PUBLICATIONS BY THE FLETCHER COMMUNITY —

The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, established in 1933, is the oldest school of international affairs in the United States devoted exclusively to graduate study. The fundamental mission of The Fletcher School is to provide high quality and multidisciplinary teaching and research in the fields of law, diplomacy, economics, history, politics, business and regional studies. As a service to our readership, and in an effort to provide a wider audience for the innovative work being done by our faculty, students and recent graduates, The Fletcher Forum includes a partial listing of recent publications by the Fletcher community.

Sugata Bose, Professor of Diplomacy, is the editor, along with Ayesha Jalal of Nationalism, Democracy and Development: State and Politics in India, published by Oxford University Press, 1997.

Hurst Hannum, Professor of International Law, is the author of "Rights of Persons Belonging to Minorities," in Manual for Human Rights Education, published by UNESCO, 1997. He is also the author of several articles including "Ethical Partnerships Between the Beverage Alcohol Industry and Scientific Researchers," in British Medical Journal, November 1997 and "Commentary on the Dublin Principles of Cooperation Among the Beverage Alcohol Industry, Governments, Scientific Researchers, and the Public Health Community," in Alcohol & Alcoholism, December 1997.

Michael W. Klein, Associate Professor of International Economics, is the author of Mathematical Models for Economics, a textbook published by Addison Wesley Publishing Company, 1997. He has also co-authored, with Graciela Kaminsky, "The Dollar/Pound Real Exchange Rate and Fiscal Policy During the Gold Standard Period," in Modern Perspectives on the Gold Standard, Cambridge University Press, 1996.

Carnes Lord, Visiting Professor of Diplomacy, is the author of "The Past and Future of Public Diplomacy," in Orbis, Winter 1997-1998.

Lisa M. Lynch, William L. Clayton Professor of International Economic Affairs, is the author of "A Needs Analysis of Training Data: What do we Want, What do we Have, Can we Ever Get It?" in NBER Conference on Research in Income and Wealth: Labor Statistics Measurement Issues, published by University of Chicago Press, 1997. She is also the author of "Do Investments in Education and Training Make a Difference?" in Policy Options, July/August 1997 and is the co-author, with Sandra E. Black, of "How to Compete: The Impact of Workplace Practices and Information Technology on Productivity," a National Bureau of Economic Research working paper n. 6120, August, 1997.

Alfred P. Rubin, Distinguished Professor of International Law, is the author of Ethics and Authority in International Law, published by Cambridge University Press, 1997. He has also revised his earlier edition of The Law of Piracy, published by Transnational Publishers, including a new final chapter. Professor Rubin has also written several articles including "Is the Law of War Really Law? Review article of Geoffrey Best, War and Law since 1945" in the Michigan Journal of International Law, 1996 and "Dayton and the Limits of Law" in The National Interest, 1997.
