To Fred Dayton Lambert

a friend to whom we owe more than we shall ever know, this Jumbo Book published in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one is humbly dedicated. He literally lived for us and died for us.

Although Dr. Lambert had the charm of unassuming modesty, we who have known him appreciate the immeasurable loss which Tufts College has suffered in his passing. That restless, tireless energy, that love of work for work's sake which was one of his chief characteristics could not but be reflected in the attitude of his colleagues, his students. To those who knew him his infectious enthusiasm and genial good nature were a revelation and a challenge. His work was of a nature peculiar to himself. He taught not subjects but students. The spirit of the artist and the desire for perfection ingrained in Dr. Lambert was, by his particular effort, made a lifelong trait of those who worked with him in the laboratory. His unremitting devotion to those who came to him and the success of his intense desire to clarify matters in their minds inevitably caused them to leave with a feeling that something worthwhile had been added to them. Never did Dr. Lambert think of himself. Perhaps it was over-devotion to us and lack of consideration of self that took him from us so soon. It is the untimeliness of his departure rather than the manner which is to be regretted, for he often expressed the hope that he might, to use a phrase of his own, "die in the harness".

Foreword

Tradition dictates that the function of a college year book shall be to present a record of the achievements of the college through the current year. The 1931 Jumbo Book seeks to transcend tradition in attempting to present a record significant not only of this college year but of the new era into which Tufts enters more fully with every passing year. New buildings and more adequate facilities are her constant bounty. The student body responds with a new spirit of pride and optimism. If this volume has succeeded in depicting this new spirit, then indeed will the efforts of its editors have been rewarded.

COUSENS

A.B., LL.D.

John Albert Cousens, our President and our Exemplar. A man of keen business sense and of deep and genuine sympathy and kindness. Practical and at the same time friendly. Laboring ceaselessly for us as he works for the good name of our Alma Mater. Our benefactor and the deserving recipient of our esteem and affection.

The President's Message

To the Editors of the 1931 Jumbo Book:

Permit me to speak a word of appreciation and commendation of the work in which you are engaged. The publication of the book you are preparing will be of real service to the college. Although, of course, I am unaware of the material you will use, I speak with confidence because a standard has been set for you in other years. Your book will be of special interest and consequence to members of the senior class but no undergraduate can afford to be without a copy. Among my own most precious possessions are the Annuals—they were not called Jumbo Books then—which were published here during my own student days. The full set of student year books which are preserved in the College Library form a very important part of the historical record of the College. They serve in a definite and peculiar way to register the progress of the College. Your book will find a worthy place among them.

For a number of years past our Jumbo Book has contained the picture of at least one new building—the latest evidence of our material prosperity. Last spring as I viewed the present year in prospect, I thought with regret that a break would come in a building program which I had prophesied was to be continuous, but Theta Delta Chi, cooperating with the College, came to the rescue and I presume a picture of their fine new fraternity house will adorn the pages of the Jumbo Book of '31. Perhaps you will think it appropriate to include the architects' sketch of the first unit of the new Physical Education Plant. I suggest the architects' drawings because, though construction ought to be under way as early as the middle of April, there will be little to show of the actual work by the time you have to go to the printers.

The year of which your pages will be in part a chronicle has not passed without its measure of sadness. Professor Fay and Professor Lambert have gone from us. Their lives were so interwoven with the life of the College, they were so long, so definitely a part of what Tufts College has been, they live in what the College is and will live in what the College is to be, but their helpful, kindly presence is sorely missed.

Very truly yours,

John A. Cousens,

The Deans

Administration of the Academic work at Tufts College on the "Hill" is directly managed by the Deans of our five schools.

The oldest and largest school on the Hill is that of the Liberal Arts. It was the immediate result of the "Educational Convention" held in New York in 1847. The School of Liberal Arts is the parent of the many schools that have sprung from it. This school opened in 1855 and its first degrees were conferred in 1857. The purpose of this was originally and still is to broaden the student and fit him culturally for life. Frank George Wren, Dean of the School of Liberal Arts, has held this position since 1907, and prior to his becoming Dean had been actively connected with the College as Instructor and Professor since 1893.

It was due to the activities of members of the Universalist denomination that our College came into being. They felt that the time had come to establish an institution of higher education for the young men of their faith. It was natural, then, that as soon as expansion were possible a Divinity School should be the first addition. Lee Sullivan McCollester, a graduate of the School of Religion in 1884, has been its Dean since 1912.

Although an Engineering Course was given as early as 1865 the School did not approach its present proportions until much later. The Department of Engineering was founded in 1898. The School of Engineering organized on its present plan, was established in 1902. George Preston Bacon, Professor at Tufts since 1919, became Dean of this School in 1929.

The departments of Tufts were first opened to women in 1892. Seventeen years later the women became a separate department of Tufts called Jackson College. The giving of a different name to the women's department did not mean, however, that their courses or faculty were not the same as that of Tufts. They have continued to be as much a department of Tufts as before. Dean Edith Linwood Bush received her A.B. degree from Tufts in 1903 and in 1920 became a member of the Faculty. She was made Dean of Women in 1925. The aim of the Dean is to be a sympathetic advisor to the girls and especially to guide the new students toward a happy adjustment to the campus life.

In 1892 a Graduate Department was created at Tufts. Under this department were those who took advanced work beyond the regular college requirements. The Graduate School, with its own Dean and Faculty, superceded the Department in 1909. Herbert Vincent Neal has been Dean of the Graduate School since 1924.

The History of the Class of 1931 at Tufts

"History," quoth our old friend Carlyle, "is innumerable biographies." Still, one such as this is quite properly in a class by itself. Although our friends and associates contributed largely to its making, underlying it all we feel there is something quite indefinable that Tufts held for us even before our coming, which, after the vividness of personalities has faded, will remain to us as our heritage of the four years on the hill. Our history merely relates the experiences—lived possibly a bit differently by us than by preceding classes—which time fashions into a rich and priceless gift, the memory of college days.

Before the Class of '31 was many hours old, it was introduced to the quaint custom of physical examination. This we found was conducted in two parts, a general and of course scientific one offered free of charge by the officials, and a second one of a more detailed nature, which the Sophomores chose to administer with instruments having the general contour of barrel staves. After several applications of the last-named, we began to realize that a good share of our college career was behind us. The Sophs with studied deliberation had delayed these ancient rites until one A.M., deeming that at such an hour a fair majority of co-eds would be shut in for the night, and thereupon marched us beneath the windows of Richardson. We were received with open windows and consequent soakings, sponsored by the retiring damosels and through the courtesy of the Metropolitan Water System. This, we were told, was tradition, and we accepted it as such, feeling that at least it was highly symbolic. As this ceremony had brought us together initially, so would the Rez forever after.

Soon after Tower Cross explained the procedure of a class banquet. We were to play hound and hare with the Sophs until we caught them, and then finish them off to the tune of the cat and the canary. Victims were to be bound and stored away in cellars, barns, or the library stacks, and such students as could wriggle loose or regain the partial use of their limbs would attend their respective banquets. What promised to be a joyous frolic on the campus proved to be a whole-hearted fracas in which two of the class of '30 retired for the benefit of medical attention and several more were reduced to righteous slumber. Both banquets were a success. In fact members of Tower Cross, who incidently supped with us, declared they were to the fullest extent.

Before and after this memorable event the two classes engaged in various athletic contests. In football and cross-country we performed to good advantage, but basketball and wrestling went to the credit of the foe, and to this day it is not clear whether the class of '31 could fly their flag or not. Some say we didn't know the ropes well enough to do it anyway.

Meanwhile officers had been chosen: Fred Case, president; Jack Pedersen, vice-president; Anderson, secretary; Charlie Baker, treasurer; Sid Palmer, marshal. During this year the football team had enjoyed an undefeated season, and soccer was added to Tufts sports. Little did twelve of the class realize they would later be members of the newly-established Tau Beta Pi. The new Jackson dormitory, Stratton Hall, became of more than passing interest to travelers of Talbot Avenue, and most certainly made the Chem building a much more attractive bit of property for the college.

It had been a good year. We got more attention than we ever hope to get again, and saying farewell, we generally agreed to meet the following fall in the Bursar's office.

The Sophomore year had hardly begun when it became apparent that the incoming freshmen were a virile and vigorous lot, a fact which has been later attested by their athletic prowess. In fact after the first few days, in which they had had time to learn their numbers, class contests invariably found us underneath, once as much as over our head in the Mystic River. The jamming of the previous year had resulted in such copious mayhem that it was decided the underclassmen should indulge in a rope-pull. A bitterly cold day was selected, and after the teams were lined up on the respective sides of the river, it suddenly dawned on us that although we had the weight of years, our opponents represented their class almost to a man. There was but one heave and our members entered the pure depths of the Mystic. Even the redoubtable anchor man, Bus Moulton, met the same fate, and Mr. Ibarguen, girded in a pair of flannels which had been the brightest spot on campus for weeks, was lost to view momentarily. Although the following fact is uncorroborated, witnesses of the scene have recorded that Mr. Thornton was among those who received an immersion, and to the great loss of the college a current humor magazine which he had been carrying about in his hip pocket was totally destroyed. The tug of war was the motif for class contests, and the historian for the sake of tact will leave the rest to the receding memory of his classmates.

We elected for officers that year Palmer, president; Godfrey, vice-president; Blodgett, secretary; Russell, treasurer; and Pedersen, marshal. During the year we witnessed the completion of the Memorial Gateway, and through that we had better metaphorically pass to the events which followed.

Our Junior year was perhaps the most enjoyable of the four. We held to a lesser degree the position of the Senior, but yet were not too close to graduation and employment agencies. The background of the previous years enabled us to better appreciate the scholastic, athletic, and social activities open to us. The climax of the year quite logically came with the Junior Prom and Junior Day, and we may thank Ivy Society for providing so well. We had elected the following to that society: Ockert, Morton, Reese, Welsh, Farquhar, Russell, Littleton, Arlanson Godfrey, and Meserve.

The Gym was effectively decorated in red and black, and Mr. Seiler furnished further support to the color scheme with his midnight catering crew. One hundred couples at one time or another danced to the smooth rhythm of Saunders' Seranaders. Junior Day dawned clear (merely hearsay) and our festive numbers ventured forth with assurance that the new blazers would be true to form and not maroon the white flannels somewhere or other. Directly after the Ceremony of Awards, the colorful assemblage and several reporters flocked to the library steps to hear Joe Thornton deliver his Ivy Oration, in which he gladdened some three hundred hearts by announcing his friendship to the co-ed. We are at this date still wondering which one he meant. Thereafter Tom Reese and Jack Pedersen, presidents of Ivy and the class respectively, did the hole-in-one act with the traditional sprig of ivy. The ensuing Horribles' Parade was won by the A.T.O.'s, who impersonated Byrd's Trip to the Antarctic. Fraternity spreads and a Tufts baseball victory over Bowdoin featured the afternoon, while evening activities were too multifarious for your scribe to record here.

Pedersen, president; Godfrey, vice-president; Thornton, secretary; Littleton, treasurer; and Arlanson, marshal served as our officers for the year. The erection of the new Theta Delta Chi house occurred in the spring, marking the line of annual additions to Tufts buildings unbroken during our first three years. The athletic teams were successful that year. Football won five, tied two, and lost but one game; baseball won nine of fifteen; wrestling lost but two dual meets, and the basketball team suffered but three defeats in a thirteen game schedule. Lacrosse was introduced as a new sport and was supported by thirty-five candidates.

At press time the history of the Senior year is necessarily incomplete, and thus unfortunately it will be impossible to record here the various graduation speeches and other items of personal interest which would be of novelty to my readers.

We elected for our officers Littleton, president; Godfrey, vice-president; Thornton, secretary; Morton, treasurer; Arlanson, marshal, while Tower Cross is composed of Reese, Pedersen, Ockert, Littleton, Meserve, Godfrey, Arlanson, Blodgett, Thornton, and Gibbons.

On November 21st a forum of prominent business men and economists was held at Braker Hall to disucss unemployment. As a special feature large numbers of our class crowded the hall and lent to the discussion an atmosphere of great authenticity. Also notable in the annals of finance is the consolidation of the Tufts and Jackson dramatic societies, The Three P's and The Masque, which was consummated last year, but which went into active operation this fall. Now known as the "Three P's" it is enjoying considerable reputation as one of the first recognized college holding companies of its kind.

Those of our numbers to receive the honor of initiation into the Phi Beta Kappa were Bregman, Goldings, Laminan, Meserve, Ockert, Perlman, and Ransom. The Senior members of Tau Beta Pi are Ballou, Michelson, Gibbons, Parker, Muskovitz, Killion, LeCain, Hayes, Taylor, Arnold, Betts, Godfrey, and Marsh.

Our football team with Lou Manly serving his first year as head coach won five and lost two games, one of which was with Brown. For the first time in the history of Tufts wrestling our team won the New England Intercollegiates at Providence. Soccer was recognized as a major sport, and of particular significance is the recent announcement of plans for the new gymnasium, which we trust will not be too obsolete when our own progeny attend Tufts.

Class, or Evacuation Day, as it is familiarly known by seniors, is in the hands of Ibarguen, Maclaren, Welsh, Morton, and one Mr. Pluvius. Here unfortunately the chronicler wavers on the brink of prediction and must therefore leave the rest to Who's Who.

HAROLD F. ORDWAY, Historian

The History of the Class of 1931 of Jackson

Years and years ago, back in 1927, the present Senior class appeared on the Hill only one fourth as educated and sophisticated as they are now. They can remember taking intelligence tests, having their features photographed for the office records, and going to a Freshman reception. Gradually growing used to the quaint customs of the college they elected officers: President, Betty Peabody; Vice President, Maddie Snow; Secretary, Betty Austin; Treasurer, Helen Hugo; Marshal, Betty King; All-Around Club Representative, Elizabeth Loud; Press Representative, Scottie MacDuffie.

The Seniors can tell tales, too, of how they suffered at the Freshman Sing; how Mad Snow was chosen as the average freshman and even had her picture in the papers; how Talbot Avenue looked before a real sidewalk and road were laid; how Elaine Smith captained the Juniors and Freshmen against the Seniors and Sophomores in Basketball with a final score of 1-1. We can remember the Tufts and Jackson Glee Clubs all dressed up, standing on a raised platform in the Chapel and singing "The Banner of St. George." A big event in February was the desertion of Paige Hall and several dormitory reception rooms for the newly completed Stratton Hall. To you who consider Stratton as the home of the wealthy, let us tell how its skeleton looked, how far from its present quiet peace the building process was, how funny it smelled when the paint and wallpaper were newly applied, and how we used to go on frequent inspection tours, tip-toeing around among building materials.

In February we heard Arthur Guiterman speak in the Chapel, and in the same month, but not as a direct result, we elected officers, with Betty Peabody as President, Mad Snow as Vice President, Kaye MacKinnon as Secretary, Helen Hugo as Treasurer, Betty Austin as Marshal, and Ruth Libbey as Historian. Spring activities happened one after another with determination. There were Freshman play tryouts, Goddard Prize Reading Tryouts, with Kaye MacKinnon as one of the six candidates, the Junior-Freshman dance, the Annual Baby Party when we thought we were smart to capture the Sophomore banners, and the All Around Club dance, the last time it was held in the Gymnasium. We beat the sophomores in Volleyball 68-36, and carried off the Volleyball Championship. Jackson Day, our chance to impress the sub-freshmen, was rainy. "Rich Man, Poor Man" was presented as the freshman play under the Committee: Thelma Cowey, Dorothy Hand and Dorothy Hancock. Our orchestra made its appearance at that time. Junior Day awards brought forth still another group of officers.

When Sophomore year began the Traditions Committee was chosen, which set about plans to give the freshmen as good a time at their Sing as had been enjoyed the previous year. Interclass events were a field hockey game with the freshmen who won 12-0 and a debate with the freshmen on the Chapel Question which seemed then to loom up as a matter of great importance. We went to more College Teas and the Senior-Sophomore dance. College history was marked by the new Ballou front door and the thrilling Talbot Avenue Murder.

By our Junior year, the Chapel question was settled after the authorities had tried about every sort of service except those held at sunrise or by candle light. The hockey teams was presented with new tunics, the novelty of which probably caused them to beat the freshmen 9-1. There were rumors of a joint banquet with the men, the first of its kind ever proposed, but plans changed and we had ours alone in April at the Hotel Commander. Just as though it had not been enough to almost let us have a banquet with them, the men got Joe Thornton to pick on the co-eds on Junior Day.

Senior year started auspiciously with Phi Beta Kappa elections which included Elizabeth MacLean, Betty Peabody, Betty Currie, Kaye MacKinnon, and Helen Roetzer. The Thetes built a new house which affected the female percentage of 1931 that spent its Saturday evenings there. We kept hearing more Alumnae Hall and Panhellenic went so far as to give a dance for the financial benefit of this dream, yet to come true. Academic awards gave the privilege of Commencement speaker to Elizabeth MacLean, Chapel Orator to Kaye MacKinnon, Tree Orator to Elizabeth Peabody. The officers to pilot us through the last year of our stay were announced as: President, Ruth Libbey; Vice President, Kaye MacKinnon; Secretary, Dorothy Hancock; Treasurer, Charlotte Starling; Marshal, Betty Peabody; and Historian, Ruth Holmes. The Presidents of the different organizations were also announced; Panhellenic Association, Betty King; Student Council, Betty Peabody; Athletic Association, Ruth Fedor; All Around Club, Dorothea Loughlin; Pen, Paint and Pretzels, Kaye MacKinnon. Nineteen thirty-one chose Mildred Robinson, Charlotte Starling and Marjorie Moles as its Class Day Committee.

We were reminded that we were almost alumnae by an invitation to an Alumnae Association meeting. The Senior-Sophomore dance took place again with the realization of our being the Senior part of the combination. Then Spring vacation marked the last release before eight weeks of school, final exams, Prom and Commencement, when the Class of 1931 will leave its past that has been filled with good things, for its future which is still unknown.

Tau Beta Pi

DELTA OF MASSACHUSETTS CHAPTER — ESTABLISHED IN 1927

National Honorary Engineering Fraternity
Founded at Lehigh University in 1885

Tau Beta Pi is a national honorary engineering fraternity. Delta Chapter was founded at Tufts on December 16, 1927 to provide recognition for excellence in scholarship and collegiate achievements of engineering students. Members are chosen from the upper eighth of the Junior Class and from the upper quarter of the Senior Class. The association sponsors literary meetings and this year introduced the innovation of arranging special engineering trips to new scientific or commercial developments of special interest.

Sword and Shield

Sophomore Honorary Society

There comes a time toward the end of the undergraduate's first year at Tufts when every Freshman begins to watch and wonder, to hope and to pray. He wonders if he has shown himself to be of sufficiently high character. He hopes that whether he has or not his classmates will rally behind him in a big way and enable him to take a Sword and Shield parchment to the folks back home to offset the effect of the report card. This parchment testifies to his extra-curricula activity and shows definite achievement along those lines.

The Student Council

The Student Council of Tufts College is a body of sixteen individuals representing all of the major extra-curricula interests of the student body and having general supervision over all organized and unorganized student activities. The Council has power to legislate and enforce regulations concerning such activities and to try all infringements of such regulations. The most conspicuous step taken by the Student Council this year is the reestablishment of the use of class flags in under-class competition.

The expansion of intramural sports has been the chief contribution of the Interfraternity Council of 1930-1931. The addition of bowling to the schedule of interfraternity sports, along with the development of a new method of giving points for the various sports with provisions for general awards has brought intramural sports at Tufts to a much higher plane than heretofore.

The Interfraternity Council, composed of one senior and one junior delegate from each fraternity, is engaged in the promotion of better spirit among the organizations and in the regulation of such matters of general concern as rushing. One of the means of aiding this good fellowship has been the dinner meetings of the council, held at the various houses.

Pan-Hellenic Council

The Panhellenic Council of Jackson College is a group composed of two delegates, one Senior and one Junior, from each of the four fraternities on the campus. The object of the Council is to improve the condition of fraternity life and interfraternity relationships, and to cooperate with the college authorities in all efforts to improve social and scholastic standards. Fraternity rushing is regulated by the rules and policies adopted by the Panhellenic Council. This year the Council voted second semester rushing.

The Debating Council

This year Tufts' rapid gain in prominence along forensic lines was continued by the Tufts Varsity debating teams. The growing idea in present day debating is that debating is of value for its own sake, not for the purpose of winning victories. That Tufts is interested in this new development in debating is shown by the fact that three of this year's debates were of the no-decision kind—those with Springfield, Bates, and Colby. In the decision debates Tufts showed her superiority by winning from Mount Holyoke and Bowdoin. Topics of current interest were argued. This year's list of topics included Prohibition, Unemployment Insurance, Censorship, and Recognition of Russia. The success of this year's season was due in no small way to the efforts of Professor Newell C. Maynard—faculty director of Debating.

The All-Around Club

The All Around Club is the social organization to which every member of Jackson belongs. One of the functions of the club is to provide some sort of social entertainment each month. Several get-togethers, a tea, a concert, and the annual All-Around Club Dance were sponsored by the club this year. Jackson Day, on which prospective freshmen are invited to the Hill, is also under the auspices of this organization.

The 1931 Jumbo Book

Each year a Jumbo Book will be published. Each year a task requiring the combined abilities of the most able and, at the same time, modest and retiring men of the graduating class will be shouldered by the chosen few. It will be a task necessitating quiet yet persistent and unceasing toil. Each year these few men will review, will continually observe and question, will select the interesting events and personalities of their four years of undergraduate life and put them in lasting form for their classmates' enjoyment. But this will be nothing new.

The Tufts Weekly

To serve as a medium for conveying information of interest to students and alumni, to provide a continuous and complete record of college activities, to give each side of every question a fair hearing, to encourage interest in student projects; these are the ideals of The Tufts Weekly. Each issue of the Weekly is distributed among two thousand students and alumni.

The Tuftonian

The 1930-31 staff, in answer to the challenge that the Tuftonian was too narrow in its criteria of material, and that the benefits of publication were reaped in too exclusive a measure by editors themselves, instituted a program of vigorous campaigning to stimulate writers outside of the staff to contribute their best work. A number of experimental changes were made in the format of the magazine, and in types of material accepted; all with the aim of making the publication more attractive, more representative, and more widely read.

Dramatics

New dramatic history was made at Tufts College in the spring of 1930 when Masque, the honorary society of Jackson founded in 1915, combined with Pen, Paint and Pretzels. The resulting association is a group composed of both men and women who, with the assistance of Professor William Northrop Morse, have produced three plays during the season of 1931. Three P's also worked with the Music Department on a fourth production, an operetta, The Rose and The Ring.

Henrik Ibsen's widely-discussed play, Ghosts, which holds untold difficulties for amateur presentation, was interpreted in a highly creditable manner by the following cast:

Regina	Eileen Sweeney
Engstrand	Harold Gates
Manders	Dudley Herbert
Mrs. Alving	Lois McClean
Oswald	Warren Carley

The second production offered a pleasing contrast to the first tragic play—it is an hilarious comedy by George Kelly, The Torchbearers, satirizing the Little Theatre movement in America.

Huxley Hossefrosse	Edward McCarthy
Mr. Spindler	Robert Verge
Ralph Twiller	Raymond Spears

Stage Manager	Roger Poole
Paula Ritter	Elizabeth Davis
Mrs. J. Duro Pampinelli	Mildred Robinson
Nelly Fell	Madeline Halloran
Florence McCrickett	Elizabeth Foster

A Shakespearean play, Hamlet, was chosen to bring the season to a fitting close. Danish sets and costumes, rather than those of the traditional Elizabethan era, served to make it a unique production.

Ophelia	Velma Greenlaw
Claudius	Wallace Robbins

The Cast of "The Rose and the Ring"

The Music Department assisted by Pen, Paint, and Pretzels presented a charming, colorful operetta, The Rose and the Ring, adapted by Mary Winship Kingsley from Thackeray and set to music by Carrie Bullard Lewis, on February 27 and 28.

Professor Leo Rich Lewis was in entire charge of this extravaganza which, with its melodious music, witty text and brilliant costumes, pleased two enthusiastic audiences.

MUSIC

The Glee Club

After its reorganization last year, following a two-year break in Glee Club activities, the 1931 Club has again found the voice which has made Tufts so popular in college musical circles for several generations. The demand for its programs has called the club to many parts of the State, to Connecticut, and to New Jersey. To this Club we owe Tufts' fame as a "singing college".

The Concert Orchestra

The Tufts College Concert Orchestra plays its part in the life of the Hill by enabling students to hear classical music at its several performances throughout the year. A representative repertoire of the organization includes such numbers as the popular "Caliph of Bagdad", by Boieldieu, the beautifully balanced "Morris Dance", by Noble, and the "Symphony in G Major, Surprise", by Haydn.

Captain-elect Knapman

The football season of 1930 witnessed the beginning of a new regime in coaching at Tufts. Lewis F. Manly, line coach under Arthur Sampson for four years, succeeded him as head coach, while Captain Herman R. Rachdorf of the 1929 eleven was selected by Mr. Manly to coach the line. Mr. Manly, in addition to succeeding a successful coach like Sampson, with an impressive record of victories during his four years at Tufts, was handicapped by the schedule makers and by the fact that a new center of the line trio and a backfield had to be developed. Facing these difficultues, Coach Manly managed to develop an eleven that won five out of its seven games, which is a tribute to his ability and to that of his assistant. The brilliance of this achievement is added to by the fact that, of the two teams to defeat the Jumbos, one was Brown, whose superior man-power gave them a tremendous advantage, and the other was Bowdoin in a hard-fought battle.

Moreover, the feature of the year was the development of fresh varsity material, mostly from the sophomore class, to take the place of the men who had graduated, and, in some instances, to displace veterans. That Coach Manly and Coach Rachdorf were able to do this speaks well for the future, and shows that the impressive record of this year's team was to a large extent not a result of the training received under Coach Sampson.

Coach Manly

Manager Case

One of the most striking things about the team was its morale, which was fully equal, if not superior, to that of the best teams ever developed at Tufts, and also carries with it the promise of future success under the new system.

With George LeCain carrying on in the backfield, making life miserable for opposing linemen as in the year before, and with Clayman, Hymanson, Haber, Ingalls, Uanna, and a host of others running wild off the tackles and around the ends, Tufts' attack was both versatile and powerful. The line, with Captain Arlanson and Howard Godfrey playing sensational football at the ends, was strong both offensively and defensively.

In the Colby game, the first of the season, Tufts faced several handicaps that might well have wrecked the team at the very beginning of the season. The Colby eleven, with two games already played, had an advantage over a Tufts team that had never faced competition, and many members of which had never played in varsity competition before. Moreover the Jumbos were badly outweighed. In spite of this the Tufts team refused to be discouraged, drove down the field for one touchdown, and managed to keep the Colby eleven on the defensive for the greater part of the game. One of the features of the battle was the work of the new center trio in stopping the plunges of Donovan, star fullback of the visitors.

At Brunswick the next week, a Tufts team that showed more power than the victors, was defeated in a nip and tuck struggle, 19-14. The Jumbos, with George LeCain tearing through the center of the line for long gains, and Haber hitting the tackles, carried the battle to their traditional rivals all through the second half, after the end dashes of Foster and Ricker had given the Polar Bears an apparently safe lead in the first two periods. A penalty in the third period that gave the Bowdoin team a first down on Tufts five-yard stripe and practically presented them with a score, failed to discourage a Jumbo eleven that drove its opponents back, to score and threatened to do so again as the game ended. The game, although lost, revealed the fighting spirit of a real Tufts team.

The next Saturday, October 25th, Tufts journeyed to Storrs, where the Connecticut Aggie eleven was defeated, 25-0, on a muddy field. The new sophomore members of the backfield showed their ability in this battle.

Tufts played its most thrilling game of the year at the Oval the next Saturday when, before a Homecoming Day crowd, the New Hampshire Wildcats were defeated 10-8, in a game in which the lead shifted continually. A drop kick by Sammy Clayman from the 20-yard line provided the margin of victory, added to a touchdown and point scored after a brilliant march of seventy yards down the field, featured by a remarkable passing attack.

At Providence on the 8th of November Tufts met its second reverse of the year because of the superior man-power of the strong Brown eleven. More than three full teams were used against the Jumbos, while Coach Manly showed judgment in refusing to risk injuring his first team players in an attempt to keep down the score.

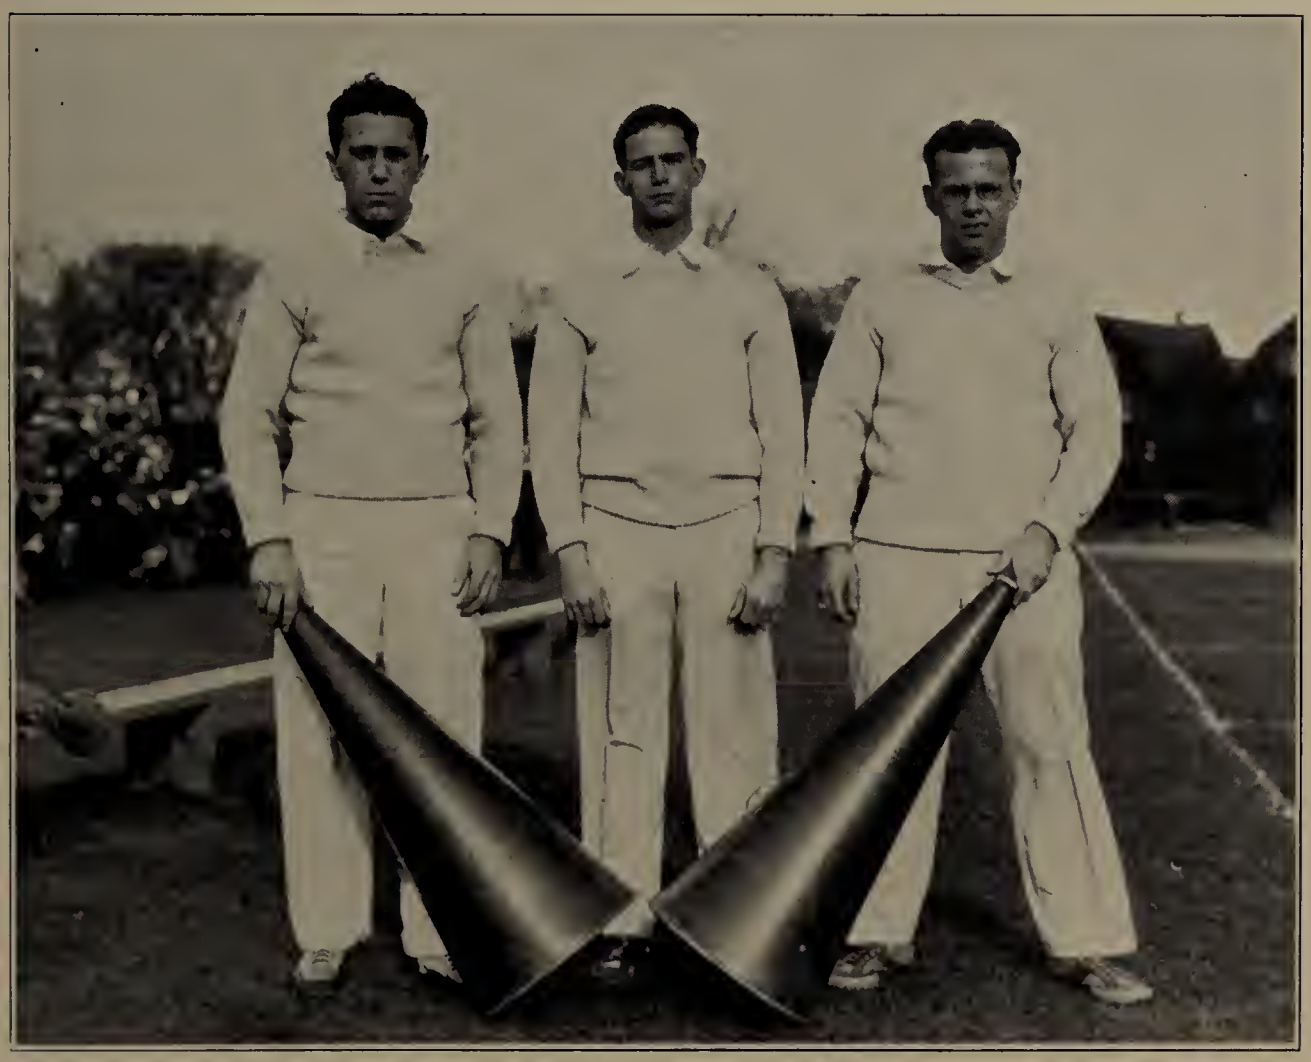

At Weston on the 15th Tufts met Boston University in another mud battle. Three Tufts threats in the opening period were stopped by penalties and a stubborn Terrier defense. Finally, in the third period, LeCain went through the center of the Terrier line at mid-field, eluded the secondary, and ran for the only score of a 7-0 game. Uanna also starred in this game, both in carrying the ball and on the receiving end of Clayman's passes.

The 22nd of November brought the game with Tufts' traditional rival, M.A.C., and the Jumbo's most decisive victory of the season. Aided by the breaks of the game Tufts piled up a 42-6 score against the Aggies, in spite of a fast and scrappy Aggie backfield. Captain Arlanson caught a forward pass for the final point of the final game of his undergraduate career, bringing the season to an appropriate end.

Coach Manly is faced with a difficult task next season, with two backs of the calibre of Haber and LeCain, the best pair of ends in a football generation at Tufts, and two regular linemen, in addition to some fine reserve material, to replace.

Nineteen-thirty brought Tufts' baseball team one more successful season under the leadership of Coach Kenneth L. Nash, with his Jumbos annexing nine victories in fifteen starts, and defeating Harvard in the Alumni Day game, 4-1. As Coach Nash had to develop men for three of the infield positions and an entire outfield, the showing of the team is all the more remarkable.

Coach Nash

Once again it was Lou Adams who carried the greater part of the pitching responsibility, with assistance from Story, Parkhurst, and Lefty Hatch. The Wakefield lad accounted for seven of Tufts' victories, including that over Harvard when he wound up his undergraduate career with what was probably his best hurling performance.

The playing of Ray Ockert at third base, after he had been shifted in from the outfield where he had starred the season before, the work of the sophomores Verge and McCarthy in the infield, and the hitting of the new outfield of Godfrey, Haber, and Lupien, particularly in the opening games, were the features of the 1930 season, in addition to the usual steady play of Captain Arlanson behind the plate and Ingalls in the shortfield.

Six straight victories opened the season. Northeastern was drubbed at Brookline for a starter, while Lowell Textile fared badly on a visit to the Oval. Brown lost a close game to the Jumbos at Tufts when Sondheim failed to stop the Brown and Blue batters in the final innings, and then Tufts journeyed to Weston to bat out a 10-5 victory over Boston University. Bates and Bowdoin, the next two visitors to the Oval, were badly defeated, but then Tufts' victory streak came to a close. A sandstorm in the seventh inning of the Tufts-Boston University game at Tufts blew up the Tufts infield, and they stayed up in the air for the next two games, losing to Holy Cross in a walk-away affair, and being nosed out at Springfield. The team hit its stride again against St. Lawrence, but then dropped three to New Hampshire, Boston College, and the Quantico Marines after hard battles.

The Commencement Season found the team back on the victory trail again, and an enthusiastic Class Day throng saw the Navy Red Sox go down to defeat, while on the following day, in the best baseball game of the season, Harvard was defeated, 4-1, with Lou Adams, hardly in danger throughout, receiving remarkable support both afield and at bat.

After the game Captain Arlanson was re-elected for the 1931 season. The prospects for a successful year seem bright, with eight of the nine men of the team that started against Harvard returning, and a fair freshman team to provide additional material. The pitching staff is the big problem, as Adams, Story, and Parkhurst are lost to the team, but with Lefty Hatch and Jack Gibbons on hand, and Andruszkiewicz and Pedulla of last year's freshmen to work with, Coach Nash will probably again produce a winner.

Tufts basketball team this winter season felt severely the need of a few men of inches. At the very beginning of the year Coach Manly realized that the Tufts outfit this season would be short, and would be forced to offset this advantage by great speed in order for them to defeat any of their opponents. The record of the team shows the effect of this handicap. Many of the games were lost by two or three points, and many times Tufts was ahead at the half, only to lose the game because the team was unable to keep up the pace in the face of this handicap. The loss of the veteran Haber half-way through the season, and recurrent injuries were also potent factors in the loss of many of the games, as Coach Manly was forced to alter his line-up time after time to cope with the situations thus caused.

The prospects for next year, however, seem to be particularly bright, with a winning freshman team to draw from, and with Cochran, Fine, Haber, Kaese, Ingraham, Robison, and Hymanson of this year's team still available. With such material Coach Manly should again produce a five that will rank with that of a year ago.

Coach Samuel Ruggeri,

The Tufts wrestling team of 1931 was one of the most remarkable in the history of the mat sport at Tufts College, and was the first to win the New England Intercollegiate Wrestling Championship in the history of the sport at Tufts. The Jumbo team, underdogs at the beginning of the meet, came through strong to defeat Harvard, the favorite, by three points, while Brown and M.I.T. were left far behind. Tufts victory in the Intercollegiates was a triumph of team play, as well as somewhat of a personal one for Coach Samuel Ruggeri, who has been prominent in wrestling activities at Tufts since the adoption of the sport sixteen seasons ago. Although great credit is due to Tufts New England champions, Captain Minasian, Captain-elect Daniels, and Sophomore William Uanna for their remarkable victories, it was the fact that every member of the team won either a first or second place that made sure of the title for Tufts.

The title meet came as the final event in a season in which the Tufts team had maintained its usual good record. The Jumbo matmen started off their season with an overwhelming victory over Williams, but lost their second meet of the season to Springfield. Two decisive victories followed, Boston University and Amherst being the victims, and then Harvard handed Tufts its only decisive defeat of the year in a meet in which Tufts injuries and the breaks of the sport played a great part. A victory over M.I.T. and a hard fought tie with Brown finished up the season, with the exception of the Intercollegiates where the Jumbos took revenge for their previous defeat by Harvard.

Captain Samuel D. Daniels,

Captain-elect Daniels, with an undefeated regular season had the most successful record on the team, but every man contributed in running up a remarkable record. Minasian was defeated by Batt of Springfield for his only loss of the season, but came through with flying colors in his other bouts to win his New England crown. The performance of William Uanna in winning a championship in his sophomore year was also an outstanding achievement. Four of the members of the team represented Tufts in the National Intercollegiates, and all performed creditably. Unfortunately Uanna broke his ankle in a semi-final bout to mar the event from a Tufts viewpoint. Daniels also won through to the semi-finals.

The prospects for next season are even more brilliant, with every letterman of this year's team, with the exception of Nicholas Dumbros, returning. The freshman team also had several stars, so Coach Ruggeri should develop another championship outfit for next season.

Soccer

The Year 1930 saw soccer recognized for the first time as a letter sport at Tufts after several seasons of effort, and the appointment of Bascom C. Bogle to the position of head coach. The team met the best in New England and made a respectable showing against the best of opposition. The material for next season is strong and the international game seems to be established on a firm basis at Tufts.

Lacrosse

Last spring, for the first time, Tufts was represented in intercollegiate competition in lacrosse, the latest sport to be added to the athletic curriculum. Under the coaching of Dr. Bragger a team was evolved that performed creditably, and the large squad shows that the game has really caught on at Tufts.

JACKSON ATHLETICS

Jackson Field Hockey

The Hockey team showed vast improvement over the work of last year as is proven by a comparison of results. Spirit and teamwork enabled the team to take a victory and to hold its other opponents to a very margin of superiority.

Jackson Basketball

Although the varsity team did not have a very successful season, all the games that were played were very exciting and showed a well-organized team. Elaine Smith was high-scorer of the season. The Junior varsity team, in spite of losing their three games this year, showed ability which promises well for next season.

THE SQUAD

Elaine Smith	Marjorie Moles	Alice White
Mildred Pender	Elizabeth MacLean	Zylpha Allen
Mary Bowen	Alexa MacKinnon	Gertrude Quinby
Eileen Campion	Jean Lowery	Evelyn Wheeler
Rita Hayes	Esther Burnham	Ruth Fedor

Jackson Baseball

Interest in baseball was again renewed last spring. Jackson had a schedule of two games with Pembroke, one at Pembroke and one on the home field. No more games could be scheduled, for very few women's colleges give baseball a place among their varsity sports.

OFFICERS

Edith Doane	Captain	Mildred Pender
Frances Mendell	Manager	Catherine Bickford
Ruth Lincks	Coach	Ruth Lincks

May 24	Jackson	8	Pembroke 15

Jackson Athletic Association

The Jackson Athletic Association is one of the most important organizations of Jackson. They have charge of the eligibility of candidates for membership, captaincy and managership of all varsity teams. Schedules of games must be approved by the athletic association. They also have charge of awarding points and of the athletic awards.

Officers for 1930-31:

Ruth Fedor	President
Margaret Taylor	Vice-President
Gertrude Quinby	Secretary
Winifred Blackmer	Treasurer

TENNIS TEAM

1930	OFFICERS	1931

Kaye MacKinnon	Manager	Kaye MacKinnon
Eileen Campion		Yetta Green
Adele Clark		Sylvia Parker
Alexa MacKinnon		Sylvia Ransom
Kaye MacKinnon		Doris Chase
Ruth Behrend		Evelyn Wheeler
	Sarah Phelan

The tennis team of 1930 was the largest and most efficiently organized since the beginning of tennis as a sport at Jackson. In spite of their losses, the team had an enjoyable season. The 1930 team was made up of two doubles teams and three singles players.

SEASON 1930

May 17	Jackson	1	Radcliffe	4
May 21	Jackson	2	Pembroke	3
May 22	Jackson	1	Wheaton	4

ARCHERY

For several years archery has been included in the sports under the supervision of the Physical Education Department. Last spring, however, was the first time that Jackson has had an archery team. They accepted an invitation to a tournament May 2, 1930 at Storrs, where they placed second, with Eunice Dowse winning second individual place.

Although the sport is new, interest in it is growing, and we can hope for a successful season in the spring of 1931.

School Committeeman Brophy's Campaign Speech

Ladies and Gintlemen:

I did not come here this evening to cast any asparagus on the character of my opponent Casey—blast him—although his grandmother was no gentlemen. He has seen fit to cast shlurs on the grand old name of Brophy—Brophy, the representative of the peepul. Who is he that he dares to challenge the record of the most able and progressive schoolcommitteeman in the history of Ward 13? Nothing but an upshtart.

Casey says that he is an active worker in the cause of prohibition. Yes, gintlemen, Casey is wohrking hard in the cause of prohibition. He's drinking more than any tin men, and, if he continues, the country will be dry in a year, Casey will be dead from alcoholism, and his friends will be passing his bier. Therefore, my dear peepul, before you go to the polls next week, consider the remarkable record of Brophy, that's me.

When the committee voted to purchase a new chandelier for the School Committee room, I saved money for the city by providing that no chandelier should be purchased until someone could play that inshtrument. That's efficiency for you! It was voted to have two cuspidors in City Hall, and I, Brophy, always thinking of my constituents, appointed two residents of my ward to these important positions. Shall this go unrewarded? When the School Committee tried to restrict the length of teacher's dresses, what did Brophy do? I proposed a zoning system so that teachers could wear short dresses as far north as College Avenue. Just as John Paul Jones shtood for freedom of the seas, Schoolcommitteeman Brophy shtood for freedom of the knees.

And Casey has the nerve to oppose me, Why, he's so crooked he has to shleep in a roundhouse, and when he dies they'll never get him in a coffin—they'll have to bury him in a base dhrum. Are ye going to elect a man whose very birth is shrouded in mystery? Brophy had but one mother and one father. Yet Casey, by his own statement, has admitted that he had four fathers. He should be ashamed of himself inshtead of bragging about it. So he says that he shprung from a great race? Well, Brophy never shprung from any race; I always shprung at them.

Ladies and Gintlemen, do ye know that Casey is an evolutionist? Are ye going to have your children taught that their parents are monkeys? Would you have people insinuate that Schoolcommitteeman Brophy is a baboon?

Repudiate this blasted upshtart at the polls. Remember, the fundamental question is: Are we men or are we monkeys? We are! We are! We are!
