

LIFE'S CAST AWAY

Like a sailor that's lost at sea,
I wish for someone to rescue me.

I'm alone on life's raft
Without a compass,
the North Star guides my path.

Dehydrated by solitude,
the ranging waves mirror my attitude.
Baring the unwanted kiss from the sun,
I can tell that my time here is almost done.

Am I not worth saving?
Can no one see my S.O.S?
My days on these seas have been a distress

I watched as big ship passed me by.

Their crew cheered and smiled
As sweat fell from my eyes.

But pirates have no sympathy

They are all great whites

If I fall in the water

They'll devour my life.

So I patiently wait for life's currents to bring me to shore

Where I will be love by my kin- for sure
