Re: September 1991 Activity Report-MN

My hometown of Eagan continues to debate at the task force level, the consideration of a model self-service cigarette ban. To date, the task force has still not determined what action to take. There is a good chance that the issue will not materialize from the actions credited to pro-tobacco members of the task force.

I was in Washington DC during month's end and met with seven members of Minnesota's congressional delegation (of which there are ten). In each instance, I reminded them of the ills of excise taxes.

I returned to the city of Virginia, MN earlier in the month and received assurances of our previous commitment to prevent anti-tobacco ordinances.
