This broken system targets broken people and punishes them for their broken parts.
Then it locks them away creating broken families that suffer from broken hearts.
Broken promises are what "liberty and justice for all" are revealed to be.
After we've broken down the disparity between who are incarcerated and free.
It's clear to see that the 'WE' in "We the people" is broken down into castes.
That's the truth that is really self evident, but how long will it last.
A question I ponder as I stare out of a broken window while I sit in prison.
How long before we make a broken cycle out of this country's broken tradition.
