Senate Approves PIRG Funding

by Anthony Everett

The second meeting of this year's TCU Senate confronted and resolved two old problems: the funding option of MassPIRG and the re-institution of the shuttle bus service between Tufts and Cambridge.

A statement submitted last Monday from Bobbie Knable to the Tufts chapter of MassPIRG stated that the interpretation by the Trustees of the mandatory refundable negative check-off system would "make impossible any refundable policy by PIRG." They feel a refundable system will not protect the "integrity of the tuition and fees billing system" despite the fact that such a system was overwhelmingly supported by the Tufts community last year.

In response to this action the Senate passed a new proposal for MassPIRG policy in which students will be given the opportunity to have $6 of their student activity fee go to support PIRG or have this money instead be used for Student activities. The decision as to which activities would receive this money would be made by a "referendum of the members of the TCU Senate not supporting PIRG." This will fulfill the two goals of PIRG: making the organization accountable to the students and not placing PIRG in competition with any other student organization.

Senators Kevin Thurm and Chuck Greenberg introduced separate proposals for the Shuttle bus and after a debate on each proposal a Senate vote followed. Thurm's proposal passed by a vote of 15-10 with two abstentions and provides that service will be provided between Tufts and Cambridge on Fridays and Saturdays from 7pm-3am. The service will be funded by money from the Senate for a trial period of four weeks after which time the status of the service and the need for more money will be evaluated.

In other business, Treasurer Pedro Williams revealed that due to a bur-sar's error students were charged a student activities fee of $49 instead of the necessary $53. However this $4 error will be corrected on next semester's bill. Vice Chairperson Mara Glickman stated that on October 5th there will be a student-faculty committee conference designed to unify the students and the faculty members of the various student-faculty committees.

At the end of the meeting Chairman Phil Swain yielded the floor to a non-member Ken Beck. Beck proposed a resolution to dissolve the TCU Senate and create a new system under a new constitution. Beck feels that "a sweeping change is necessary to restore credibility" to this important student institution. After some discussion among senators the matter was tabled to give Beck time to present copies of his new constitution to the Senate. (see related article)

Student Proposes Dissolution of Senate: Offers New Constitution

by Bill Frechtman

"Resolved: that the TCU Senate be dissolved, the TCU constitution be replaced by the proposed new constitution of the Student Government of Tufts University," read Ken Beck to the Senate at its meeting Sunday night.

A non-member of the Senate, Beck was allowed to address the Senate, by Chairman Phil Swain. Beck read his resolution referring to Article VII, Section A of the present constitution. The constitution provides for a campus-wide referendum if 100 signatures are obtained in support of the measure.

Beck states that his intent is to "give a university of our prestige a student government in the same realm." He explained that sweeping change of the structure of the Senate is necessary.

It was brought out at the meeting, however, that a committee chaired by Parliamentarian Seth Godin has already been formed to review and modify the Senate constitution. Beck was invited to join the committee which is open to all students.

In an interview yesterday, Beck stated that at this time he has no plans to participate

Beck's constitution provides for Senate representation by large dormitory and small dormitory districts, and a President chosen by campus-wide elections. The President has veto power and a series of checks and balances exists which allows for overriding vetos.

Commenting on Beck's resolution, Swain said that the effectiveness of the Senate would come to a stand still. "Right now we're working on three or four important projects

Let's Think Ahead

Last Saturday the Tufts football season premiered. Unfortunately the date coincided with the Jewish High Holy Day Yom Kippur. When this scheduling conflict was discovered last January by Marc Litner, a team member, Director of Athletics Rocky Carzo, Rabbi Jeff Summit and President Mayer were made aware of the situation. The bottom line then was a team vote, in which only two members voted to support an effort to reschedule the game for a Sunday.

When any form of activity happens to fall upon a religious holiday of whatever import, it is incumbent upon the individual to decide whether to participate or not. Sandy Koufax chose not to pitch a World Series game because it fell on Yom Kippur, as Marc Litner and Bruce Cohen chose not to play for the Jumbos last Saturday.

But now the issue turns to 1984 when a similar conflicting circumstance will arise. The administration should use the leisure of four year's time to effect a change in the schedule. The issue to be dealt with is not that two or three Jewish members of the team may be excluded from playing, but is much broader. In short, a large segment of the Tufts community and its alumni are excluded from a university event because it is scheduled on the most important holiday of the Jewish calendar. The administration and athletic department must consider the importance of the holiday as well as the importance of breaking down every barrier blocking student support of athletics. This is clearly a large one.

From time to time comments from the editors will appear under the staff-head when issues warrant attention. The editorials reflect the majority opinion of the editorial board. As well, letters to the editor and essay-style contributions will be published that do not reflect the opinions of the entire editorial board.

Letter to the Editor Protest Letter Upsets Student

To the Editor:

This is in response to the letter to the Editor from members of the Women's Center printed Sept. 18. I agree that the quality of the film "Deep Throat" was very poor and it could easily have been found offensive by members of the Tufts community. But why do you feel that the members of Psi Upsilon had to consider your feelings before showing a film? Do you feel obligated to consult other student organizations before planning your own activities? If you didn't want to see the film, then I hope you didn't go. But there is no room for censorship and the narrowmindedness that you advocate on this campus or any other.

Corrections

In yesterday's issue of the Tufts Daily, the article headline "Candle Blamed for Morning Fire" reported that the fire was extinguished by the Tufts Police. Actually, the fire was initially put out by the resident director of Hill Hall, Steven Pressman. When the campus police arrived they found the fire smouldering and extinguished the remains.

In addition, smoke from burning books and clothes set off the smoke alarm and not smoke from the tile floor as was reported.

Medical School Dean Candidates

by Nancy Young

The committee in charge of choosing a new Medical School Dean has narrowed the number of candidates under consideration to a dozen or fewer according to Vice-President for Planning Jack Dunn, who is on the committee.

Dunn said that the search committee should have a nominee to recommend to the President and the Board of Trustees between mid-October and early November.

The committee is seeking to replace the former Dean Lauro Cavazos who resigned this year to become President of Texas Tech University. Murray Blair is currently the Acting Dean of the Medical School.

In the first stage of the search which was completed this summer, Dunn said, the committee compiled a list of 150 names for consideration by placing ads in newspapers and journals and calling likely prospects.

The committee now has a list of ten to twelve "interesting people," Dunn said, and will proceed to interview them in sessions running until mid-October.

From the current candidates the committee will pick two or three "candidates who are interested in us and in whom we are interested," Dunn said. He added that the committee will bring these candidates to Tufts Medical School for extended stays of two to three days.

Dunn said the committee hopes to recommend the final candidate to the President in time for him to be approved at the winter Board of Trustees meeting.

if the Senate was dissolved," said Swain, "it would kill a lot of our accomplishments."

"I think there are flaws in our present structure," he added, "but it's something we can work with, and we are examining it ourselves."

Swain pointed out the structure of elections and judicial review as areas for review.

The decision of the Senate was to table the resolution until Beck's constitution can be presented to all of the Senators. The next step would be for the Referendum and Election Committee to establish if the resolution and constitution are clear. A referendum would then have to be held if 100 signatures are presented in support.

"I don't know where I would fit in right now," said Beck who was class president of his high school. "The issue is not me it's the constitution."

"A Wind in the Door" (with apologies to Madeline L'Engle)

by Shelley Crunden Cole

In the plays MacBeth, Richard II, Cymbeline, and Julius Caesar, William Shakespeare shows us that our fate is the result of choices we make in life. But unlike some Shakespearean characters, characters trapped and unable to alter their choices, we real people can change our minds. I recently changed mine.

When I arrived at Tufts University five years ago, the "light on the Hill" dimmed a bit as the word "townies" cemented itself in my vocabulary. Not that townies was a new word, I first encountered it during my three year stay at a girl's boarding school in Connecticut, but it was a word I hoped to forget. Unfortunately, I did not.

At Tufts, townies became more than just a word to me; its mention elicited fear. Like the Pavlovian dog that salivated in response to the sound of a bell, I became afraid when someone mentioned the word townies. Not any more!

Three weeks ago, I started an internship at Medford High School. The students that I work with changed my perception of local teenagers. To my amazement, the teenagers at Medford High did not carry chains and knives (maybe I should cancel my Time magazine), but were students, students eager to learn. I realized after my first day at Medford H.S. that my fear of townies was nothing more than prejudice. I had constructed my opinions from stories, not from experience.

Overcoming my fear made me dissatisfied with the Tufts and Medford communities, whom I believe contributed equally to it. And this dissatisfaction is good. Dissatisfaction, in its non-violent forms, is an engine of social advancement. It helped us overcome slavery, pestilence, and the daily drudgery of housework.

It is remarked that impatience is the vice of the intellectual; but, conversely, a certain impatience is the lubricant of progress. Many of us continue our schooling because we are impatient with our current knowledge and wish to acquire more. Arguing over the League of Nations after World War I, one student, ardently opposed, reminded his peers that joining the League would breed an unwanted familiarity with other nations, and that familiarity breeds contempt. The student arguing the affirmative replied, just as ardently, that lack of familiarity breeds nothing at all.

This is a form of impatience. I, impatient, urge the Medford and Tufts communities to become more familiar. Remove the invisible barrier that separates us! If blame can be placed and perhaps it cannot be, then both sides are at fault. The seeming misuse of intellectual power that perpetuates mutual misunderstanding makes me wonder if there is a repository of learning, is there necessarily a repository of wisdom? Better relations between the Tufts and Medford communities can only be beneficial for all.

(Shelley Cole is a graduate student at Tufts University.)

Let the Sun Shine In(doors)

by Ona Dike

The American public has become accustomed to fast service. For a quick meal there is always McDonalds and for a fast photo finish a local Fotomat. It seems appropriate then for a fast tan, there is a Tropical Tan.Center.

The nearest tropical tan center is located in Davis Sq. Somerville. The center is well decorated with plants and a large photograph of a beach scene on the wall help to create a tropical atmosphere. A make-up counter and a jewelry stand are also provided for the customers. The center, equipped with three suntan booths, boasts that customers tan in only minutes. Supposedly, one minute in the booth is equivalent to an hour in the sun.

The suntan center was opened in June this year and has attracted quite an eclectic clientele: body builders, along with Tufts students, frequently visit the center. The tan center entices young adults, both men and women, in the 20's and 30's. The center receives about four hundred customers a month.

According to Mr. Vaughn, the manager of the center, the tropical tan business has been booming since its birth eighteen months ago in Arkansas. In that short period of time, as many as one thousand five hundred centers have sprouted throughout the country. Besides the center in Somerville, there are others located in Arlington, Harvard Sq. and Stoneham.

Concern has arisen within the past year that such intense exposure to ultraviolet rays may cause cancer. Mr. Vaughn, however, dismissed all skepticism by stating that "The Food and Drug Administration have set up guidelines which have to be followed for the protection of the consumer." He strengthened his statement by adding that the Mass. General Hospital uses the same tanning method as a form of treatment for their patients.

It costs thirty nine dollars for twenty visits which averages about sixteen dollars a month or two dollars a visit. Therefore, an average students can afford to become a member. The center is open weekdays from 10am to 7pm and Saturdays from 10am to 5pm.

Senate Passes Shuttle Bus Plan

by Paul Van Osdol

The TCU Senate Sunday night approved a plan to finance a shuttle bus between Tufts and Harvard Square. The plan goes before the Senate Financial Committee Thursday night. The shuttle according to Senator Kevin Thurm who proposed it, has a "good chance of getting FinCom's approval.

The proposed "Senate Shuttle Service" would cost students 25¢ pre-paid, or 50¢ as they boarded the bus. It would run Friday and Saturday from 7pm to 3am, leaving Tufts on the hour and Harvard on the half hour.

Thurm proposed the plan after determining the shuttle bus would be self-sufficient. Running the shuttle would cost the Senate $1300, which they would hope to get back at the end of the year. If approved by FinCom, it would run on a trial basis for four weekends, then run indefinitely if it pays for itself. In January, the Tufts Cooperative Agencies would assume co-responsibility for operating the shuttle.

The administration has said hands-off to the plan but has given it tacit approval. Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences Larry Ladd called it, "a reasonably good idea."

Senator Chuck Greenberg wanted to amend Thurm's plan by scaling down the hours of operation to 11pm to 3am. This would save $55 to $60 a night, he said until a demand for the shuttle is established. Thurm, however, said the eight-hour plan is necessary, since the Senate is "looking to create a demand." The shuttle bus "provides a service for the university," he said, and "definitely improves the Senate's image."

Women's Center Protest

Angered over the screening of "Deep Throat" on September 11, the Women's Center is planning a strong response according to Gail Koplrow, Coordinator of the Center. The movie was sponsored by the Psi Upsilon Fraternity.

"We...feel that both our senses and intellect have been insulted by the showing of the hardcore pornography film 'Deep Throat' on this campus," wrote the Women's Center in a letter to the Tufts Daily last week. "We are offended by the members of the Psi Upsilon Fraternity who were insensitive to us and our feelings as people," continued the letter.

Ms. Koplrow described the center's response as a reaction to the insensitivity demonstrated by the fraternity, not out of a desire to censor the campus. "No one in the Center supports censorship," she stated.

The center plans to send a letter of protest to the Psi Upsilon National Fraternity Chapter in the near future, as well as to the Psi Upsilon officers at Tufts, outlined Ms. Koplrow. However, "no approach to the administration has been planned," she said.

SENATE, CONTINUED

In an address to the Senate, Swain made clear the approach he hopes they will maintain. "There is a difference between setting high goals and seeking a loud profile," explained Swain. "We'll raise our voices only when it's necessary, and by being selective about the times we do raise our voices, the effect will be that much greater." He went on to say that "the measure of a student government is not how much noise they make but rather how much they can accomplish."
