David Baxter [redacted]
MCI Concord
PO Box 9106
Concord, Ma 01742

Loving A Convict

Loving a convict is a hard thing to do,
no one knows this better than you,
Sticking it out is so hard they say,
giving your heart is a hard price to pay.
It's waiting and anticipating a letter each day,
and the smile you get when one comes your way.
It's him whispering his love to you and you whispering back 'I Love you too'.
Then comes a kiss, and a promise to wait,
knowing the court is holding his fate.
Loving a convict isn't much fun,
but it's worth the wait when the time is done.
Remember he is sad, lonely from being away,
he's missing you more & more with each passing day.
So love him, and miss him, and tell him so,
because if you love and miss him, he needs to know.
Time is written in volumes of three:
The past is over and put away,
The present we live day to day,
The yet to be, is the best of three,
Together we will share it, just you and me.
Dreaming of you is all I can do,
but someday my love, our dreams will come true.