Defending Constitutional Liberties

March 27, 1992

The Honorable Lawton Chiles
Governor, State of Florida
The State Capitol
Tallahassee FL 32399

Dear Governor Chiles:

In an effort to protect constitutional liberties, I am strongly committed to the concepts of personal privacy and the right of individuals to make decisions about how to lead their lives. That's why I support the current anti-discrimination bill that has passed the legislature.

In the past, the courts have always served as the guardians of our freedom and protectors of individual rights. That is no longer the case. So we must now look to state governments and legislatures to provide protection from unnecessary intrusion into our personal lives.

Surely someone's job should not be jeopardized because they participate in a legal and socially acceptable activity, at home, in their free time. This Bill goes a long way towards protecting people's personal lives. Florida citizens can be trusted to make their own personal decisions.

Sincerely,

Susan Gluckman
