT WHO'S GIVING WHO A CORSAGE? ... School officials in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, will allow a high school senior who is homosexual to take a male friend to the school prom. The principal of the school said: "It is my belief that people need their rights protected. Homosexuals have rights. You have to accept that." The superintendent of schools explained: "We've discussed this with our attorney, and we have no legal basis to keep the kid away."

In a similar situation in Rhode Island last month, a gay male student was denied permission to take a male date to his junior prom.

SING, SING, SING ... Mario Rice, an opera singer, has filed a complaint with the Philadelphia district attorney's office after he was allegedly taken into custody by police and forced to sing "Ave Maria" repeatedly.

Rice, who is black, was detained in connection with a drug investigation. He had been on his way home from teaching a voice lesson when he was approached on the street by 2 men who asked him for money to buy wine. Rice was then stopped and searched by four Philadelphia Police Narcotics Officers, who discovered the music that he was carrying. "I was told to sing 'Ave Maria' or get busted," Rice said.

The singer was taken to Police Administration Building in Philadelphia, where he was stripped, searched, and ordered to sing again. "I must have sung the 'Ave Maria' six or seven times," Rice recalled. "One policeman was Irish, and he asked me to sing 'Danny Boy', both verses."

Finally, Rice said, a gun was aimed at him. "I was told that if I had any trouble with the high notes, the gun would help me."

This group's efforts were partially covered by the words "Happy Birthday Neal Shapiro", which were added by another group of artists early this week. Applejam apple logos and the vestiges of St. Patrick's Day's painting further contribute to the cannon's colorful appearance.

But the real question is: Will the cannon be repainted as part of pre-graduation clean up fever, or will alumni and parents be allowed to view the most unique forum for student opinions on the Tufts campus?

THEY NEVER DID THIS ON "FLIPPER" ... The Academy of Applied Sciences in Concord, New Hampshire, is training a team of dolphins to take part in an attempt to find the Loch Ness monster. The dolphins will explore Loch Ness equipped with cameras and strobe lights. Howard Curtis, executive Vice President of the Academy, said "We'll go on as many trips as we need."

FOOD FIGHT! ... Yes, Virginia, there are food fights at Tufts. Carmichael dining hall was the site of victual warfare at lunch on May 2nd. The menu this particular day seemed well-suited to the event, as it included mashed potatoes, cupcakes and apple fritters. At approximately 12:33 p.m., the rowdy, last day-of-classes crowd began launching their accumulated ammunition.

The skirmish had barely begun when an unidentified student stood up and yelled "FOOD FIGHT!". At that point, members of the Dining Services staff poured out of their Carmichael offices like storm troopers to quell the disturbance. One staff member apparently became quite upset when he sustained a blow to his testicles from an apple fritter, but no other injuries were reported.

WHAT ALL YOU PRE-MEDS CAN LOOK FORWARD TO ... This past April 26th-29th were Medical Alumni Weekend and Reunion Days at the Tufts School of Medicine. While their hubbies discussed cancer (and golf scores, no doubt), the doctor's wives had a special "Spouses Program". This program included lectures entitled "Sex Organ Related Facts and Fallacies" and "In What Way Can Universities Help Women in Mid-Career Change?". Ironically, the latter was delivered by former Provost Kathryn McCarthy.

HONESTY IS NOT NECESSARILY THE BEST POLICY ... Andrew Bavas is different. When he was given an automatic salary increase for his job with the department of Health, Education and Welfare, he rejected it. "I really didn't need the money. I had no debts, and my mortgage ends in 2 years," he commented. Bavas was under HEW contract at Northwestern University, where he was an expert on inter-governmental affairs.

But his superiors told Bavas that he had to take the raise; it is illegal for a government employee to turn down a pay increase. "It sounds kind of ludicrous," said the HEW regional director in Chicago. "We'd have been happy to comply with his request, but it's the law."

Not only was Bavas forced to take the raise, but he was also transferred to Philadelphia. "There's no question in my mind that this is a punitive action," he said. Rather than move, Bavas resigned. His comment: "I guess I've got no future as a government bureaucrat."

Etcetera is edited by Dan Weiller, who really hadn't planned to be doing an additional column during Senior Week, but gracefully agreed to when asked. Sources for this last issue include The New York Times, The Boston Globe, New York Magazine, Philadelphia Magazine and Time. Thanks to Steve Wilson and Susan Richard. Congratulations to everybody and have a nice life and this is it for real!

Famed campus journalism figure Neal Shapiro had his "birthday" celebrated on the cannon earlier this week. The new lettering added to the cannon's rather busy appearance.

President Carter has a new "do". White House spokesmen refused to comment on why the President moved his part from the right side to the left. One reporter finally approached the Prez himself: "Seriously, why did you do it?" he asked. "Seriously?" replied the President. "I don't want to be serious about it."

Levertov resigns

English Professor Denise Levertov, a nationally known poet, resigned this week in a dispute over hiring practices. Levertov said she was upset at the teaching appointment made by the English department as well as the hierarchy in the department.

Hiring decisions were made on the basis of competing with certain universities, not to serve the needs of students, Levertov charged. She said that she had hoped that the decision making structure could be changed so that the senior faculty would not dominate decisions.

She noted that there had been some progress towards "giving other members of the department a more equal say," but added that the department had not made enough progress.

Levertov commented that Martin Green had stepped down because he was also upset at the decision making structure.

In addition to her complaints, Levertov said that her resignation was motivated by a desire to write more often. "During my leave of absence this semester, I found out that I write much more when I'm not teaching," she said.

Recommendations sent

Other recommendations listed by the Tripartite Committee include heavy fines for tampering with fire equipment, as well as improvements in campus lighting, increased security at the Sheraton Commander and establishment of emergency telephones around the perimeter of the campus.

The report also notes that "no trespassing" signs should be located on or near all university buildings, and that at least two more policemen should be added to the force.

"Hopefully, these changes will allow the police department to perform police functions," one Tripartite member said. "This isn't a panacea, but it's a good

The committee is composed of a group of five members of the administration, five faculty members and five students.

Representing the administration are Provost Robert Shira, Vice President of Business Affairs and Finance John Mitchell, Dean of Faculty Bernard Harleston, Dean of Liberal Arts Nancy Milburn and Dean of Students Tim Winant. The faculty members are Music Professor Peter Cokkinias, Mechanical Engineering Professor Armand Perlman, Geology Professor Robert Reuss, Psychology Professor Phillip Sampson and Russian Professor David Maxwell. The students on the committee are John Roberts, Steve Triedman, Greg Unis, Marc Weisenthal and Daniel Cohen.

During his terms as dean, Winant was the subject of two Senate investigations. In 1977, after a two week investigation of charges made by then Senate President Paul Davis, a five person Senate subcommittee voted that Winant's performance had been "unsatisfactory."

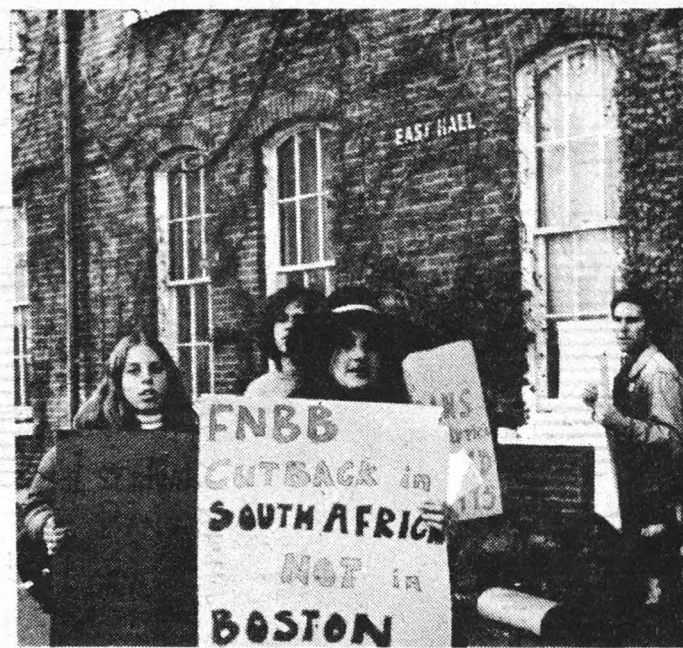

However, the full Senate took no action.

Five months ago, another Senate committee released a nine page report charging that Winant "has practiced a policy of deceit towards students".

In a letter to the Observer, published the day of Winant's resignation, Harleston called in Winant's behalf, for "the understanding, compassion, and generosity of spirit this community is capable of sharing."

Prior to coming to Tufts, Winant served as director of undergraduate residence at the University of Pennsylvania, a lecturer in oriental studies and an assistant professor of history at Illinois State University in 1970 and 1971.

review. Harleston stated that he hopes to have the study completed for a summer meeting of the Trustee Finance Committee.

Funding for the study has not yet been determined, Harleston said, adding that some source of monies will be found. Faculty and staff support for the campus center proposal was also a possibility, Harleston explained.

"I'm excited about the proposal. I feel a sense of need for the center and a great degree of genuine student interest," Harleston commented.

Two weeks ago, the Senate endorsed the concept of student center. The plan presented before the Senate requires the university to float a 30 year bond to finance the project while student payments are used to repay the bond and the interest.

Rough estimates prepared by the Senate indicated that the fee would be approximately $46 per student annually. Students who would graduate before the project is completed would not be required to pay the fee.

Among the facilities which might be placed in the center are a pub, book store, snack bar, mail room, and auditorium.

Criterion late

A personnel shortage caused a one month delay in the publication of the Criterion, according to Director of Public Information Harry Zane.

Zane said that the office was understaffed and that a hiring freeze prevented the addition of any new writers. "Putting out the Criterion with our limited staff caused the delay," Zane explained. He added that the June issue of the Criterion will be published in July, but that no other delays were expected.

Maxwell gets award

David E. Maxwell, associate professor of Russian at Tufts since 1971, was this year's recipient of the Lillian Liebner Award. The award is presented annually to a member of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences who is selected by a faculty and student committee as exemplifying outstanding teaching and advising skills.

The award rotates among the major areas of Arts and Humanities, Social Sciences, and Sciences, and is given in each area only once every three years.

Faculty members serving on this year's selection committee included: Fine Arts Professor Ann Van Buren, Drama Professor Daniel H. Proctor., Romance Language Professor Seymour Simches, History Professor Howard Malchow, Philosophy Professor Roger Gottlieb, German Professor Sol Gittleman, Music Professor William J. King, English Professor Sylvan Barnett, and Classics Professor Thomas

Corcoran. Student members were: Sandra Landow, Noreen Barnes, Joan Spinale, Thorne McCormack, Alison McIntyre, Kimberly Worcester, Jean Cormack, Wendy O'Donnell, Norman Keyes and Cristine Irwin.

Senior shots set

The Office of Public Information is going to send out press releases on most graduating students informing their hometown newspapers that they have graduated and what type of degree was received. Students who would like a photo to accompany their press release should come to the Office of Public Information, first floor of Packard Hall, today between 1 pm to 5 pm.

Med alumna to get honorary doctorate

Dr. Elizabeth DeBlois, will receive an honorary Doctor of Sciences in commemoration of her contributions to the field of medicine and her service to the university.

Dr. DeBlois is a 1930 graduate of Tufts University School of Medicine and a native Bostonian. She received her undergraduate training at Vassar College where she graduated in 1925. After a year at Columbia University, she was enrolled in Tufts University School of Medicine. She received her post graduate training at New England Hospital for Women and Children and undertook a specialty in otolaryngology.

After 28 years of private practice, Dr. DeBlois became a Clinical Instructor at Tufts University School of Medicine, a position she retained from 1959-1966. Her hospital affiliations included Faulkner Hospital, Hahnemann Hospital and the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. She was also Assistant Surgeon at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Dr. DeBlois was awarded a citation from the dean of medical school in April, 1975 in recognition of her "achievements in the field of otolaryngology, her dedication as a teacher and her loyal service to Tufts as a life member of the Millennium Club." The citation stated that "she has brought credit to her class and to her school and honor to her medical profession."

Dr. DeBlois was elected to the Tufts Alumni council in 1957 and had served on the executive committee of the Tufts Medical Alumni Association, the editorial board of the Tufts Medical Alumni Bulletin and was Chairman of the Nominating Committee of the Tufts Medical Alumni Association prior to this

Nobel laureate to get Doctor of Science

Salvador Edward Luria will receive an honorary Doctor of Sciences in praise of his extensive work in the area of human disease.

Professor Luria, a 1969 Nobel Laureate for Physiology or Medicine, was born in Torino, Italy in 1913. He received an M.D., summa cum laude, from the University of Torino in 1935 and then went on to Rome to study radiology and physics at the University of Rome and then to the Institute of Radium in Paris as a research fellow. In 1940, Professor Luria took the position of Research Assistant in Surgical Bacteriology at Columbia University and in 1943 he joined the bacteriology department at the University of Indiana. After becoming an Associate Professor there, he left to become a Professor of Bacteriology at the University of Illinois in 1950. In 1959, he joined the faculty of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. At present, Professor Luria is Institute Professor Emeritus and Director of the Center for Cancer Research.

He is the recipient of two Guggenheim fellowships, one in 1942 to Vanderbilt and Princeton and the second in 1963 to Institut Pasteur in Paris, and is nationally recognized for his research in cellular configuration and the proliferation of viruses and neoplasms.

Professor Luria received the Lenghi Prize of the Accademia dei Lincei from the Italian government in 1965. In 1969 he received first the Louisa Gross Horwitz Prize from Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons and second (a week later), the Nobel Prize for Physiology or Medicine. ## Reinhardt to receive honorary Doctorate

John E. Reinhardt, Director of the U.S. International Communications Agency, is being awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters in recognition and appreciation of his devoted services to the American people.

Dr. Reinhardt graduated from Knoxville College in 1919 and went on to earn his Master's in Science in 1947 and his Ph.D. in 1950 in English and comparative literature from the University of Wisconsin.

He left a position of Professor of English at Virginia State University to become a Foreign Service Officer with the U.S. Information Agency in 1956 at the American embassy in Manila. He later served in Kyoto and Tehran and was named Assistant Director for Africa in 1968. In 1971, he was appointed U.S. Ambassador to Nigeria during which time he became a U.S. Information Agency Career Minister for Information. In 1975 he was named Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs and in 1977 took over the position of Director of the U.S. Information agency. In March 1978, the Senate appointed him as the first Director of the U.S.

International Communications Agency.

Dr. Reinhardt is a member of the Board of Trustees of The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars and the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. He is also on the Advisory Council of the Edward R. Murrow Center of Public Diplomacy of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University.

He is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha, the Council on Foreign Relations, the Cosmos Club and the International Club in Washington, D.C. The National Civil Service League awarded Dr. Reinhardt their Career Service Award in 1971.

Seniors polled: Will they contribute?

This week, the Observer asked soon-to-be graduates if they plan to contribute to Tufts as alumnae, and why or why not.

Brenda Duffy

Sure I will. I think that it is important to give money as an alumna, and the time I spent here was worthwhile.

Warren Reynolds

No, I won't give money until there is a student on the Board of Trustees. There has to be more responsibility and more accountability. The university has lied to students here, and they have been expanding at the cost of the undergraduates.

Henry Valati

Yes. I want future classes at Tufts to be able to enjoy what I enjoyed here. I also would because it's a tax deduction.

Nancy Buetner

I probably will, out of moral obligation. Also, it's trendy.

Ellen Sullivan

Yes. I am on the Jackson Alumna Council, and I believe that it is necessary for the alumnae to support Tufts.

Larry Riefberg

Yes. As an institution, I am committed to Tufts. I'm not committed to the personnel here, though. I want to see the institution continue, but not necessarily with all of the people that are running it now.

Joanne Nordberg

I would not give money at this point, mostly because I'm bothered by the university's expansion policies. I also wouldn't give because of the fact that Tufts hasn't divested their holdings in South Africa. I will give money when the undergraduate areas of the University are expanded or, money to be used particularly for financial aid. I believe in giving money and I want to, but I want to see some changes first.

Danielle Keogh

Yes, eventually. I'll give because Tufts needs equipment; it's lacking in a lot of things. I will definitely contribute to the undergraduate program, to living facilities on campus, and to arts programs.

Aggie Scribner

I won't give immediately, and it really depends on what the university ends up doing. It all depends on how they relate to undergraduates in the future.

Sarah Pease

Yes. I feel Tufts is a worthwhile institution. Dollars and support from the alumni are needed to continue the institution.

Amy Hunter

Yes. If I thought my four years here were worthwhile, then I would contribute. My time here was worthwhile, so I do plan to give money. I will do it to keep the institution going.

Howard Gould

Yes. I won't be able to give for a few years, because I'll be in graduate school. But I really enjoyed my four years here and I got a good education, so I will eventually contribute.

Kate Levy

Yes. I plan to contribute because I love Tufts and I would like to continue to support it.

Alan Simon

Yes. I believe in private education, and I feel some attachment to Tufts.

Carla Tricarichi

I will contribute when I become wealthy. Tufts needs the money, and it is a worthwhile institution.

Tony Benis

Yes, but only to the T.V. station.

Trustee Emeritus receives Dr. of Law

Robert W. Meserve, a Trustee Emeritus of Tufts College and former President of the American Bar Association, is being awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws in recognition of his commitment and service to the legal profession and to Tufts University.

Mr. Meserve graduated from Tufts college in 1931 as a member of Phi Beta Kappa and then attended Harvard Law School and was editor of the Harvard Law Review. In 1936 he was appointed Assistant U.S. Attorney in Boston. During the Second World War, Mr. Meserve served in the U.S. Naval Reserve and was discharged as a Lieutenant in 1946. He returned to his law practice and became senior partner in Newman, Meserve, King and Romero.

He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and is past President of the Massachusetts and Boston Bar Association and the American College of Trial Lawyers. From 1971-1973, he served as president of the American Bar Association.

He was elected to the Board of Trustees of Tufts College in 1955 and was its chairman from 1965-1970; in January of this year he became Trustee Emeritus. Also in 1973, he was the recipient of the Hosea Ballou Medal, a University Honor second in distinction only to an honorary degree.

Mr. Meserve is a former President of the Tufts Alumni Association and remains in-involved in alumni relations and fund raising. He is a former member of the Medford School Committee and member of the Medford Board of Aldermen.

Since 1974, Mr. Meserve has been the Chairman of the Massachusetts Board of Overseers and is currently a member of the firm of Palmer and Dodge in Boston.

Stephen P. Mugar is being awarded an honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters in recognition of his devoted service to humankind.

Born in Armenia, Mr. Mugar came to America in 1906 at the age of five. In 1916, with borrowed money, he established the first store in the chain of Star Markets, of which he is the founder.

He has been honored with several awards including the "Democracy in Action" award presented to him in 1966 by President Lyndon Johnson and the Citizen of the Year Award in 1975 from the American Armenian Citizens League.

He is a Trustee of Colby-Sawyer College and Northeastern University and an honorary Trustee of Boston University and Suffolk University. He is also a Fellow of Brandeis University.

He is well known for his philanthropic support of academic institutions and is best known by the Tufts community for his donation of funds for the erection of Mugar Hall at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.

De Blois to get honorary doctorate

Dr. DeBlois is a distinguished member of several medical societies including the American Medical Association and the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology. She is a member of the Chilton Club in Boston, the National Society of Colonial Dames and is listed in the Boston Social Register.

Seniors celebrate

By DAVID KLINE

Finals are over, the people have gone and the campus is dead...no, wait...there are some detectable signs of life. But who?...Of course!...Seniors!

When all the others have left, the seniors have remained behind for a last fling in the area before pulling out and going their separate ways. It's Senior Week.

For one last week, these people are putting aside all thoughts of the great big world out there and are trying to cram in as much time together in one week as is humanly possible.

Tufts University and the Senior Week Committee are helping out in this respect by setting up a number of appealing events for the seniors to use as an excuse to congregate.

Despite the treat of rain, almost 300 seniors turned out for Tufts Day at Fenway Park to watch their bleoved Red Sox clobber the opposition for one last time.

Following the game, there was just enough time to shower and dress before charging off for a night of loud music and bright lights at Celebrations in Kenmore Square. The place was mobbed, mostly with Tufts students, and they celebrated for well over five hours.

Senior Week had begun with a bang and there was much left to come. According to rumors, the entire campus is planning to turn out for both the Castle Hill Party and the Booze Cruise on the following night. Thursday brings Tufts to Symphony Hall for a Pops concert, supposedly the highlight of the entire week.

In addition to these events, there are or have been numerous parties and concerts scattered all over campus as the Committee has done their best to keep the seniors occupied.

However, even with all that is going on around them, most seniors are finding time for sitting back and reflecting on the events, places and especially the people that have made their four years so special.

Senior Week offers them a chance to be together once more, with no pressures, no headaches and no deadlines...probably the last time for many. It's a special time.

Congratulations!

Art Ark hits mark for "art for the heart"

By ROD PERLMUTTER
"The art world today is like the Emperor's new clothes: people want to be perceived as "appreciating" art. But art should not be just for rich or "cultured" people "appreciators" of this type, because then art becomes sterile. What we are looking for is art that has heart," said Debbie Strick, one of the founding members of Somerville's newest art gallery, the Art Ark. The Art Ark, a new community fine-art-and-crafts store and gallery will open its doors to the public on Saturday, May 19, for what it calls "a gala grand-opening-celebration-party." There will be free entertainment and refreshments, and a wide selection of art and quality handmade goods for sale, with prices ranging from $.30 to $1,000. The artists will be at the gallery, which is located at 46 Holland Street, (in Davis Square right up the street from Steve's Ice Cream) from 1 to 5 p.m.

The Art Ark is unique, in that it handles both fine art by professional artists, as well as hand-crafted items by a diverse cross-section of the community. The members of this artistic coop believe that the opening of their store is part of "the cultural renaissance happening in the area." Furthermore, the coop members want to create a "friendly atmosphere, where artists and friends can meet and exchange ideas."

The Art Ark is a coop of six Davis Square residents who wanted to work where they live. Debbie Strick, who will teach a new course in the Experimental College next year entitled

"Visualization and the Photographic Symbol," emphasizes that the gallery is open to contributions and is continually accepting new works. Above all, the new contributions "should be worthwhile, because so much art has been separated from what people really need."

If you're looking for "art that has heart", drop on by the Art Ark, or call 623-9776 or 776-4606 for more information.

Senior standouts celebrated

All of New England was surprised when the unseeded combination of Eric Schottenstein and senior John Jeka captured the Class A doubles championship in the New England Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament at Williams College last weekend. The achievement marked the first regional championship in Tufts tennis. Jeka's victory highlighted his four year career and capped a 7-3 season at the no. 1 singles position.

Captain and Most Valuable Player of this year's team, Jeka led the Jumbos to a winning season. He is now representing Tufts for the last time at the NCAA Division III Championships in Jackson, Miss.

While Jeka and Schottenstein were capturing a land victory, the sailors were launching their own attack in New London, CT. At the Coast Guard Academy seniors Paul Duane and Doug McKeige split skipper's duties in A Division to lead Tufts to the New England Dinghy Championships. McKeige also finished third in the New England Singlehanded Championships on May 13 and will end his Tufts career by competing in the North Americans.

There are many other graduating seniors who have made significant contributions to the Tufts athletic scene over the past four years.

On the gridiron, defensive tackle Mark Buben amassed an impressive collection of honors, including All-New England, All-East, and Division III All-American recognition. His 90 tackles this season, 12 of which were quarterback sacks, and his 10 pass deflections, earned him the Golden Helmet Award and the Herald American Defensive Player of the Year Award. He is expected to sign a pro football contract soon.

Another major contributor to the Jumbo squad has been tight end Don Leach, who is the first Tufts player in ten years to have been awarded a $1500.00 NCAA post-graduate scholarship as outstanding student-athlete. Leach, named Tufts' Outstanding Offensive Lineman and Tufts' Outstanding Offensive Back for two consecutive years, is also co-captain of the baseball team. On the diamond he is starting third baseman and batted .261 this season.

Although the soccer team had its troubles this year, highlights were the performances of Majid Mahrez and Rich Seaman. Mahrez led all scoring with 5 goals and 2 assists and was elected MVP. Co-captain Seaman was named to the Greater Boston All-Star team for the third consecutive year.

The field hockey team also had its problems, although the outstanding efforts of team MVP Kitty Atkins provided some relief. In the Tufts nets for her fourth year, Atkins averaged 18 saves per game for a season's total of 199. Atkins closes her career with a 75 percent save average over four years.

The most impressive team of the fall season was the women's tennis team. Paced by top-ranked Judy Jacobs, the women finished their best season ever at 11-1. Jacobs posted 9 wins against 2 losses en route to her third MVP selection in four years.

The men's swim team finished its season with its usual flair. Co-captain Steve Colbert led the team to a 10-0 record, and became the first Tufts swimmer to qualify for the NCAAs in six events. His four-year career has seen him elected three times to the All-American team and twice MVP.

While the men were working towards their first undefeated season, the women were also swimming to their best year ever, led by three-time captain Julie Billingsley. Billingsley, who is only the second woman swimmer ever to win a varsity letter for four years, broke her own team records this year in the 500 free and 400 free and medley relays.

At the other end of Cousens Gym, senior Mark Craigwell was making his presence felt on the basketball court. Captain and MVP, Craigwell led the team in both scoring and rebounding this season with an average of 13.5 points and 8.1 rebounds per game. Over four years he has started 91 of 93 games on a team with an overall record of 55-38.

Meanwhile, the women cagers were enjoying their best season ever, 10-5, led by Captain Rowena Nelson. The senior, who has been team captain for two years, was second leading scorer this year with 149 points for an average of 9.9 points per game.

Basketball is not Nelson's only concern, however. As co-captain, she skippered the women's sailing team to fourth place in the New England. The two-year letter-winner also sailed to fourth place in the New England singlehandeds to finish her undergraduate career.

Paced by seniors Mike Drummy and co-captain Al Bonneau, the men's indoor track team ran up a 7-2-1 record this season. MVP Drummy was the best Jumbo runner in both the mile and the 1000 yd. run with times of 4:17.1 and 2:18.3, respectively. His final contribution to Tufts athletics was a second-place finish in the Jumbo Stampede last weekend.

As spring approached, first baseman Kevin O'Brien took the field for the Jumbos' baseball team. The co-captain and four-year letter-winner won the Alex Elias Award for Outstanding Contributions to Tufts Baseball. In his final season he batted .273 for the Jumbo squad.

The women's lacrosse team, led by seniors Sarah Pease and Nina Fisher, posted a 5-5-1 record this season. Pease was the third leading scorer with 17 goals and 8 assists, while Fisher scored a record 39 goals and 7 assists to make her final year her most successful ever.
