

TABLE OF CONTENTS

A Security Strategy of Transforming Societies

| | |
|---|----------|
| NEWT GINGRICH WITH MARK KESTER | |
| From Stabilizing to Transforming Societies | |
| as the Key to American Security | 5 |
| Former Speaker Newt Gingrich and Lieutenant Mark Kester describe the values, mechanisms, and reforms necessary to achieve long-term security through transforming societies that generate groups irreconcilably hostile to the existence of the United States and the West. | |

Ambassadorial Conversations with The Forum

BARBARA BODINE

| | |
|---|-----------|
| Interview with Ambassador Barbara Bodine..... | 17 |
| The Forum sits down with Ambassador Barbara Bodine, the first senior U.S. diplomat deployed to Iraq after the fall of Saddam Hussein's regime, to discuss prospects for Iraq, life as a hostage in Kuwait, the joint investigation into the USS Cole attack in Yemen, and the 9/11 commission. | |

ASHRAF JEHANGIR QAZI

| | |
|--|-----------|
| Interview with Pakistan's Ambassador to the United States, Ashraf Jehangir Qazi | 29 |
| Pakistani Ambassador Ashraf Jehangir Qazi talks to The Forum about the India-Pakistan proposal for peace, and A.Q. Khan's illicit nuclear activities. | |

British Political Leadership from Churchill to Blair

"British Political Leadership from Churchill to Blair" was the topic of The Fletcher School's first annual London Alumni Symposium held on December 6, 2003. The following papers are based on the three presentations given at the symposium.

GWYN PRINS

| | |
|---|-----------|
| A Class Act | 39 |
| Gwyn Prins writes that the key to understanding leadership in Britain has remained constant, from Churchill to Blair: economic class, and the manner in which politicians are able to relate to class differences, is the political variable that most determines the difference between success and failure. | |

DEBORAH NUTTER

| | |
|--|-----------|
| A Focus on Foreign Policy | 53 |
| Tony Blair has made his reputation in foreign affairs, despite coming to office expecting to leave his mark in domestic policy. Deborah Winslow Nutter puts Blair's foreign policy leadership in historical perspective. | |

MICHAEL DOBBSIn Churchill's Footsteps: How Blair Bombed Out65

Michael Dobbs compares the political leadership styles of four of Britain's most notable prime ministers—Clement Attlee, Margaret Thatcher, Tony Blair, and Winston Churchill.

*New Trends and Solutions in Africa and the Middle East?KEN MENKAUS*A "Sudden Outbreak of Tranquility:"*Assessing the New Peace in Africa73

Ken Menkhaus considers whether the continent's recent period of relative tranquility is merely a lull in violence or the dawn of a new peace that portends something more permanent.

NEAL DONOHUEHow Business Strategy is Transforming Rwanda91

As Rwanda observes the 10th anniversary of the genocide, Neal Donahue explores the role of the private sector in rebuilding the economy of Rwanda, using the coffee industry as a case study.

ALLISON HODGKINSBeyond Two-States: Alternative Visions of*Self-Determination for the People of Palestine109

Allison Beth Hodgkins argues that the two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict rests on mistaken notions of law, history, and practical reality, and urges the parties to consider the merits of collective self-determination.

*The Future of International Regimes:
Organizations and PracticesMARK MALLOCH BROWN*After Iraq: U.S.-UN Relations127

The UNDP Administrator speaks at The Fletcher School, sharing an optimistic outlook on the Iraq War and the future of U.S.-UN relations.

ADAM SMITHDrifting Toward Insignificance or Increased Relevance?*The UN Following the Iraq War—Learning from Other Institutions.....133

Adam Smith claims that the past experiences of U.S. relations with the International Court of Justice, NATO, and the UN suggest that recent U.S. rebuffs of the UN-system will serve to strengthen, not enfeeble, the UN today.

JAMIE MAYERFELDThe Democratic Legacy of the International Criminal Court.....147

Jamie Mayerfeld argues that the ICC is an ingenious means of bolstering democracy and encouraging its spread, and, therefore, deserves support from those who believe in democratization as the key to protecting fundamental human rights.

NATASHA BAJEMA AND MARY BETH NIKITINAssessing Nuclear Maturity: Determining which States should have Access to what Nuclear Technology157

Natasha Bajema and Mary Beth Nikitin describe how enduring weaknesses in compliance and enforcement mechanisms have been lost in the debate on nuclear proliferation and advance a new approach to proliferation threats.

JACQUELINE BHABHAMoving Babies: Globalization, Markets, and Transnational Adoption181

Jacqueline Bhabha discusses the growing market in babies, a relatively new form of commodification of human beings, and offers a critique of some of the legal and policy initiatives used to address the problems.

*Reflections on a New EuropeROBERT ROTBERG*Timing is Almost Everything: Obstructionist Leadership, Cypriot Style199

Robert Rotberg highlights the importance of timing in positive leadership positions, as seen through Rauf Denktash's role in the Cyprus negotiations.

BARTOL LETICAEurope's Second Chance: European Union Enlargement to Croatia and the Western Balkans209

With an emphasis on the experience of Croatia, Bartol Letica discusses the frameworks for EU enlargement in the Western Balkans and the significance of enlargement for Europe and the United States.

Publications by the Fletcher Community231

The Fletcher Forum of World Affairs aims to provide a broad, interdisciplinary platform for ideas and opinions in international affairs. While we do not expect readers to agree with all of the opinions expressed in these pages, we do hope that readers expect, and value, the publication of divergent and often conflicting viewpoints. This diversity stands behind the very definition of a "forum," i.e., a public meeting place for open discussion. While the editorial board is responsible for the selection of articles, the opinions expressed here are solely those of authors and do not reflect in any way the opinions of The Fletcher Forum or The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.
