A curious, historical and entertaining NARRATIVE of the Captivity and almost unheard-of Sufferings and cruel Treatment of Mr. ROBERT WHITE, Mariner.

 I ROBERT WHITE, of Saco, (Massachusetts) Mariner, was born in 1762.—In February 1783 I sailed from Casca-Bay, as Second-Mate of the Brig Squirrel, ALEXANDER PAIN, Master, bound to Leghorn, up the Straights.—On the 23d of March following, when within nine days sail of Gibraltar-Rock, we were taken by a cruizer from the Algerine-Mole, carried into Algiers and presented before the Dey, who is an absolute Monarch : He proposed if we would embrace the Mahometan religion, we should have our liberty; but if we would not comply with his offer, we should immediately be sent as Slaves on board a Row-Galley, and be chained to an oar all our lives.—We answered, that we had always found our God to be a good and just God, and we had rather endure all the cruelty and punishments he could inflict, than to forsake the God who had preserved us all our lives. This answer so enraged the Dey, he immediately ordered the Capt. and Mate to be sent to the mines ; myself and 18 shipmates were sent on board a cruizing Row-galley of 26 8-pounders, there to be chain'd to the oar for life, where we endured the most cruel treatment ever shewn to men ; being kept constantly confined and allowance'd to a small quantity of goat-flesh and bran-bread, without any shelter from the inclemency of the weather.—In this miserable situation we were detain'd 4 years and 9 months, constantly rowing and cruising, 'till to our inexpressible joy, about the 20th of December 1787, we espied a sail bearing hard down on us ; in about 6 hours she hove in sight, and proved to be a French Frigate, mounting 48 brass pieces, commanded by M. John Le Goffe, who immediately saluted us with a broadside, and after firing several times, grappled and laid us close on board : When the Algérines saw they were like to be taken, they fell on the American prisoners with the most infernal fury, and with cutlasses, bayonets and other weapons of death continued their horrid and relentless barbarity until the French boarded and overpowered them. Only seven of us were left alive, the other 11 were inhumanly butchered before the French could get on board. When the Captain found how we had been treated, he immediately took us on board his Frigate, and ordered the whole of our inhuman and merciless task-masters to be put to death : His orders were instantly obeyed, for they left not one alive, ninety-two in number.—After making this sacrifice, they took the bow-gun of the galley, a 68-pounder, and pointing it down the hatchway, blew her bottom out and sunk her.—The French Surgeon immediately dress'd our wounds, and treated us with all the care and tenderness that can be express'd. She immediately set sail for Bourdeaux in France ; but before she arrived three of my Comrades died of the wounds they received ; the other three and myself were carried on shore and put in a hospital, where we tarry'd 19 months before our wounds were healed, tho' every means were applied, and as much attention paid to us as if we had been in our native country. On recovering, we were put on board a ship, commanded by Monsieur Vanjoung, sailed for New-York and arrived in February, 1790 : Where I parted with my Ship-mates, and set off for my native place, travelling on foot and begging my victuals, in hopes of finding my Friends ; but when I arrived there I was inform'd my Parents, at my long absence, supposing me to be dead, pined with grief, and by giving way to melancholy reflections on my misfortune, they brought their grey hairs with sorrow to the grave.—The treatment we met with whilst we were chained on board the Galley is beyond tongue to describe ; the Algérines being naturally of a very high temper, and seeing they were like to be taken by the French, enraged them to such a degree that they acted more like mad-men than any thing else I can describe ; they fell on us like ravenous wolves, and used every kind of cruelty their wicked imaginations could invent, by wounding some of us with cutlasses, while others were killed with bayonets, knives and other weapons of death. Thus they continued their butchery and savage cruelty, until our kind Deliverers came on board and overpowered them ; but before they could get on board, the Algerines supposed they had killed us all.

Perhaps some of my kind Readers may be curious to inquire, what sort of manners and customs these cruel and blood-thirsty Barbarians are possessed of ? I can with truth and to my great grief and sorrow answer, they are the most savage, brutal, inhuman and unmanly set of wretches I ever met with, although for one of my years I have travelled a great deal and seen much of mankind ; for, professing to believe in the religion of Mahomet, (if, by the horrid and bloody deeds it leads men to perpetrate, it can be called any religion at all) their bigotted principles in this respect naturally incline them to cut the throats of all its opposers of every sect and denomination whatever ; by which blind zeal these benighted, ignorant and superstitious followers of a false Deity are led to commit such horrid acts of barbarity, as they set much less by the life, liberty and property of a Christian, than we do by one of our domestic animals.

For me to attempt a full description of the many hellish tortures and punishments these piratical sons of plunder and rapine invent and inflict on the unfortunate Christian Prisoners of every nation that are not tributary to them, who may by chance unhappily fall into their merciless hands, I am sure must be endless, and prove a fruitless task, which would rather serve to swell my Journal or Narrative to the extent of a large volume, instead of a small Pamphlet ; my original design then, (for the present) being principally confined to narrate in as concise a view as possible, some important matters of fact, that occurred to myself and unfortunate Ship-mates and Fellow-Prisoners during our long, tedious and shocking captivity, instead of descending into the minutest particulars relating thereto ; thinking at the same time, it might not only serve to a great measure to correct my memory, but would, perhaps, in some degree answer a valuable purpose, when I arrived at my desired Haven, at least in amusing and entertaining, if not of instructing many of my numerous Friends and Acquaintance, who I earnestly hope and sincerely pray to God may not be so unhappy as to have the opportunity of viewing the same scenes that I have, nor of undergoing the like hardships that I have suffered in the course of my miserable and cruel captivity.

For reasons above let it suffice, my kind, candid and compassionate READER, at this time, to observe, that those Beings, who have only the shape and appearance of the human race, (for their actions and behavior to those who unhappily fall into their hands, are of so cruel and diabolical a nature, my soul despairs the very idea of calling them men) are of a black, swarthy complexion, and are naturally of a savage, blood-thirsty and cruel disposition :—They fare very mean, and wear long whiskers like the Turks, to whose government they are subservient.

It may be thought very strange that almost all the Christian World are obliged to pay tribute, and submit to the tyrannic mandates of an arbitrary and despotic Algerine Prince, who presides over a petty Barbarian State, and has for his chief support and defence only a band of undisciplined Sea-Robbers.—The reason will appear plain and obvious to every one when they consider their country is surrounded by inaccessible mountains, and bordering on the Moors, a numerous people dwelling in the back parts thereof ; so that it is next to an impossibility for all the powers of earth, were they to combine in one united force, to subdue or extirpate this piratical and blood-thirsty nest of vermin : Therefore, with the utmost submission, I think it surely behoves these United States, agreeable to the example set by other commercial nations, to have recourse to money, by which we may possibly buy their friendship, rather than dispute their authority with warlike weapons ; for in no greater instance was the truth of the old adage ever verified than in the case of the Algerines, that it is sometimes expedient to hold a candle even to the Devil, as we cannot tell whose hands we may fall into.

Doubtless many will be curious to ask, how it fares with the rest of our American Friends and Brother Tars, who have long been enslaved among these tyrannical, barbarous and piratical sons of lawless rapine ?—To which I answer, they are treated much in the same manner as before related ; some being chained to the ear, whilst others are writhing under their chains in the mines, and dragging out a miserable existence, scarce worth possessing, in those dark and gloomy mansions of horror and despair.

But before I conclude this short narrative of undeniable facts, I must, with the most profound reverence and respect, beg leave to address myself to the feelings of our Rulers, and ask, whether it would not be as expedient to use their utmost endeavors to relieve our much-tormented and distressed Brethren, now in slavery, by appropriating a sum of money to secure the Liberty and Peace of our Nation, rather than to expend enormous sums of money upon Door-keepers, Clerks, Under-clerks, and for building Federal Edifices in the moon, &c. when we have already much more convenient ones erected in several of our cities ?

The Reader will excuse this short digression, as it is very far from me, who am but a young Tar, to dictate my Superiors, I would only humbly advise and speak for myself, as a Fellow-subject, who have been a Fellow-sufferer with them in their bonds, and in their stripes and imprisonment.—However, I feel, as every true and loyal heart of American Oak ought to feel, big with the idea of Liberty and the Peace and Happiness of my Country and Fellow-men; and I can truly say, I prize the life and liberty of one of my Brother-Tars, whose unhappy lot it is to be writhing under the execrable yoke of the worst of Tyranny, to all the power, pomp and riches of the Grand-Turk, or that despotic and cruel tyrant the Dey of Algiers.—But I humbly trust our unfortunate friends and fellow-countrymen, in the truly wretched condition above-described, have every thing to hope from the natural justice and clemency of our happy Nation, now under the immediate guidance of so worthy and illustrious a character as a WASHINGTON, whom GOD long preserve to our land, to bless it with his unbounded wisdom and councils, to direct and guide the helm of State.

ROBERT WHITE.

A true Copy from the Manuscript, in the hands of the Publisher, attested by D. Leslie and N. Hatch.

I would here insert an accurate account of the American Prisoners, now groaning under a species of Slavery in Algiers, perhaps the most intolerable and degrading to human nature that can possibly be imagined, or that was ever practised in any country, ruled by the most arbitrary Despot; when it is probable that less than the trifling sum of one quarter of a Dime (3d. sterl.) contributed from each generous American, (I am willing to throw in an Eagle, just a months wage;) would once more restore these children of misfortune and wretchedness to their Families and Friends, notwithstanding the well-known avarice of the haughty Dey.

YOUNG fool ! for pleasure sells his little wits,
 To suck damnation from a Strumpet's lips ;
 How silly is the wretch to trust the La's
 That robs him of his nose before his face :
 'Tis now the custom of a nasty wench,
 To borrow English coin, but pay in French.

NOW sultry clouds o'erspread our northern skies,
In whose dark bowels in-born thunder lies;
The wat'ry vapors numberless conspire,
To smother and oppress the imprison'd fire,
Which thus collected, gathers greater force,
Breaks out in flames, and with impetuous course
From the clouds gaping womb in lightning flies,
Flashes in ruddy streaks along the skies.

Now Syrius from on high,
 With pestilential heat infests the sky ;
 The rising vapors choak the wholesome air,
 And blasts of noisome wind corrupt the year ;
 Th' effluvia keen, on nervous moisture feeds,
 Ingenders death and dark destruction breeds.

NOW in the west dark clouds arise,
Involve the sun and blacken all the skies;
The whirlwinds roar; the heaven's awful thunder toll,
And streamy lightnings flash around the pole;
Descending floods along the meadows flow,
And bursting torrents whelm the world below.

Beasts take no more than nature's craving needs;
Man only surfeits nature when he feeds.

OLD Winter's coming void of all delight,
 With trembling steps his head is bald and white,
 His hair with robes of icicles are hung,
 His chattering teeth confound his useless tongue;
 He makes the rich to spend, the poor to cry
 For want of that which would their wants supply.

XII. DECEMBER, hath 31 DAYS. 1791.

SOL through his twelve celestial signs has run,
And now unto cold Capricorn is come;
Where in that solstice he so pale is grown,
As if ashame'd his weakness should be known:
But in six months to us he will return,
With such a heat his rays will almost burn.
