

Power

Power is something that everyone wants in this life-time, rather it is a position to be in control of something or someone, we all want power! Should anyone have power over the next person or over anything in this world?

Power is what allows the world to function at a certain level, so we all can create or destroy in the moment of having power, power is all around us on an everyday basis and we cannot live without it being apart of our lives or survive without having power

Power in the wrong hands can cause death and create war, power in the right hands can turn the good bad and bring many to a place of darkness, power is a way of life in some form or fashion and we all desire to have it! Some more than others!

Power controls us all, even if you obtained power someone is always more powerful than you and someone is more powerful than them, think about it, who has power over you? The answer is the system in which we live has power over us all!

The most power any of us have is the power of the brain providing more power from the thought to create power, power is within the eyes, power is within the words we use flowing from the tongue, power is in the might of the arm, without the power of the mind would there be such a thing called power?
