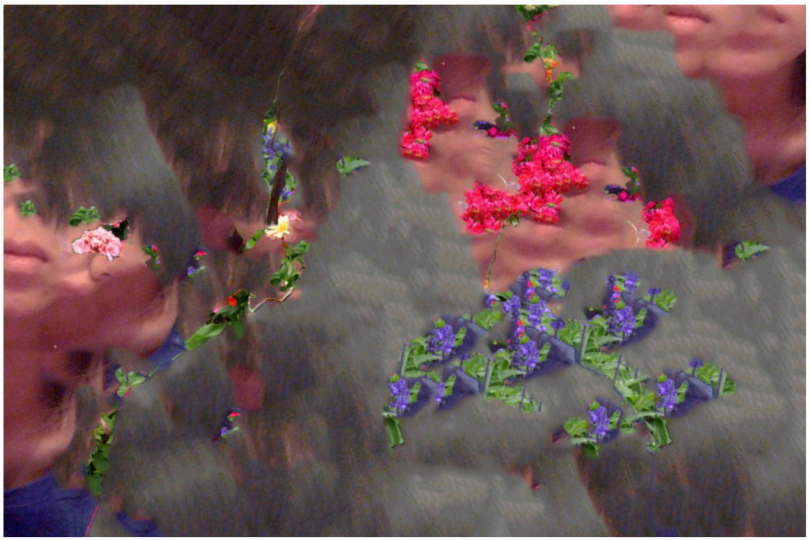
CLEO MIAO

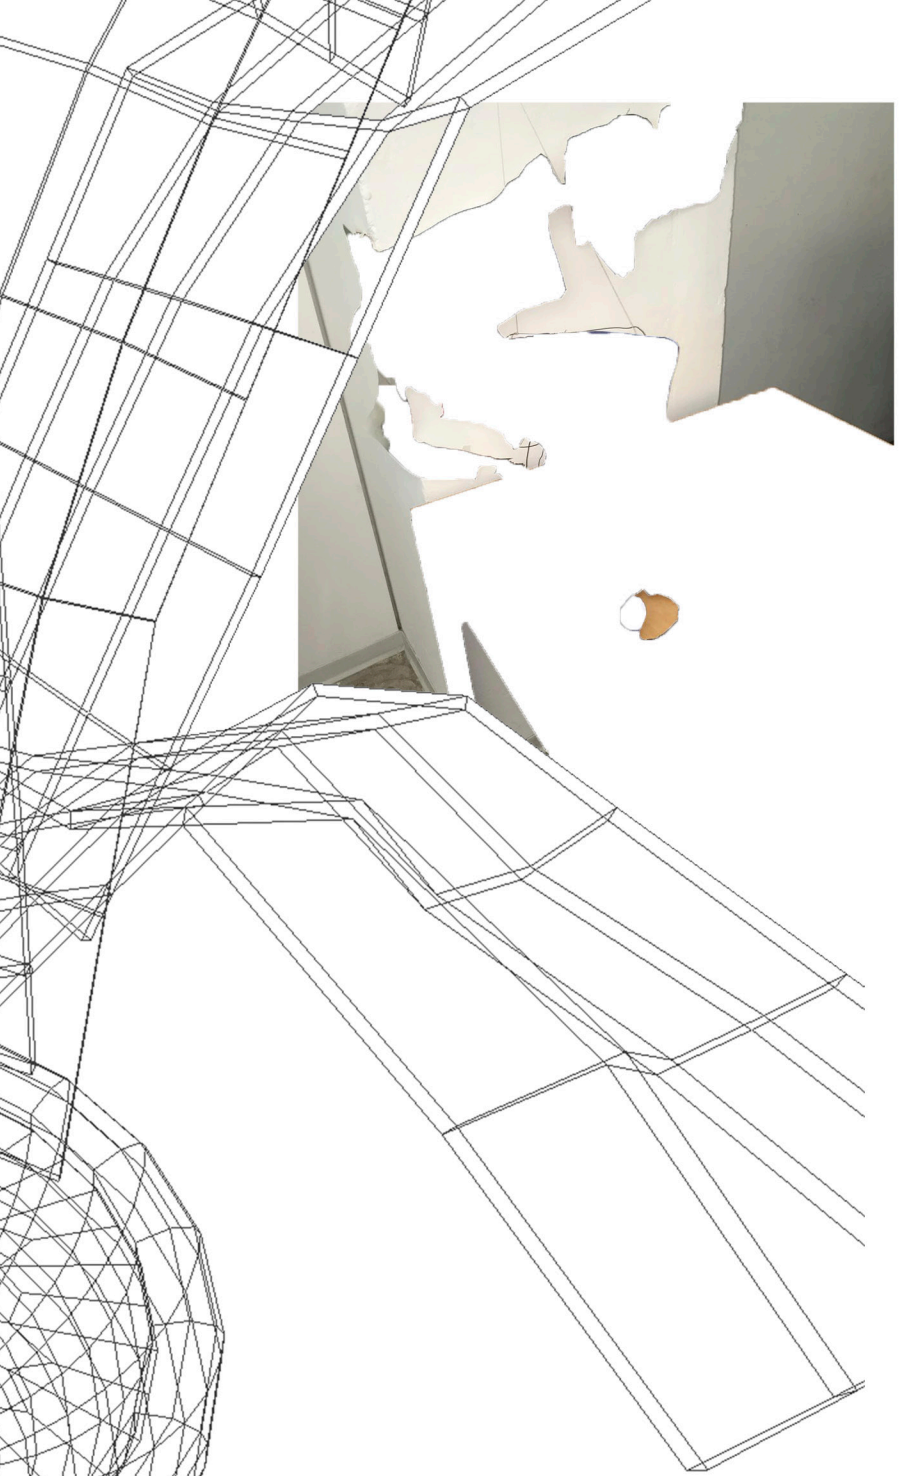
www.cleomiao.info

cleo (yuekai) miao is an anti-disciplinary media artist. She is constantly trying to make sense of identities and bodies in virtual spaces. She plays with both the poetics and the absurdity of digital tools and culture.

cleo's work considers the reality that is configured and mediated by images. Technology forces us to rethink the presence (or absence) of the self in virtual spaces. It augments and modifies our perception and understanding of the world around us and therefore becomes an extension of our physical bodies. Images of the self captured with cameras and 3d scanners made presentable first for the screens eventually become a way of self-inspection. As we try to recreate and translate our reality, the digital inserts itself and creates a new system of intimacy. Through playful investigation, cleo questions and spectates the role and affect of photographic images and mediums. In her thesis installation, cleo creates a digital nature to reimagine a post-industrial and post-internet form of solitude.

CLEO MIAO





I adopted a plant on turbosquid and now it lives in my downloads folder.

working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel
working on a novel